Time Limits Are Asked to Speed Codes

Johnson Reveals Plan Is Now Under Consideration.

Warring Factions of Soft Coal Industry May Be Summoned Here.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

An arbitrary time limit within which industry must submit codes raising wages and shortening hours is under consideration by the administration.

The warring and unwilling factions within the bituminous industry may be summoned for a public hearing before the National Industrial Recovery Administration within the next few days.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, disclosed that such a plan is under consideration late yesterday following a series of developments incident to the determination of President Roosevelt that the benefits of his recovery program shall not be forestalled by further delay in increasing purchasing power widely.

But the broader proposal under consideration would involve more than the bituminous industry. It calls for exercise by the President of the wide authority given him in the national recovery act to set up codes for unwilling industries and enforce his codes through licensing.

The proposal was discussed at a meeting of the Industrial Recovery Cabinet Board in the office of Secretary of Commerce Roper, chairman, yesterday afternoon. No mention of the discussion was made in the brief formal statement about the meeting, but it was learned on reliable authority that the discussion is to be resumed after board members further sound out the President.

Gen. Johnson's proposal to call the differing coal factions into one hearing, without waiting longer for them to get together on a code, also was discussed, and Gen. Johnson told reporters afterward that he would make his decision within the next two or three days, "just as soon as I can get my head above water."

The broader plan would affect the steel and oil industries, among others. The oil industry code has been returned for lack of certain employment data it did not give. The steel industry's code has been sent back three times because it did not conform to the purposes of the recovery act, Gen. Johnson said.

Myron Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, was summoned to the White House yesterday and held a lengthy conference with President

Fess Candidate For Reelection

Springfield, Ohio, July 10 (A.P.). The Springfield News says that United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, Republican, Ohio, today announced he would be a candidate for reelection in 1934.

He was quoted as saying two factors influenced his decision to run for a third time:

"In the first place, I have never submitted to threats in voting on any piece of legislation and I do not propose now to let threats of veterans regarding bonus legislation and my stand on the question influence my action. In the second place, I believe that the eighteenth amendment is going to be repealed and that Ohio will vote for repeal. Everybody knows my unalterable stand against the liquor traffic, and it has been said I could not be reelected because of this stand. I do not agree with this conclusion."

Jail Is Stormed Vainly by Mob

Confessed Ax Slayer Is Removed Shortly Before Siege.

Page Jupiter, confessed slayer of a Waldorf, Md., farm woman, was safe in the Prince Georges County Jail at Upper Marlboro early today after mob violence had been frustrated at the Charles County Jail in La Plata, according to state police.

He was hustled out of the La Plata lockup scarcely an hour before the jail was stormed by a mob of about 100.

The mobsmen, realizing they had been outwitted, jumped into autos and set out with the intention of going to Upper Marlboro, believing their quarry had been taken there. However, they broke up and never reached the Prince Georges county seat.

At 1 a. m. Jupiter was securely locked in the Upper Marlboro Jail. The scene at the two-story brick lockup, which is more formidable than the Charles County Jail at La Plata, was one of unruffled calm.

Chase Believed Abandoned.

Manacled to Sergt. Louis Bloom and Sheriff R. Vernon Cooksey, Jupiter had been hurried into an auto and driven off in the direction of Waldorf, where Mrs. Evelyn Reifschneider was found brutally slain with an ax last Saturday. Two State policemen also were in the car.

Cooksey and Bloom, after placing the prisoner in the Upper Marlboro jail, returned to La Plata.

100 Storm Jail.

About 100 persons were in the yelling mob which stormed the jail shortly after the prisoner was removed. A little while earlier the detail of State police had been relieved.

The milling farmers forced their way through the outer gate and inside the wire fence without opposition. John F. Sersey, elderly colored jail keeper, had locked himself inside the jail.

Intimidated by the threatening vengeance seekers, Sersey threw open the doors and the mob rushed upstairs where they knew Jupiter had been incarcerated. A thorough search revealed they had been outwitted and the prisoner removed.

Smash News Camera.

Shouting "Trap!" and "We've been fooled," they rushed from the building, not, however, before smashing the camera of Arthur Ellis, Post staff photographer. When Ellis defied the demand of one of the mob's men to "get the hell out," his camera was swiped down the staircase by a blow which also caught a Post reporter in the face.

Believing the confessed slayer had been placed in the courthouse, which is about 75 feet from the jail, the stampede was directed to that structure.

"Bring him out!" cries pierced the air. The crowd filled the courthouse grounds. Tear gas was held in readiness by the defenders but was not used.

Try to Trick Jailer.

Earlier in the night, while Jupiter was still a prisoner in the jail, an auto containing two men drove up and attempted to enter by tricking the keeper. One feigned drunkenness and the other said he was a deputy sheriff.

The men were soon taken in custody by State police.

Attempting to secure their release, about 30 members of the mob which left La Plata in search of Jupiter stopped at the State police substation in Waldorf. They were told that only Sergt. Bloom could liberate the two. The group then left via a back road through Beantown, Md., and apparently returned to La Plata.

Both State's Attorney Edward F. Edelen and Sheriff Cooksey denied earlier yesterday they had asked for

McDuffie in Hospital For Few Days of Rest

(United Press).

Representative John McDuffie (Democrat), Alabama, entered the Naval Hospital Saturday for "rest and observation," it was learned last night.

His secretary said "nothing is seriously wrong" with the representative and that he expected him to leave the hospital within a few days. Hospital officials refused to comment upon McDuffie's condition.

Outlaws Get $3,100 From Michigan Bank

Adrian, Mich., July 10 (A.P.).—Officials here were advised this afternoon that two bandits had held up the Farmers & Merchants Bank at [illegible], in Lenawee County, near here, escaping with $3,100.

Packer Kidnaped Following Threat

Alton, Ill., July 10 (A.P.).—August Luer, 78, wealthy retired meat packer and president of the Alton Banking & Trust Co., was kidnaped tonight from his home by two men who forced their way into his residence.

The men seized the aged man, who is in delicate health, as he talked over the telephone to his son, Carl, who lives nearby. Mrs. Luer rushed to her husband's aid and was knocked down by the intruders, who fled in a motor car.

About fifteen months ago the banker received a threatening letter demanding $5,000. He ignored the threat except for the hiring of guards, who later were discharged. Alton police immediately started an intensive search for the kidnapers' car and broadcast alarms in all nearby communities.

Albany Bosses' Nephew Held By Kidnapers

$250,000 Is Demanded of Relatives of Young O'Connell.

Albany, N. Y., July 10 (A.P.).—John J. O'Connell jr., 24, nephew of Edward J. and Daniel P. O'Connell, powerful upstate Democratic leaders, has been kidnaped and held since Friday for $250,000, police learned today.

Negotiations for his release have come to a standstill. The abductors had telephoned a warning that they would kill their captive if police were called into the case.

Young O'Connell, athlete and lieutenant in the National Guard, is believed to have been snatched away from his home as he got out of his automobile at 1:15 a. m. Friday.

His parents noticed his failure to return home Thursday night, but did not suspect that he had been kidnaped until they heard of a threat Friday, telephoned to Samuel Aronowitz, law partner of Edward O'Connell, who is Albany County Democratic chairman. Aronowitz is a former State commander of the American Legion.

"Tell Eddie (Edward O'Connell) that we've got his nephew and that he will hear from us," a muffled voice over the telephone told Aronowitz. "If he tells the police we'll kill him."

The two political chieftains made frantic attempts to get in communication with the kidnapers today through intermediaries, but were said to have been unable to reach them. Sources close to them said they were ready to pay a moderate ransom, but could not hope to raise $250,000.

Their fear was that young O'Connell, because of the great strength for which he is noted among his friends, would endanger his own life by attempting to get away. He weighs 225 pounds, is a courageous fighter and a good runner.

The victim's two uncles and his father run the strong Albany Democratic machine which fought with Tammany Hall against the nomination of President Roosevelt at Chicago last summer.

"Ed" and "Dan" O'Connell are re-

State Police Squad To Fight Kidnapers

20 Illinois Officers Given Special Duty by Order of Governor.

Springfield, Ill., July 10 (A.P.).—Twenty members of the State Highway Police Force today were organized into a special squad to break up kidnaping rings. The squad was organized on orders of Gov. Henry Horner, who said he had received information that gangsters planned "wholesale kidnapings of wealthy citizens in several sections of the State."

"I shall use every law-enforcing agency of the State to thwart the plans of these kidnapers, and to cleanse Illinois of them and their ilk," the governor announced. "If 20 highway police are not sufficient, I will assign more to this important duty."

The State's special squad will cooperate with the police force under State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, of Cook County. The men were all selected because of special fitness for the work.

Home Loan Jobs Will Go Only to Able

Stevenson Won't Favor Ousted Employes of Civil Service.

Cabinet Relief Hinges on Work Projects to Be Approved Today.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Home Loan Bank Board, and the affiliated Home Owners Loan Corporation, among the largest of the new Federal emergency agencies, definitely will not give preference to workers ousted from other departments, and will make appointments without regard to the Civil Service merit system.

This policy was announced yesterday by William F. Stevenson, chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board, at his second formal press conference. The agency he heads eventually will provide jobs for from 8,000 to 10,000 persons, mostly in the field.

Plans of a special Cabinet committee dealing with the Federal reemployment problem will hinge largely on projects approved today by the Public Works Cabinet Advisory Board in session at the Interior Department.

Just Expenditures Allowed.

Secretary of Commerce Roper, chairman of the special Cabinet committee, believes many of the departments could take back ousted employes if funds asked of the Public Works Administration are approved. He said there will be no meeting of the special Cabinet committee until departmental projects either are approved or rejected.

Secretary of Interior Ickes, who yesterday took over the job of public works administrator, said all justifiable expenditures for public works will be allowed.

"Loans to local governmental bodies, where ordinary current expenditures are not being brought within prudently estimated revenues, will not be forthcoming," he said, however.

Meanwhile, Cabinet advisers to the National Recovery Administration yesterday decided to make use of the twenty-four regional offices of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce as a skeleton field organization for the new industrial recovery establishment.

Maximum Wage, $6,000.

Managers of the offices have been called to Washington to confer on their dual duties as Commerce Department employes and agents of the new recovery set-up.

The move will make possible retention of some employes who

Fish and Alligator All Caught on One Hook

Allendale, S. C., July 10 (A.P.).—Elmore Lewis, Savannah River fisherman, caught a 3-foot alligator, a big catfish and a small perch on the same line at the same time with one piece of bait.

As Elmore tells it, the hook first snared the perch. Then the catfish came along, tried to swallow the perch and got choked. The alligator in turn tried to swallow the catfish and was snared by the cat's fins. He displayed the assortment, still intact, as proof of his story.

Secretary Bets Budget Director He'd Even Cut Ball Teams.

District officials are chuckling over a story which leaked out of the White House about their traditional foe, the budget director.

Lewis W. Douglas, the present director, was riding on an elevator Saturday with one of the young lady secretaries, the story goes, and the conversation turned to the scheduled baseball game at Griffith Stadium.

"I'll bet if you went, you'd want the teams to play with six men," the secretary chided Mr. Douglas.

Mattern's Hard Journey Out of Wilds Revealed

He Walked 8 Days Before He Reached Banks of Siberia Stream.

Moscow (Tuesday), July 11 (A.P.).—A dramatic story of how Jimmie Mattern, American aviator, was lost for 16 days in the wilds of northern Russia before being rescued was related early today in a special dispatch to the newspaper Izvestia from its correspondent at Khabarovsk.

The dispatch gave the first comprehensive details of the mishap to Mattern, who took off June 14 from Khabarovsk, in an attempt to fly to Nome, Alaska, on another stage of his solo round-the-world flight. The Texas flier last week sent a telegram here saying he was safe at Anadyr, Siberia.

Fourteen hours after leaving Khabarovsk, the Izvestia dispatch said, Mattern noticed that his motor was beginning to falter and he decided it would be better to land.

Finding no suitable place in the wild, desolate country, he pressed on, apparently hoping the trouble would right itself, only to meet with an almost complete failure of the engine. This necessitated coming down in an extremely unfavorable, hilly spot about three miles from the left bank of the Anadyr River, on which the village of Anadyr is situated.

In landing, his plane was virtually destroyed. The propeller was bent, the right wing smashed and the fuselage and the motor damaged.

Mattern suffered cuts and bruises although not of a serious nature.

The place of landing was one of the remotest sections, having few inhabitants. Apparently hoping to find some aid, the aviator set out to walk to the river, equipped with only a small supply of chocolate and biscuits.

In his laborious trek, Mattern required eight days to reach the

Two Skulls of Missing Link Found Near Peking, China

Discovery Believed Most Important to Date by Geologists.

San Francisco, July 10 (A.P.).—A group of noted geologists from the Orient, headed by Dr. A. W. Grabau, an American, arrived here today en route to the International Geological Congress at Washington, D. C.

Dr. Grabau announced the discovery of two nearly perfect skulls of the ancient "Peking man" which he said represented "the most important missing link discovery to date."

In the party were Dr. Z. K. Ting, president of the Geological Society of China and former Mayor of Shanghai; Pere Teillard de Chardin, former president of the Geological Society of France and a member of Roy Chapman Andrews' Gobi Desert expedition; Dr. Nils H. Horner, of the Royal Swedish University, and Mrs. L. G. Woodland, secretary to Dr. Grabau.

Dr. Grabau said the skulls and several jaws of teeth were found in rock caves which contained fossils of animals of the million-years-ago period.

Dr. Grabau said it had long been known there were three main branches from the original man, "Evolved or created, as you like, in Thibet, Chinese Turkestan, or the 'Garden of Eden.'

"Traces of ten branches have been found and duly catalogued," he went on—"The Piltdown man, who migrated to England and spread over Europe, and the Java ape man, who went south.

"First traces of the third man, the so-called missing link in our ancestral chain from Adam, was unearthed several years ago, but not until recently had enough material been assembled to present the discovery to the scientific world.

"His remains were found in the region of Peking. Hence the Peking man will be introduced for the first time at the international congress in Washington."

Polish Flier Abandons Brazil-Warsaw Flight

Rio de Janerio, July 10 (A.P.).—Stanislaus Skarzinski, Polish aviator who flew here from Warsaw by way of the South Atlantic, abandoned today a projected return flight by way of Washington, D. C.

He received orders to return immediately to Poland and his plane will be returned by boat.

Britain and U. S. Agree On Economic Policies, Chamberlain Declares

Steering Group Unit Junks American Plan to Proceed.

Kills Original Program of Conference, but Defers Closing.

London, July 10 (U.P.).—The steering committee of the World Economic Conference today practically junked the United States plan to proceed with discussions of tariffs, import quotas and other restriction on trade.

The committee effectively killed the major part of the parley's original program, but kept the conference alive at least another 24 hours by reserving final decision until the monetary commission presents a draft tomorrow of what its members believe they can discuss and act on with authority.

The United Press learned that most of the Americans were indirectly, at least, ready for adjournment, or a recess until autumn, but not until the conference works out some sort of permanent machinery to keep the conference intact during the interval.

Early Recess Expected.

Delays may keep the conference in session for another ten days or two weeks, delegates indicated privately, but a recess until September, or possibly October, is expected before the end of this month.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chairman of the United States delegation, after conference with the British and French, said he felt there was "new hope" that the conference could concentrate on subjects on which agreements were possible, forgetting their controversies of the past month.

Attention tonight centered on the meeting of the drafting committee of the monetary commission, at which an effort will be made to reconcile the differences between the gold standard countries led by France and the nongold standard nations led by the United States.

James M. Cox, of Ohio, is chairman of the drafting committee. Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, is a member, but the United States has only one vote. The ten countries represented are divided equally as to gold bloc and nongold bloc affiliations.

Hull Pleads for Action.

The fifth week's meetings began with a concerted effort led by the United States and Great Britain to keep the economic conference in full swing. Secretary Hull, addressing the steering committee, again uttered an impassioned plea for cooperation in the face of the world crisis.

Other delegates were impressed by the sincerity of the tall, scholarly American statesman, but commented he did not advance the concrete proposals expected. Hull, prior to the meeting, commented:

"I do not see how the statesmen will be able to go home to their starving peoples and admit they failed to achieve anything."

The steering committee then proceeded to eliminate the major part of the original agenda of the economic conference.

First Lady Visits Son at Polo Ranch

Littleton, N. H., July 10 (A.P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, with a woman friend, had luncheon with her son, John, at the White Mountain Polo Ranch at Whitefield today.

The First Lady arrived in her own car at noon and spent some time inspecting the ranch, where John has been taking polo lessons. She ended her visit at 3 p. m. (Eastern standard time).

Earlier in the day she visited the Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Waterbury, Vt.

Jobs as Fence Viewers Involve Work After All

Amesbury, Mass., July 10 (A.P.). — Two newspapermen and a plumber who have basked in the glory of being fence-viewers—a town office dating back to colonial times—and have filled their posts with dignity and inertia, today discovered that the supposedly obsolete job was no joke after all.

A dispute has arisen between two property owners over fenced land and for the first time within the memory of the oldest resident it appears likely that the fence-viewers may have to view fences.

Fogs and Plane Damage Delay Lindbergh Hop

Ocean Flier and Wife Visit Her Mother in Maine; May Fly Today.

North Haven, Me., July 10 (A.P.). Fogs and minor damage to their powerful monoplane today delayed Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh on their flight northward to Greenland.

They lingered today and tonight at the summer home here of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh, and visited their son, Jon, and the flier's mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh.

Unconcerned over difficulties which prevented him from reaching Halifax, Nova Scotia, his destination yesterday, Col. Lindbergh indicated he would take off tomorrow morning on his airway-mapping flight, provided weather conditions were right.

Expectation that the famous flier would reach Halifax tomorrow afternoon came from Collector of Customs W. C. Acker, of that city, who reported he had received a message to that effect from Col. Lindbergh.

Fog conditions which forced the Lindberghs to swerve inland and alight last night on South Pond at South Warren prevailed to a lesser extent today. Visibility was better, however, and after a delay caused when the plane's pontoons became mired in the bed of the pond, they made a fast 10-minute flight to the Morrow home here.

Arriving over the island at 9:30 a. m. (E. S. T.), they circled and dropped to an easy landing in the little cove at the head of the Morrow estate and immediately entered the house. The family was in strict seclusion.

It was from this spot and in the same fast, low-winged plane that the Lindberghs departed on their flight to the Orient two years ago.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dorman, a Rockland shoe merchant, who proffered hospitality after the fliers had alighted unannounced on the surface of South Pond last night.

During the evening, Col. Lindbergh hiked to the nearest telephone, in a garage 2 miles distant, and telephoned for a replacement cable on the plane, reported to have snapped on the journey up the coast from New York.

Austro-Canadian Trade Pact Is Made Effective

Ottawa, July 10 (A.P.).—The new trade agreement between Austria and Canada went into effect today. It was completed last week. Before the war the trade between the two countries was considerable, and it is expected that the new pact will bring back substantial exchange of goods.

Italian Armada Poised For Flight to Labrador

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 10 (A.P.). Gen. Italo Balbo announced tonight that unless weather conditions grew less favorable he intended to order the 24 Italian seaplanes en route to Chicago to take off for Cartwright, Labrador, at 3 a. m. (11 p. m., Eastern standard time).

After lunch, the Italian air minister ordered his companions to rest.

Exchequer Head Says Higher Prices Are First Essential.

Tells House of Commons He Does Not Criticize Roosevelt Stand.

London, July 10 (A.P.).—A virtual unity of purpose of the governments of the United States and Great Britain was proclaimed tonight by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, in the House of Commons' closing debate on the government's policy in the World Economic Conference.

Cheers greeted the chancellor's declaration that "there is no doubt that the avowed policy of this country and the United States are closely parallel to one another."

"It is the declared intention of the government to pursue by all means in their power any measures which they think will tend toward raising price levels, which we believe to be the first essential," he said.

Sees Trade Improvement.

"I also agree that this country should not depend wholly upon what is done in conjunction with other countries but that we should do what we can to help ourselves. That is what we have been doing and we have met with a considerable measure of success, sterling figures of commodities having risen from the first of the year no less than 8 per cent.

"We have really at last begun to see signs that show unmistakably that improvement is not a fleeting one, that it has a solid foundation and may be expected to continue."

Mr. Chamberlain declared he had not appeared in the House of Commons to criticize Mr. Roosevelt but that he had to defend the government from the charge of being credulous or simple minded, as the opposition held, in supposing Mr. Roosevelt could have considered even a temporary form of stabilization.

Price Raising Indorsed.

"At the beginning of the conference officials from the United States Treasury came over, duly authorized to discuss this very question," he said, being interrupted at this point by cheers, "and his majesty's government was fully justified in thinking that the matter was open for consideration.

"What afterward happened might be described in this way: That there came a time in the United States when public sentiment in the United States closely connected the depreciation of the dollar with the rise in commodity prices * * * then it was impossible for the President to agree even to temporary stabilization without running the very serious risk of giving check to the policy to which he had set his hand."

The American price-raising program received a general, and in some instances enthusiastic indorsement during the debate, which was followed with the greatest interest by the American delegation.

Coast Resident, 75, Sees Ocean First Time

Albany, Oreg., July 10 (A.P.).—All of his life, D. W. Tyler, 75, has lived within 100 miles of the Pacific Ocean. This week he saw it for the first time.

"The ocean is much like I had expected it to be from reading about it," Tyler observed. "Just the same, I got a big thrill out of my first sight of it."

Eastman Starts Investigation of Rail Economies

J. R. Turney Is Named to Study Modernizing of Freight Service.

(Associated Press.)

A study of ways to economize on the handling of freight and passengers by American railroads is to be started immediately under the administration's railroad coordination plan.

Joseph B. Eastman, the Federal coordinator of transportation, announced yesterday that the freight inquiry would be begun immediately under the direction of J. R. Turney, of St. Louis, a vice president of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Co.

Eastman said in his announcement that the freight service section would seek to modernize freight service "to meet the changed conditions brought about by competition with the railroads of motor trucks and other transportation agencies."

Groups Meet Friday.

"Especially," he added, "it will deal with the methods of handling less than carload freight, including the utilization of containers, demountable truck bodies and similar new types of equipment, reduction in weight of equipment, the problem presented by the car-forwarding companies, the relation of the railway express agency to the situation, store-door delivery and the use of motor trucks as auxiliaries to or substitutes for rail service particularly in terminal areas."

He added that a similar unit would be created to deal with passenger service and its improvement or possibly the passenger and freight services might be combined under one head.

The railroads have chosen coordinating committees for the East, West and Southeast, and on next Friday Eastman will meet here with these committees.

In addition to the central organization at Washington, there will be regional organizations similar to the regional coordinating committees named by the railroads. In each, there will be a regional director and under him specialists in various phases of operation.

To Study Car Pooling.

These regional subdivisions of the coordinator's organization will keep in contact with the carriers' committees to help the coordinator select matters to be studied. At times the regional directors also may conduct investigations on their own account.

Eastman yesterday also named O. C. Castle, of Houston, Tex., superintendent of transportation for Louisiana and Texas for the Southern Pacific Co., as director of the car pooling section. This section will deal with methods of reducing the unnecessary hauling of empty cars.

A study of railroad purchasing of materials and supplies will be under the direction of R. L. Lockwood, of Washington, D. C.

As regional directors Eastman named: Eastern, H. J. German, of Pittsburgh, Pa., president of the Montour Railroad; Western, V. V. Boatner, of Chicago, Ill., former president of the Chicago Great Western Railroad, and Southern, C. E. Weaver, of Savannah, Ga., general manager of the Central of Georgia Railroad.

Whisky Charges Go to U. S. Court

Pleading guilty to a charge of manufacture and possession of whisky, George Johnson, Negro, Lusby, Md., was held for action of the Federal Court at a hearing yesterday before United States Commissioner Frank Parran at Marlboro.

Leonard Johnson, Edward Dawkins and Louis Dent, Negro, residents of Lusby have been notified that warrants have been sworn out against them on the same charge, Commissioner Parran stated. The four are alleged to have been found in the vicinity of a 300-gallon still near their home, July 5.

Allie Cofer, Negro, Indianhead, Md., and Joseph Day, Negro, Pomfret, Md., are being held in the Marlboro Jail as the result of a Federal raid on a still near Marshall Corner, Md. Earl R. Cargill, Pomfrey, also found at the still, was released on $1 000 bond. All were charged with manufacture and possession of whisky.

Scientist Taken By Death at 50

Harold DeForest Arnold, director of research of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, died at his home on Westminister road, Summit, N. J., early yesterday of a heart attack. He was born in Woodstock, Conn., September 3, 1883.

He was one of the scientists who laid the foundation for what is now the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc. Dr. Arnold's contributions to knowledge have been in the field of telephone transmission, the vacuum tube and magnetic materials.

Dr. Arnold is survived by his widow, Mrs. Leila Beeman Arnold, and two daughters, Mrs. Ludwig C. Browman and Mrs. M. B. White, both of Chicago.

Hurling a threat at the underworld Senator Royal S. Copeland, (Democrat), New York, last night asked Department of Justice agents to enter the search for John J. O'Connell, jr., of Albany, N. Y., believed to be in the hands of kidnapers.

Informed of the incident, Copeland said sternly:

"We accept this challenge. We must clean out this nest of underworld rats."

Leighton Rogers to Frame Code of Aviation Industry

New Executive Secretary Also Will Reorganize Aero Chamber.

Leighton Rogers, new executive secretary of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, was assigned two important jobs by the board which unanimously selected him to direct the chamber. He is to reorganize the chamber and assemble the views of the industry into a code for submission to the director of the Industrial Control Board.

Rogers, well known in Washington because of his former connection with the Department of Commerce as chief of the Aeronautics Division, was the unanimous choice of the governors of the chamber. They adopted a reorganization program which it is believed will meet with the approval of a large section of the industry not previously represented on their rolls. The board expressed its belief that the Aeronautical Chamber hereafter will be wholly representative of the entire industry and its true spokesman in all matters related to the operation of the industrial recovery act.

Thomas A. Morgan, president of the chamber, announced that the Consolidated Aircraft Co., and the Douglas Co., not previously members, had announced their intention of joining, upon receipt of news of the reorganization.

Judge Mattingly Decides Equity Action to Oust Members Is Void.

The long and hard-fought battle between members of the Hyattsville (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department and the village town council, ended temporarily last night, when it was announced that Judge Joseph C. Mattingly, of the Prince Georges County Circuit Court, had dismissed an equity suit against the firemen for lack of grounds.

Starting last January, the fight will probably continue when and if the town council files a law suit, discussed at their monthly meeting last night.

The original battle began when the Mayor and Town Council expressed a belief that the fire department, apparatus and funds belonged to the town. The department thought differently.

Then the council appointed a new fire fighting force. The old one, however, refused to move out and "dug in." Day and night the volunteer firemen remained in their quarters, refusing admittance to anyone except fellow members.

The equity suit was filed in an effort to force their removal. And now, with nothing else to do, the council is preparing to take further steps.

Mob Abandons Lynch Threats

State assistance and asserted emphatically that they do not intend to move the prisoner to another county to shield him from threatened mob violence. The threats, they say, are "just talk."

The State policemen began to arrive early in the afternoon, after police heard that a mob of men had assembled at 1 a. m. yesterday with the avowed purpose of taking the prisoner from the jail and lynching him.

False rumors that Circuit Court Judge D. Mitchell Diggs had secreted guards in the court house deterred them from the proposed lynching. The group had a midnight rendezvous 10 miles from La Plata, and were about to start on their mission when the rumor was heard.

The little farm community of Waldorf, where Mrs. Reifschneider was brutally slain with an ax on Saturday, vibrated yesterday with rumors that Bernard Ades, an attorney for the International Labor Defense, a radical organization, is coming to La Plata to defend the confessed slayer.

Attorney Is Threatened.

"If he comes into this town, we'll get him, too," the angered farmers threatened.

Ades is the attorney who defended Ewel "Orphan Jones" Lee, who is now awaiting execution for killing the entire family of Green Davis, near Berlin, Md., 18 months ago. This case has been appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court.

As threats flew up and down the countryside, Sheriff Cooksey summoned all his deputies and they are augmenting the detail of State police. Demands are being made to summon a grand jury to hear the case against Jupiter, instead of waiting for the next term of the grand jury in November.

A group of men stopped near the two-story brick county jail early yesterday, according to Sersey, the colored jail keeper, and asked to see Jupiter. "I told them I wouldn't come out and I wouldn't let anyone see him," he said. The aged jail keeper is locked behind two iron-grated doors.

Hearing Set for Tomorrow.

The farmers who held the meeting in the early morning hours ranged from young striplings to aged and bent grandfathers. All were stern-lipped and steely eyed as they discussed their plans to take the prisoner.

Grueshon Reifschneider, the stepson of the slain woman, disclosed that he had been threatened with a knife in the hand of the colored man a few hours before his stepmother was slain. "I'm boss around here," the prisoner is alleged to have warned him during a dispute. The 19-year-old stepson left the house and did not return until he had heard of the murder of his mother.

The alleged killer will be given a preliminary hearing tomorrow morning before Justice of the Peace R. H. Lee Reich.

Friends of slain woman throughout the countryside are planning to attend her funeral today from the Calvert Methodist Church. The burial will be in a nearby churchyard.

U. S. Agencies Ordered to Aid Racketeer Quiz

Senator Warns of Kidnap Danger as President Shows Interest.

Unemployed bootleggers, forced out of work by the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, will turn to kidnaping, Senator Copeland, of New York, predicted yesterday as President Roosevelt, taking a personal interest in the project, ordered all Government agencies to aid the Senate subcommittee investigating racketeering.

Senator Copeland is chairman of the subcommittee. He was summoned to Washington by Col. Louis M. Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, who sent word of the President's personal interest in the investigation. He will hold a conference with Attorney General Cummings today, Senator Copeland said yesterday.

"The economic waste of racketeering is from $10,000,000,000 to $15,000,000,000 a year," he pointed out. "This is three or four times the cost of Government. I have no doubt that the bootleggers will turn to kidnaping when the eighteenth amendment is repealed."

The investigation is now going on in New York, Chicago, and Detroit. Hearings will be held soon, probably in New York. At present the subcommittee is gathering material on the scope and exact nature of the various rackets.

It is likely that the subcommittee will draft legislation covering interstate commerce in machine guns. Senator Copeland said that 87 machine guns had already been found in the hands of private persons in Chicago. The subcommittee also is trying to find a way to extradite witnesses, who are safe at present when in another State.

World Narcotic Pact Formally Ratified Here

Treaty of 39 Nations Expected to Suppress Evils of Traffic.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt yesterday proclaimed American ratification of the treaty for regulation of international traffic in narcotic drugs.

The pact, with 39 signatories, was negotiated at Geneva two years ago and approved by the Senate with reservations safeguarding American rights to impose regulatory restrictions even more rigid than those of the treaty.

The State Department issued a statement saying it confidently expected the pact "to constitute an effective and important step in the direction of suppressing the evils of the illicit drug traffic and of reducing the production of narcotic drugs to the amounts needed for medical and scientific purposes." It added:

"The advantage of the treaty to the United States lies in the fact that it limits the quantities of dangerous drugs manufactured in other countries, renders much stricter the control abroad of the legitimate trade in these substances and affords better facilities for suppressing the illicit traffic.

"The principal problem of narcotic law enforcement in the United States is that of preventing the unlawful introduction of narcotic drugs, and particularly of derivatives of opium and coca leaf. It is foreign overproduction—that is, total production over and above the amount needed for medical and scientific purposes—which supplies the illicit international traffic.

"The domestic manufacture of the drugs in the United States is limited so closely to the medical needs of the country that diversion of the home manufacturers' product is comparatively negligible, and the illicit traffic finds its source of supply in drugs which are smuggled in from abroad."

The signatory nations follow: France, Germany, Great Britain, Switzerland, Netherlands, Turkey, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Cuba, India, Italy, Mexico, Monaco, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Belgium, Dominican Republic, Egypt, Lithuania, Bulgaria, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Persia, Peru, Sudan, Salvador, Czechoslovakia, Free City of Danzig, Equador, Irish Free State, Poland, Roumania, Guatemala, Hungary and Uruguay.

Two Women Robbed In Chasleton Hotel

A sneak thief entered the bedroom window of a first-floor apartment in the Chastleton Hotel last night and, while Misses Jean Colwell and Helen Brook sat in an adjoining room, escaped with a small amount of cash from the women's purses.

Miss Colwell apparently frightened the intruder when she entered the room. She glimpsed a shadowy figure as the thief leaped from a window.

Errant Wife Aids Slayer

Former Rug Company Owner, Who Killed Her Paramour After Phone Taunts, Caught After 2 Years; Woman Is Repentent.

St. Louis, July 10 (A.P.).—Aid to John T. Traylor, former rug company proprietor, who admittedly slew the man who stole his wife, was promised tonight by Mrs. Traylor.

Traylor was arrested late last night as he waited for a car to Alton, Ill., by Police Sergt. Elmer Morrision, one of two officers in St. Louis who knew him. He had been a fugitive for two years.

He is held on a temporary warrant charging the murder of Timothy Lahart, restaurant proprietor, and Mrs. Ruth Lewis, wife of Lahart's partner. Mrs. Lewis allegedly was killed by a stray bullet intended for Lahart.

Tonight Mrs. Marie Traylor visited her husband at the jail. "James was a wonderful husband, and I'm all to blame for this," she said. "I don't know why I ever left him.

"But I'm going to stand by him now. I'll help him all I can."

Her husband asked if she had obtained a divorce.

"No," she answered. "Are you going to get one?"

He shook his head.

"Do you still love me," she asked haltingly.

"Uh-huh," she said, and she smiled through the bars.

Traylor said Lahart wooed and won his wife while he was in a hospital recuperating from injuries received in France during the World War. She had been left in charge of the rug business.

"So I came back," he explained, "and my wife was gone. No bills had been paid and no money collected. I found she'd gone with Lahart. He'd even taken my furniture."

Then, when Lahart telephoned and "kidded" him about taking his wife, furniture and money, Traylor said he obtained a gun, went to Lahart's restuarant and, after being threatened, shot and killed the cafe owner.

He fled to Mexico, and returned to the United States after a year's absence, he continued.

D. C. Man Jailed In Theft Case

Wilmington, Del., July 10 (A.P.). Charged with stealing $100 worth of clothing belonging to Shriners on their way to Atlantic City from the Middle West, Ernest Peacher, who said his home was in Washington, D. C., was arrested today and held in $1,000 bail for the grand jury.

Police said the man boarded the Shriners' special train at Washington, took the clothing from a baggage car, left the train here, and was arrested while trying to pawn it.

The clothing was turned over to Harry McGuire, of Valley Junction, Iowa, and Fred Brondel, Des Moines, after they had identified it as their property.

Plans Own Plea.

MRS. ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT, who plans to seek a divorce on a cross complaint, according to press reports.

Wife of Young Roosevelt to Get Divorce Decree

President's Son Will Step Aside to Let Spouse Win Verdict.

Reno, Nev., July 10 (U.P.).—Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt, wife of the President's second son, who is establishing residence at Lake Tahoe, has retained Lester Summerfield, prominent Reno attorney, and will seek a divorce from Elliott Roosevelt on a cross-complaint, it was revealed today.

Summerfield said he had been retained as Mrs. Roosevelt's counsel. He said he understood young Roosevelt would file suit at Minden, probably on Wednesday or Thursday.

As soon as the complaint is filed Mrs. Roosevelt will sign her cross-complaint at Philadelphia and it will be airmailed to Summerfield. This should require two or three days and the divorce will be granted on Saturday or Monday, it was understood.

Mrs. Roosevelt will not make a personal appearance in the court.

The procedure of Elliott Roosevelt establishing residence in Nevada and then stepping aside allowing his wife to obtain the decree on a cross-complaint was followed by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Harry Bannister in his divorce from Ann Harding, and several others.

Nevada divorce laws provide that when two persons are at fault, the one least guilty of marital wrong shall be awarded the decree.

President May Set Codes' Time Limit

Roosevelt. Leaving the executive offices, Mr. Taylor said he expected a finished code would be submitted to the recovery administration very soon.

The steel leader deprecated talk of serious disagreement with the administration but made no answer when informed Gen. Johnson had said the code had been returned three times as inadequate. It was said that Mr. Taylor had been asked to the White House because of reports that many influential captains in the industry were contemplating a policy of noncooperation. Mr. Taylor, however, told the President a code would be submitted promptly.

Wide disagreement is reported in the oil industry. Some have proposed submission of different codes for various groups. This, however, is not in line with the policy Gen. Johnson has said is the desirable one. He believes codes should govern as large units of industry as practicable.

The blunt-speaking recovery administrator had a hectic day. He was plain-spoken before a meeting of industrial leaders in the Mayflower Hotel under the auspices of the National Association of Manufacturers and later in the day be bluntly told a combined session of the three administration advisory boards that he would keep them in session all night until they reached a decision.

The three boards, representing industry, labor and consumers, argued throughout the day the best methods of speeding up establishment of codes and the wisdom of this and that safeguard to meet objections of the reluctant. Unable to agree at 6 o'clock, another session was called for 8 p. m.

One of the difficulties in getting major industries to submit codes revolves about objections by employers to the real or feared advantages given organized labor under the section which requires that codes must guarantee the right of collective bargaining.

Many industrial leaders, operating on open-shop basis, want to continue on that basis. They get warm under the collar about possibility of giving power to the American Federation of Labor or other large labor unions. They complain that the labor leaders are planning to make the law the vehicle for increasing their membership. So serious has been this objection that Gen. Johnson made public a formal statement in which he emphasized that the recovery administration does not intend and will not permit itself to become an organizing tool for labor. Many employers, confronted with the collective bargaining provision, are engaged in trying to organize intracompany unions, and many are reported to have done so. These are not satisfactory to organized labor.

The urge for speed felt by the President and his aids comes from the increase in production and prices, as well as hours of labor, in some cases, before there has been an adequate increase in wages and employment to provide the purchasing power necessary to keep going the upward business trend. Officials fear that unless there is an increase in purchasing power there might result a sag which would work much harm and set at naught what has been done so far.

Illinois Voted Land Bank Aid On Mortgages

Federal System Will Open Branch Office Monday at Springfield.

(Associated Press.)

Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration, announced yesterday that Illinois had been chosen as the second State in which the Federal Land Bank system would undertake the refinancing of mortgages held by closed and restricted banks.

At the same time Mr. Morgenthau disclosed that the administration planned to set up complete organizations in one State in each of the twelve Land Bank districts, and to set up a model organization in one district within a month. ByJanuary 1, he said, it was expected that all twelve districts would be organized.

A branch office will be established in Springfield, Ill., on Monday. As was done in Wisconsin, the first State where general financing of farm mortgages in closed banks was undertaken by the Farm Credit Administration, an augmented force of land appraisers will be sent into the State.

Announcement of the mortgage refinancing program in Illinois was made after a conference between Mr. Morgenthau and William Bain, chief banking examiner in Illinois, and Emmett J. McCarthy, attorney for the Illinois State auditor. Albert S. Goss, Land Bank commissioner, and Wood Netherland, president of the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, also were present.

Morgenthau said he had applied to the Reconstruction Corporation for a special loan of $25,000,000 for the refinancing program in Illinois.

Starting out with 210 appraisers, the administration now has 600 at work, and 400 more are receiving special training, Mr. Morgenthau said. These appraisers are being recruited largely from instructors and graduate students in agricultural colleges.

Gov. Horner of Illinois approved the refinancing plan in a telephone conversation with Mr. Morgenthau.

Ability to Decide Home Loan Jobs

would have been dropped, Secretary of Commerce Roper said. The bureau's domestic field force recently was cut to 90 employes. National Recovery Administrator Johnson said his agency is absorbing some 60 employes who would have been furloughed or dismissed from other departments.

The Cabinet Advisory Board yesterday fixed a maximum wage limit of $6,000 for any employe in the Recovery Administration, and Gen. Johnson insisted the limitation be made to apply to his own salary.

Refusal of Chairman Stevenson to give preference to Civil Service employes forced out of old-line agencies by economy pressure came in the face of a drive by organized Federal employes to find other Government places for the growing list of Federal jobless.

"We are not limited by law in making appointments," Mr. Stevenson said, referring to the corporation's exemption from Civil Service qualifications. We will select whom we please, on a basis of fitness."

Farley Consulted.

He said Postmaster General Farley frequently is consulted in the matter of appointments, but does not insist that his recommendations be followed.

Absorption of Federal retrenchment victims in the new emergency set-ups is one of the principal objectives of the new Civil Service Reinstatement League, which will send a delegation to the White House in the next few days to ask the President to intervene.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, who will head the delegation, will seek today to arrange the audience. Mr. Green conferred with Recovery Administrator Johnson last night. The labor chief plans a joint conference of all organizations connected with the American Federation of Labor, having Federal employe membership, to formulate a program for handling Federal problems jointly. The conference will be held in the near future.

David R. Glass, vice president of the American Federation of Federal Employes, said the purpose is to form a "code" for Federal employes, corresponding to the industrial codes called for under the national recovery program.

Another Cut Foreseen.

Release of another large block of Federal employes when reorganization orders become effective August 10 was foreshadowed here yesterday. Comptroller General McCarl ruled that all employes affected by reorganization orders, including Presidential appointees, must automatically be dropped. Afterward, they may be rehired by the successor organization.

The decision was rendered in response to a request by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

The Comptroller ruled:

"Section 404 of the economy act as amended by the act of March 3, 1933, directs the President to dispose of the personnel of any agency transferred, consolidated or eliminated. The first paragraph of Section 19 of the executive order of June 10, 1933, provides that each agency all the functions of which are consolidated with another agency is abolished, and the last paragraph of said section, which is the only portion of the Executive order disposing of personnel, directs that all personnel employed in connection with the work of an abolished agency or function disposed of shall be separated from the service of the United States, no exception being made of Presidential appointees."

Women Urged to Patronize Own Sex in Professions

Illinois Attorney Attributes Lack of Clients to Their Ancient Habit of Revering Men; Research Field Open, Says Report.

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—American women must be educated to patronize and support the members of their own sex, delegates to the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's biennial convention were told today.

A paper prepared by Mrs. Laura B. Harris, of Casper, Wyo., read in her absence to the lawyer's round table section of the convention, brought the issue to the fore.

Mrs. Harris, believed to be the only woman legal adviser to a State Senate, detailed tribulations of a woman seeking topnotch recognition in the legal profession and said not until women learned to support women would a feminine President of the United States become a possibility.

Other speakers listed a variety of reasons why women do not natronize women more generally in the legal field. One suggested the feminine client only comes to the woman lawyer when seeking a cut rate. Lydia Lee, a Missouri lawyer, said most women owning property have inherited it and "know little about handling it."

"They don't believe there are other women who do, and they should be educated to the fact that there are," she said.

Martha L. Connole, East St. Louis, Ill., attorney, said: "Women's attitude is the one they have had for years. They are taught from childhood to revere men. It gets to be a habit. And it can't be changed unless women band together to do so."

Sue S. White, of Washington, D. C., an attorney and executive secretary of the women's division of the Democratic national committee, urged women to get into the limelight of public office until they no longer attract attention as novelties.

An address by Judge M. M. Monk, of Berlin, Germany, gave an international angle to the problem. She said women preferred men lawyers because women lawyers as yet were curiosities.

A national uniform marriage bill was advocated in a paper prepared by Judge Camille Kelley, of Memphis, Tenn., and read to the meeting. It was opposed by Vivian Grace Gibson, of St. Paul, Minn. Helene Schmidt, of Middletown, Ohio, presided as chairman.

At the medical round-table, Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton, of Winter Park, Fla., said there was room for more women in the medical profession, especially as research workers.

The nursing group likewise heard it stated that although the profession in general is overcrowded there are opportunities in specialized fields.

A real shortage of nurses exists in the rural communities, Mrs. Mabel Gregson, county nurse, of Burlingame, Calif., said.

Ten Eyck Calls Norris Tool of Waterway Bloc

Bone Also Is 'Cat's Paw' of St. Lawrence Project Interests, He Says.

Albany, N. Y., July 10 (A.P.).—Former Representative Peter C. Ten Eyck, president of the New York State Waterways Association, today charged that United States Senators Norris, of Nebraska, and Bone, of Washington, are "being used as cat's paws" by proponents of the St. Lawrence development project "to promote a scheme which the interests are delicate about supporting openly."

The charge was contained in a public statement prompted by the senators' visit to northeastern New York last week, when they looked over the site of the proposed water-power development at the Massena Rapids, in the St. Lawrence River. A treaty to permit this development and the construction of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence ship canal is now being considered in Washington.

Ten Eyck, who is chairman of the Albany port commission and a militant opponent of the St. Lawrence canal plan, called for a real, impartial, economic survey and investigation" of the St. Lawrence development project.

"We are again confronted," he said, "with wild statements of proponents of the St. Lawrence project of undue influence being used in opposition to its construction, the same as we have had generalities as to its advantages instead of setting forth sound, economic reasoning in its favor. * * * I have consistently opposed the St. Lawrence project from an economic, patriotic and business standpoint and from the taxpayer's common sense point of view.

"The proponents have camouflaged this most important project without giving any economic reasons or arguments in its favor. In Senator Bone's speech at Ogdensburg he said: 'Those hydro stations take one man or none to operate. The labor cost in producing power is the lowest of any business in the world for the amount of money invested.'

"In this statement he admits that my argument that the St. Lawrence project would not relieve unemployment is absolutely correct.

"The senators' trip to the St. Lawrence at this time was cleverly camouflaged propaganda."

Antiprohibitionists See Action by 36 States During 1933.

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—Illinois and Iowa today became States Nos. 10 and 11 in the formal ratification of the proposed twenty-first amendment to repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The new amendment must be ratified by 36 States before it becomes effective. To date 16 States have voted popularly for repeal. None has voted for retention. Five of the 16 States have yet to hold formal ratification conventions.

Saturday President Roosevelt issued a public appeal urging prompt ratification to redeem the campaign pledges of the Democratic party. Leaders of the antiprohibition movement were certain that the necessary 36 States would take action before the end of the year.

Prohibitionists predicted that more than the necessary thirteen States would block repeal. The dry forces concentrated their efforts in Alabama and Arkansas, which vote July 18.

Dunnock, Earl Patton and William Hobell were found in Keedysville, near here, early today by Arthur Lee Towson, manager of the farm and Hobell was captured immediately.

When the other two ran, Towson fired at them, wounding Dunnock. Patton escaped and was at large today. Hobell was returned to the farm.

Only a few villagers attended the funeral service at which the widow, the former Marion Baker, was dressed entirely in white. Twelve farmers acted as the bearers.

The widow, who was the nurse of Sir Reginald's mother, went to Waterloo in 1930, from England to inform him of his mother's last wish, that he return to his native land.

Early Finding Of Factor Seen By U. S. Sleuth

Wife of Missing Speculator Quizzed on Genuineness of His Kidnaping.

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—The United States Bureau of Investigation has entered the Factor case and Melvin Purvis, chief inspector of the Chicago office, today said the bureau expected to find the missing speculator within a few days.

Purvis revealed that his men had closely questioned Mrs. Rella Factor, wife of John Factor, her brother, William (Red) Cohen, and A. L. Epstein, attorney, in efforts to determine if the abduction nine days ago was genuine.

Epstein was taken along with Factor when two automobile loads of armed men supposedly kidnaped Factor July 1. The attorney said the men held him but a few minutes and released him.

Purvis refused to state what the questioning of the trio revealed. "Our job is investigation," he said. "We are investigating the Factor case and we expect to find Factor. It doesn't interest us whether he has been kidnaped or went away for some reason known only to himself. Our orders are to locate him."

Mrs. Factor revealed she had received four letters containing ransom demands which she believed had been sent by cranks. The letters, all of which have been received in the last few days, have been turned over to Purvis. One letter, it was said, contained a demand for $200,000 ransom but added that a compromise offer of $75,000 would be accepted. Contents of the letters were not revealed.

Ousted Georgia Officials Lose Fight for Jobs

Federal Judge Denies Plea to Regain Places on Road Board.

Gainsville, Ga., July 10 (A.P.).—Ousted members of the State Highway Board today lost their attempt to break Gov. Talmadge's martial law grip on the road department by Federal intervention.

United States District Judge E. Marvin Underwood dismissed the suit for injunction brought by Capt. J. W. Barnett, ousted chairman, and W. C. Vereen, deposed member of the State Highway Board.

Barnett and Vereen sought to end martial law and gain their places back on the board through Federal order. They were ousted by the governor when they refused to discharge five engineers, and filed suit in State courts to prevent the governor's spending of impounded highway money in the treasury.

Adjt. Gen. Lindley Camp and Jud P. Wilhoit, the lone highway board member still holding his job, were also named in the Federal court injunction.

Since taking charge under military rule, which prevented interference by State courts, the governor has paid employes salaries due them from April 1, when his controversy started with the highway board and has paid out additional funds to contractors and also reduced the cost of operations.

Judge Underwood upheld the contention of Attorney General M. J. Yeomans that the 1931 act reorganizing the State government, gave him sole control over legal matters for all departments. He claimed that under this act members of the highway board had no right to hire attorneys without the consent of himself and the governor, and therefore, had no standing in the courts.

Soon after the decision, attorneys for Barnett and Vereen filed another petition for injunction, naming the ousted commissioners individually. The first suit was brought in the name of the highway commission.

Judge Underwood ordered the case tried before a three-judge court July 17.

Holes in Dam Site Ground May Force Location Change

Tennessee Valley Board Chief Orders Project Survey to Test Feasibility.

(Associated Press.)

The Tennessee Valley Authority has found so many holes in the ground around the site for the proposed $35,000,000 Cove Creek Dam in Tennessee that it has ordered a survey to determine whether the location will have to be changed.

Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the board, said yesterday after an inspection tour of the site, near Knoxville, that geologists had been put to work surveying the scores of caves and subterranean channels near the dam's proposed location to determine whether the project was feasible.

Mr. Morgan said the survey was likely to delay construction work.

Earlier the authority had announced plans for acquiring all the land within about 3 miles of the site, but warned owners against granting options on their property to be used for speculative purposes.

Mr. Morgan said that the discovery of so many caves in the limestone terrain around the Cove Creek site might "throw a money wrench" into the plans, but that he did not know yet how serious it might be.

Army engineers previously had reported many caves, Mr. Morgan said, but ten more had been found for every one reported.

Mr. Morgan made it plain that the Valley Authority did not propose to spend $35,000,000 in building a dam and then find all the water leaking out through these holes.

The same caution is being exercised in other directions, Mr. Morgan said, and it is now impossible to determine when construction will begin. He said plans still were indefinite on the fertilizer plant and transmission lines.

The board chairman conferred yesterday with President Roosevelt and discussed plans for taking care of the land owners who would be driven out of the Cove Creek Basin.

Swift's Estate Is Sued to Regain $37,308,646

Claim Is Based on Packer's Directorship of Defunct Insull Company.

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—An attempt to recover $37,308,646 from the personal fortunes of the men who piloted Corporation Securities Co. on its ill-fated balloon ascension into the region of high finance was begun today.

A claim for that amount was filed in probate court against the $5,000,000 estate of the late Edward F. Swift, packer.

Until his death in a fall from his apartment window a year ago, Swift was a director of the $150,000,000 Insull Investment Trust. He died three months after Corporation Securities was adjudged bankrupt and placed in a trustee's hands. The assets left for bondholders and stockholders after the balloon burst were insignificant.

R. F. Locke, counsel for the trustee in bankruptcy, presented the claim against the Swift estate and asserted civil proceedings against other officers and directors of the defunct concern will follow. All will be predicated on the charge that they were responsible and accountable for losses due to "fraudulent" dealings in stock intended to bolster the market for Corporation Securities shares.

From each officer and director, Locke said, the trustees will try to regain the millions alleged to have been fraudulently spent. The same group has already been indicted by the Federal grand jury on fraud charges punishable on conviction by 125 years in prison and $250,000 fines for each defendant. Further, there is pending a bondholder's suit to recover $23,233,000 from the directors on the allegation their maladministratoin brought about the default of the debentures.

Paper Describes Mattern's Escape

river bank, his scanty food supply having given out after three days of wandering. What he did for food the remainder of the time was not brought out by the correspondent but it was felt here that he probably put a rifle given him in Khabarovsk to good use, avoiding starvation by shooting small game.

Reaching the river he saw two small boats going down-stream but the occupants of neither observed his frantic signals from the shore and passed him by, the dispatch said.

On the ninth day he moved a short distance downstream to a bend in the river where it was narrower but the days passed without sign of another boat. To protect himself from cold and wind, he improvised a small hut of scrub growth in which he remained six more days, the Khabarovsk correspondent reported.

On the night of June 29, two more boats passed down the river. They were manned by native fishermen who, this time, saw his signal and took him to their camp about 11 miles from Anadyr and there they gave him food and he slept. Shortly afterward he was taken to the coast, a short distance away, where natives brought a Soviet frontier guard to his assistance.

The guard, which had been on the lookout for the missing aviator for some days in response to instructions from Moscow, took Mattern immediately to Anadyr Village, where everything was done to make him comfortable.

Instruments Saved.

After Mattern had slept and eaten sufficiently, the dispatch related, he requested the frontier guard to go to his plane and remove the engine and all the instruments, having decided to abandon the ship because it was impossible to make repairs to enable it to take off again. The guard's expedition was reported to have returned later with the motor and instruments.

Nenana, Alaska, July 10 (A.P.).—The Mattern rescue plane, piloted by Robert Ellis, Alaska flier, landed here today to refuel and took off again for Nome, 500 miles westward.

A plane piloted by Robert Ellis, an Alaska flier, and carrying William Alexander, Fred Fetterman and Thomas Abbey, left Juneau, in southeastern Alaska, early this morning en route to Nome, where they expected to meet Jimmie Mattern.

Alexander and his companions left New York several days ago in a plane which they planned to fly to Siberia to Mattern's aid. They planned to continue from Nome to where Mattern's plane was wrecked, but Mattern's backers in New York today said a Russian plane would carry Mattern to Nome.

(Associated Press.)

Jimmie Mattern's solo flight around the world may fall 300 miles short of completion as a result of his crash in Siberia. The Texas flier now appears likely to make the stretch from Anadyr, Siberia, to Nome, Alaska, as a passenger in a seaplane of the Soviet government.

Irving Friedman, of New York, backer of the Mattern relief fliers now in Juneau, Alaska, yesterday informed Boris Skvirsky, chief of the Soviet Information Bureau, in Washington, that he had a telegram from William Alexander, in charge of the relief fliers, saying that Mattern was willing to fly back to Nome in a Soviet plane and would continue from Alaska, eastward, in an American ship.

Friedman's message said the change of plans was necessary because of the long time it would take to repair Mattern's smashed plane or send him a new machine. Friedman asked Skvirsky to have the Soviet commissar of foreign affairs inform Mattern regarding arrangements for the flight over the Bering Sea and a message was immediately sent to Moscow by Skvirsky.

Coast Guard headquarters said it had not heard today from the cutter Northland, which has been in communication with Mattern.

Vanonsburg, Pa., July 10 (A.P.). A 4-year-old girl was burned to death today and her mother died in a futile and unnecessary effort to save her.

The girl, Betty Packard, had already been carried fatally burned, from a blazing house when the mother, Mrs. Leona Packard, 45, ran into the residence, thinking the child was there.

The fire started with the overturning of a kerosene lamp in the girl's room. Neighbors carried the child out, but she died several hours later in a hospital. Firemen found Mrs. Packard in the daughter's room, asphyxiated.

2 Men Wounded In $3,500 Holdup

Sears, Roebuck Employe Shot When He Refuses to Give Up Cash.

Pontiac, Mich., July 10 (A.P.).—Two men were wounded and $3,500 in cash was stolen here today when a lone bandit held up two employes of the local Sears, Roebuck Co., office as they were en route to a bank with the money.

L. E. Tappan, an employe, was shot in the hip as he refused to turn over a bag containing the money to the bandit. The bullet plowed through his hip and struck Kenneth Scott, of Keego Harbor, in the knee. Physicians said both would recover.

Tappan, with Gene Starrow, were en route to the First National Bank with the money when approached. Tappan said he refused to turn over the bag when the robber demanded it, and he fired once. He said the man seized the bag and ran down an alley, apparently joining a confederate in an automobile.

The three men have traveled over three States—Tennessee, North Carolina and Gorgia and kidnaped four men since they escaped last week. They have not harmed any of their prisoners, but in each case took the automobiles.

Members of the party said Sands retired soon after sailing and the following morning his body was found on the floor of his cabin. Scars were found on his face and head. Members of the party said the weather was rough and added that he may have fallen from his berth.

Banker Guilty In Plot to Utter Forged Papers

Jury Convicts Indiana, Withdrawing Its Plea For Leniency.

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—A former Indiana banker, John R. Steele, of South Bend, today was convicted by a criminal court jury of conspiracy to utter $41,000 worth of forged tax anticipation warrants drawn on Cook County.

The conviction carries automatic sentence of 1 to 14 years should Judge James F. Fardy overrule Steele's motion for a new trial Friday.

The jury, out about four hours, first sought advice of the judge on a legal point. The judge, absent from the courtroom, could not be reached immediately and before he returned the jury came in with a verdict of guilty, but recommended leniency.

Joseph Powers, defense attorney, demanded a poll. The fourth juror said the verdict was not the way he voted. The judge ordered the jury back into the chambers, saying it was not its right under the instructions to make a recommendation. Ten minutes later the jury again returned, this time with a guilty verdict without recommendations.

The jurors questioned by attorneys, said their difficulty was due to the fact they could not understand why Steele reputedly sold the warrants at about half the quoted price of 85.

Steele was accused of selling forged warrants to Frank Cox, of the Security Trust Co. of Northern Indiana. Cox assisted police in their investigations leading to the arrest of the former banker, P. David Pinkusson, John Ballwin and Thomas Nelson, all accused in the case. The indictment against Pinkusson was nolle prossed and the other two forfeited bonds of $10,000 each.

A statement by Steele at the time of his arrest a few months ago was read to the jury. It said he handled the warrants because he feared for his life after threats from others supposedly involved. Steele later repudiated the statement, saying he was forced to sign it after "kidnaped" by Chicago investigators.

Pittsburgh, July 10 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dr. C. W. Crooke, new superintendent of the Western Pennsylvania Division of the Antisaloon League, says he believes Americans won't go back to "beer guzzling."

"The stomachs of the majority of American citizens are not used to alcoholic beverages," he told members of the Grace Evangelical Church. The league is starting its fight to keep Pennsylvania from ratifying the prohibition repeal amendment.

Benefits Claimed From Recovery Act

Springfield, Mass., July 10 (A.P.). Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said tonight the benefits of the national industrial recovery act are now beginning to be felt.

"The corner has been turned," Harriman told a gathering of business men, "and the economic improvement has all the earmarks of permanency. The act will very properly encourage industrial planning by industry for the joint benefit of itself and of its labor and only as the country moves forward with reasonable uniformity, only as the farmer receives a fair price for his product, the workman a fair wage for his work, and the investor a fair return for his savings, will full prosperity come to America."

Utah Houses Sign Resubmission Plea

Salt Lake City, July 10 (A.P.).—Apparently assuming that resubmission of the State prohibition amendment, barring liquors of more than one-half of one per cent alcoholic content, will come before the special session of the Utah Legislature, a petition to that effect was signed by two-thirds of the members of each house today.

Gov. Henry H. Blood, who summoned the special session to fix the tax levy for the present biennium and to provide means for raising additional revenue, said he would permit the Legislature to vote on resubmission.

A bill providing for manufacture and sale and taxing 3.2 beer in Utah was presented to a caucus of members of the Legislature by Senator Julian M. Mamberger (Democrat), Salt Lake, chairman of a subcommittee named to draft liquor legislation.

First Firemen Officially Enter Capital Parade

New York Group Accepts Invitation Three Days After Mailing.

Three days after invitations were mailed, the fire department of Ebeneezer, N. Y., officially entered the eleventh annual national firemen's Labor Day parade.

Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, who has served as parade marshal for the ten years it has existed, received the notification from the upstate New York company yesterday.

The organization president said his men looked upon the Labor Day event here as the "one big outing for firemen throughout the Nation," and under no circumstances, would they think of missing it. He asked Bargagni for details of the celebration and promised an early arrival.

At the time the sergeant received the first official entry he also had an invitation from the Exempt Firemen's Association, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., urging him to attend their convention August 15, 16, 17 and 18 and to tell them of his parade plans in Washington.

Sergt. Bargagni and committee members plan several such visits in connection with promoting the Labor Day parade. One is contemplated to a convention in Pennsylvania, one to Virginia and one to Delaware.

Meanwhile, details of the parade continued to be discussed and worked out by Sergt. Bargagni and members of the National Firemen's Association and District firefighters who have volunteered for duty on committees.

All firemen from the District department are giving their own time in helping to make this year's parade the most important one in its history.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the District Fire Department also are busy with their part in the parade. Last night they met at the home of Mrs. Logan Woolard, 919 E street southeast.

Arlington Rites To Be Held for Maj. Harrison

Marine Corps Officer Was Killed in Auto Crash in North Carolina.

Funeral services for Maj. William S. Harrison, U. S. M. C., retired, will be held in Arlington National Cemetery. Time and details of the services have not yet been announced. Maj. Harrison was killed in an auto accident near Kings Mountain, N. C., Sunday. He was retired from active duty in the Marine Corps on June 1, 1932, at his own request after 30 years' service. He was 51 years of age and is survived by his wife, Mrs. W. S. Harrison, who resides at 1210 Twelfth street northwest, here.

Maj. Harrison was born April 6, 1882, in Readsville S. C. He enlisted in the United States Marine Corps in May, 1902, serving two enlistments in the ranks. He was discharged as a member of the enlisted personnel January 16, 1909, and on the same day was appointed second lieutenant in the corps.

After completing his course at the Marine Corps Officers School, he served at shore stations and with ships' detachments until April, 1914, when he was assigned to the Expeditionary Brigade being assembled for duty in Mexico.

He was a member of the Twentieth Company Marine Regiment, which disembarked at Vera Cruz, April 30, and remained attached to the American forces in that city until November, 1914. He commanded the American Legation Guard at Managua, Nicaragua, from September, 1916, to April, 1919, and served at a number of posts and stations and in staff capacities until he was retired.

Although details of the accident in which Maj. Harrison lost his life are lacking, it is understood that he attempted to close the rear door of the car while steering the automobile. He received a fractured skull and other injuries. He was returning from Greer, S. C., where he planned to establish a permanent home.

In addition to his widow, Maj. Harrison is survived by two brothers, Lloyd Harrison, of Chevy Chase, Md., and Dr. John Harrison, of Greer, S. C.; his mother, Mrs. John Harrison, and a sister, Miss Margaret Harrison, all of Greer, S. C.

Council to Legislate Against Barking Dogs

"You can't keep canines from barking."

Thus philosophized a member of the Falls Church, Va., town council last night when a group of citizens protested that there was too much dog-barking at night in the town.

However, the matter was referred by the council to its committee on law and order, with the recommendation that it draft an ordinance against noisy dogs and machines.

Quenstedt Wins Annapolis Race For Mayoralty

Ballott Indicates Majority Near 150, Record for Two Score Years.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 10.—Although the count from one ward had not been completed, the reelection of Walter E. Quenstedt, Republican, as Mayor of Annapolis, in today's biennial municipal election was assured at 10 o'clock. Indications also pointed to the reelection of Roscoe C. Rowe, Republican, as city counselor.

Quenstedt's victory is the most flattering that a candidate of the G. O. P. has achieved in a city election in more than two score years. His majority will approach 150. As a rule local elections have been decided by margins ranging from 1 to 30.

Missing returns are those of the First Ward, a Democratic stronghold where the count shows Quenstedt to have made heavy inroads. The Democrats apparently have elected six of the eight aldermen, the Republicans holding their two in the Fourth Ward or Negro belt. Harry S. Kenchington, Independent, indorsed by the Republicans, was making a strong run in the First Ward, but probably will be defeated by Harry Leitsch by a small majority. The net result of the election means that the Democrats will maintain control of the council by a 6-to-4 vote.

Mayor Quenstedt was opposed by Charles E. Chance, whom he defeated four years ago by one vote, after a recount. Rowe's opponent was Albert J. Goodman.

Arlington Asks Electric Utility To Extend Line

Petitions Signed by 3,500 County Residents to Be Presented Today.

ARLINGTON COUNTY, BUREAU OF THE POST, Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The Potomac Electric Power Co. today will be requested to extend its lines throughout Arlington County.

The petitions making this request, signed by more than 3,500 residents, will be presented to Dr. William McClellan, president, by Edmund D. Campbell, chairman of the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission, and James E. Chinn, member of the commission

The commission's attention was called last night to a recent accident to an infant in Clarendon when it is claimed he picked up the end of a high tension wire. A letter was ordered sent to the Virginia Public Service Co., urging that such situations be remedied more quickly.

After a report on telephone conditions in Arlington County by Paul E. Schaub, the commission expressed the opinion that the rates compared favorably with those of other sections in the metropolitan area. County officials will be invited to attend the August meeting.

Pending decision of the Virginia Court of Appeals on the appeal of the Rosslyn Gas Co., from a decision of the State Corporation Commission which granted a reduction from $1.50 to $1.20 per thousand cubic feet, residents are urged to save all bills for service since June 1.

Accepting the invitation of officials of the Virginia Public Service Co., to investigate their records Chairman Campbell instructed the subcommittee on electricity, of which James E. Chinn is chairman, to proceed with the inquiry at an early date.

U. S. Asks Spain To Free Quintet Held at Palma

Four Men and Woman, All Americans, Accused of Military Offense.

Palma, Mallorca, Spain, July 10 (A.P.).—United States authorities have demanded the release, on bail, of five Americans, one a woman, who have been held in jail here since June 5 charged with a military offense.

Claude Dawson, United States consul general at Barcelona, who came here to investigate the case, said he had conferred with the prisoners and military authorities and felt "quite encouraged over developments."

The prisoners are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Lockwood, Walton Blodgett, Rutherford Fullerton, and Roderick Mead. Dawson said he did not know the home cities of the prisoners but understood they came from New York, Connecticut, and Ohio. (A Washington dispatch said the Lockwoods and Mead are from New York City; Blodgett from Stamford, Conn., and Fullerton from Columbus, Ohio.)

Dawson said he confirmed details of the incident which led to the arrests. The Americans were reported involved in a dispute with civil guards at the Hotel Mediterranean here. Blodgett's spectacles were reported broken in an exchange of blows with a guard, whereupon Mrs. Lockwood was said to have struck the guard. The guard then struck her with the flat side of a saber and arrested all the Americans, it was reported. The five were charged with the military offense of atttacking a guard.

"The charges are now in the hands of a military auditor, who promised to study them and give me an opinion as soon as possible," said Dawson. "I am unable to tell the approximate time when the prisoners will be released, but I am keeping in close contact with Ambassador Bowers and expect a development soon."

A Washington Associated Press dispatch said yesterday Senator Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio, had interested himself in the case and quoted him as saying efforts in behalf of the Americans had been without avail for more than a month. He said he learned they were held virtually incommunicado and that the woman was in "virtual solitary confinement in the women's quarters with a half-crazed Mallorcan."

Joseph Urban, Daring Artist, Is Dead at 61

Exponent of Modernism Was Famed as Designer of Stage Sets.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—Joseph Urban, daring exponent of modernism who found an outlet for his decorative talents in Follies settings and town halls, bridges and speakeasies, died today at the age of 61.

The artist-architect had undergone an operation May 2 and was well along the road to recovery when he suffered a heart attack three days ago. He died in his apartment at the St. Regis Hotel, whose roof garden, with gilt flowers studding its sapphire walls, was a typical example of his art.

He never saw his last work—the angular buildings and the futuristic color scheme of the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

First Work Was With Fair.

By coincidence, his first important assignment in this country also was connected with a world's fair—the decoration of the rooms for the Austrian art exhibition at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904, for which he won several medals.

Urban probably was best known for his stage settings. His career along this line started with the "Garden of Paradise," and in 1912 he was commissioned by the Boston Opera to design sets for three operas—"Pelleas and Melisande," "Hansel und Gretel" and "Tristan und Isolde." They created a furore in art circles and resulted in Urban's engagement as art director for the opera.

The outbreak of the war in 1914 destroyed the opera and Urban turned to Broadway. He soon met the late Florenz Ziegfeld and began to design the Follies, making them famous for their lavish displays and glamorous colorings.

Designed Actors' Homes.

Later he was commissioned to design a number of sets for the Metropolitan Opera Company, and then the motion pictures demanded his services.

Magnates and stars who saw his work persuaded him to design their houses. Frequently Urban let his imagination run wild. The results were sometimes fantastic, but always exciting.

During the Florida boom Urban was swamped with commissions in Palm Beach and other smart Florida resorts. He designed the Bath and Tennis Club, the Oasis Club and the homes of the Drexels, the Huttons, the Replogles and others.

Among the buildings he designed here are the new School for Social Research, the Ziegfeld Theater and the Atlantic Beach Club. He decorated many pretentious resorts, including the Central Park Casino.

Early Civilizations

In the tombs of Egypt, Greece, Assyria and Hindustan, of Mexico, Peru and Ecuador are found artificial teeth, crowns and bridgework as exquisitely fashioned as any product of modern dentistry . . . The importance of teeth in relation to beauty, utility and health, has been recognized from earliest times, but the skill that formerly could be commanded only by kings and emperors is now available to all.

The Federal Diary

GERALD ERSKINE PECK, a message-to-Garcia man, Agriculture, will be missing henceforth from familiar haunts. He has joined "involuntarily" the ranks of the retired. As a youthful wage earner, his first service was as a courier at the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, 1893, and it is rather coincidental that 40 years later he should find himself free to see in his own time the Century of Progress Exposition.

For 36 years, in the division of publications, he has been delegated to perform commissions and he has executed them with rare fidelity. His assignment was an exacting one and he abhorred any slighting of duty which might class him "a slacker." Records do not disclose that he was often a sick-leave registrant. It was not an unusual thing for Gerald to work after official hours, particularly when such action meant service to a senator or member of Congress; in fact, to any high official or person of lowly station.

By rating officers, he was adjudged a "perfect type of public servant." His loyalty to administrators and his work amounted to a devotion. Once he was committed to a task, it could be dismissed from mind as executed to the last detail. He possessed a somewhat uncanny knowledge of the department's regulations and this proved of invaluable aid as he went about his daily mission.

Peck's long official career has granted him varied experiences and he has gained a deep knowledge of people who group themselves in Federal offices. During his term of service he made many friends. This group will be most affected when learning that the operation of law has deprived them of a distinctly useful and painstaking collaborator. May your example of service, Gerald, be an ideal worthy of imitation by any one who may succeed you in office.

An ode to the votes. (Election day is on the way):

Sister, can you stop your work?
Brother, will you spare the time?
Politicians are out with the dirk
For economy without reason or rime.
To save our hearths and self-respect
We'll have to make a brave fight.
This duty none should neglect,
For we are battling for the right.
Armed with ballots, with the help of friends,
This false economy plan, we all say, ends.

WILLIE HOMER.

Memorandum.

To: United States Commissioner of Education William John Cooper.
From: Entire staff of the Office of Education.
Subject: Affection.

During the four years of your service as United States commissioner of education you have received from us many, many memorandums. This we present because we think that, having contracted the memorandum-reading habit, you will feel more comfortable and more at home in having perpetually near at hand at least one memorandum from the staff of the office of education.

This memorandum, strangely enough, does not request approval of a travel detail to Seattle, Wash., or to Key West, Fla. It does not ask you to deliver a speech, increase salary, serve on a committee, approve a study, authorize a transfer, or do any of a thousand other things, large or small, which you have always done for us with graciousness and kindness whenever it has been within your power.

The subject of this memorandum is affection—our affection for you. It is an affection that springs from the satisfaction of working with you; from the thrill of association with a man of broad vision; from the friendly fellowship you fostered.

With this memorandum we take particular pleasure in presenting to you bound records of the work which has been accomplished under your inspiration and guidance.

THREE months ago The Federal Diary quoted a Cabinet officer as saying, "What Civil Service. To hell with Civil Service. I'm running this department." Remember? That was before it was evident that Civil Service was in for a bad day and burial alive. • • • William F. Stevenson, chairman, Federal Home Loan Bank Board and Home Owners Loan Corporation, to employ 6,000 over the country as a minimum (although the number, according to Jim Farley, will be between 9,000 and 10,000), yesterday intimated to the press he did not know what the merit system is. Perhaps he's right. Few seem to know. Anyway, when asked if he intended to give preference to merit system workers he admitted that "efficiency" will be the qualification, not the merit system. The press boys laughed when Mr. Stevenson asked what was meant by the merit system.

Fire Destroys Drayden Store; Loss Is $25,000

Water Shortage Hampers Volunteer Firemen Fighting Blaze.

Fire destroyed the J. W. Dent & Son department store at Drayden, Md., 15 miles south of Leonardtown, yesterday afternoon. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

Believed to have originated in a gas stove in the kitchen, the blaze spread through the dining room and thence to the store which was attached to the living quarters.

A valuable hunting setter was lost in the flames.

A scarcity of water hampered the volunteer fire department. Crowds from Piney Point, summer resort, and Valley Lee, were attracted to the scene.

Six hundred dollars worth of firearms and ammunition on the second floor of the store caused deafening explosions. Five hundred dollars worth of shoes and a large supply of fishing tackle and rods were destroyed.

Part of the merchandise was moved to a nearby field, but wind carried the flames to the salvaged goods. Most of the letters in the postoffice in the store are thought to have been saved.

The store was established 40 years ago by the Dent family. Mrs. Queenie V. Dent and her two children, Benjamin E. Dent, and Mrs. Mary Dent Flye, conducted the business.

Chilean Moratorium On Debts Extended

Santiago, Chile, July 10 (A.P.).—The government officially put into effect today an extension of the moratorium on foreign debts, including those of railroads, municipalities and the mortgage credit bank, for a two-year period.

This is a mere formality as the service of debts is regarded as impossible for an indefinite period but the action officially extends the moratorium for two years.

The judge put the case over until tomorrow because there were other matters before the court.

Meanwhile, Dr. Menas Gregory, head of the psychiatric department at Bellevue Hospital, prepared to examine the banker privately today at the Regent Nursing Home, where the banker has been staying. The examination is being undertaken at the request of the United States attorney.

Airplane Flight Is Linked With Slaying of Five

New Angle Bared in Plaza Killing of Police at Kansas City.

Kansas City, July 10 (A.P.).—The rapid fight of an airplane was linked today with the rapid fire of machine guns in the desperate effort to free Frank Nash, Federal prisoner, which resulted in his death and the slaying of four officers at the Union Station Plaza here June 17.

It was learned that while officers were taking the train robber north following his arrest in Hot Springs, Ark., at noon, June 16, Nash's wife, her daughter, and an unidentified man made a fast air trip to Joplin, Mo., and communicated with associates of her husband.

From the home of Herbert Farmer, at Joplin, Federal authorities say, telephone calls were placed to the home in Kansas City of Verne C. Miller, gangster and former sheriff at Huron, S. Dak.

Miller is sought as one of the machine gunners who met the party of officers here as they left a train with Nash and placed him in an automobile to return him to the Leavenworth Penitentiary.

Farmer, an admitted friend of Nash, and his wife, Esther Farmer, were brought here from Joplin and placed today under technical Federal charges of obstructing justice.

Neighbors Believe Ohio Postmistress Was Slain

Gallipolis, Ohio, July 10 (A.P.).—Neighbors of Mrs. Frank Ihle, postmistress at Addison, 8 miles east of here, whose body was found in a cistern near her home Sunday, told officials today they believed the woman was slain.

They reported they saw a man and a woman enter the Ihle home Saturday and drive away later. Mr. and Mrs. Ihle had been separated several weeks, according to authorities. Coroner James T. Hanson withheld his verdict pending further investigation.

The First Industrial Code.

All industries and the country generally will watch with intense interest the operation of the code which the textile industry has adopted, subject to certain interpretations and modifications by President Roosevelt. The code will go into effect next Monday, July 17, and will remain in effect four months. The duration of the code was made brief because of changing conditions and because this is the first experiment under the Industrial Recovery act.

Perhaps the most notable feature of the new arrangement is the abolition of child labor in cotton mills. President Roosevelt rightly describes child labor as an "ancient atrocity," and if nothing else had been achieved by the code it would have been worth while. But the arrangement also fixes a minimum wage of $12 in the South and $13 in the North for a 40-hour week, as against previous minimum wages of $8 or $9 for a 48 to 50-hour week.

About 23 per cent of the industry has failed to adhere to the code, but hearings will be given to nonadherents this week, and many are expected to accept the code. Those who fail to do so will be required to obtain Federal licenses before they can operate, and the license provides that the operator shall comply with the industry's code.

Complex conditions in many industries, and the fact that some industries are not organized into associations, are factors that tend to delay the formulation of codes. The complete change in the relations of Government and business which is embodied in the Industrial Recovery act compels business men to adapt themselves to entirely novel concepts and conditions. So many unexpected questions arise that delay is unavoidable while they are threshed out. Business men are apprehensive, also, that the "emergency" may be prolonged long after the depression has passed, and that it may be extremely difficult to return to the old regime of industrial independence. Therefore they are cautious in formulating the codes under which they are to operate.

A Chinese Foreign Legion?

The formation of a foreign legion in China, modeled on the plan of the famous French foreign legion in Africa, is advocated by a number of prominent Chinese. Supporters of the project believe that 10,000 men could be immediately enlisted without difficulty to form the nucleus of a branch of the army which would have a deterrent effect upon further invasion of Chinese territory. It has been represented to Chinese officials that probably many British and American volunteers might be secured for this service, men who have had military experience and would add great strength to the native organization, as did the foreign units of the Manchu government which crushed the Taiping rebellion.

There is every probability, however, that foreign governments would frown upon the enlistment of their nationals in the Chinese service, because of the international complications which might ensue. They would be forced to disavow the actions of volunteers and could not attempt to protect these men in any eventuality. Unless volunteers became Chinese nationals they would be virtually men without a country.

From the Chinese standpoint the plan seems even less practical. Native soldiers live upon the country, often receiving no pay whatever. They are accustomed to poor food and a low standard of living. It would cost twenty times as much to maintain a foreign unit as one of the same size composed of Chinese. There is also the possibility that a foreign legion might become strong enough to dominate the army and eventually the government. This was what happened in the last century, when Gordon put down the Taiping insurrection. These considerations, both at home and abroad, make it extremely unlikely that the legion will get beyond the stage of academic discussion.

Russian Grain Patrol.

The organization of an airplane patrol to watch peasants at their work has been inaugurated by the Soviet commissariats of agriculture and war. It was discovered by the new agricultural police that peasants often concealed seed for food, and in some cases were found boiling grain in the fields to make porridge for themselves. Reports constantly reached Moscow to the effect that the police were not sufficient to guard the barns where seed is stored, and, being ill-fed, the guards frequently stole grain for their own use. A detachment of the air patrol was, therefore, sent to the Ukraine and Northern Caucasus laden with proclamations to the peasantry.

It was announced early in the summer by the commissariat of agriculture that the total area sown was greater than the amount sown on the same date last year. Later reports in the Pravda and other newspapers showed the figures to be misleading, however, since the acreage sown at the time of the official announcement was greater only because the spring was earlier this year. Later in the season it was found that plowing and sowing had fallen short of the 1932 mark.

It was because of the danger of a grain shortage that 13,000 young Communists were organized for special service on the "sowing front" at the request of M. Yakovlieff, commissar of agriculture. In explaining the need, he stated that Communists in some sections had been intimidated by the hostile peasantry, causing them to "hide among the bushes" rather than going boldly into the fields and overseeing the workers. When the sowing season was over the work of the police patrol did not come to an end. The peasants are now being urged to cultivate and take proper care of their plantings, and even greater vigilance will be necessary when the harvesting season arrives.

The Cotton Experiment.

A final drive is in progress this week to induce farmers in sixteen Southern States to destroy at least 25 per cent of their cotton crop. Present indications are that enough farmers will join in the Government's experiment to put the price-raising plan into operation. Whether an actual reduction of acreage can be brought about in this manner remains to be seen.

Farmers have agreed to destroy the cotton now growing on 5,566,169 acres of their land. Before the Department of Agriculture will be willing to go forward with its program of levying taxes on the processing of cotton for the benefit of cooperating growers the acreage scheduled for elimination must pass the 10,000,000 mark. Officials directing the campaign are confident that sufficient acreage will be offered to justify the administration in going forward with its plan.

The more vital question involved, however, is not whether some farmers agree to rent their land to the Government, but whether the plan actually results in a reduced output of cotton for the country as a whole. Last week it was reported that farmers were overestimating the yield of cotton from their land in order to obtain the higher rentals offered by the Government. Now reports are coming to Washington to the effect that some farmers are preparing to plow up land that is lying idle this year and to claim rental benefits for such land. When the Government attempts to deal with 2,000,000 cotton farmers it is extremely difficult to prevent this type of swindling.

Furthermore, every farmer who agrees to destroy the cotton on part of his land will be inclined to plow under that acreage which is not very promising, while preserving the best of the crop. When all of these factors are brought together there may be considerable discrepancy between the crop reduction indicated by the contracts with the Government and the actual amount of cotton sent to market.

Some farmers, as might be expected, are refusing to reduce their acreage. Apparently they hope to secure better prices for their cotton as a result of the Government's program without the necessity of cutting down their output. Figures just released by the Department of Agriculture suggest that attempts to take advantage of the higher prices without sacrificing any acreage are numerous this year. The area under cultivation is 11.6 per cent greater than it was last year.

It is apparent, therefore, that even when the Department of Agriculture obtains contracts for the destruction of cotton on 10,000,000 acres of land, it will still be confronted by a number of obstacles more formidable than this initial problem. Dealing with 2,000,000 farmers, each of whom is anxious to grow the largest possible crop at the highest price, is an enormous task. The results of this experiment in cotton will be known, not when the contracts are all signed, but when the final reports on the cotton harvested are available.

Tension Among Employees.

There is widespread concurrence in the disappointment expressed by the National Federation of Federal Employees at the delay of the administration in formulating plans to aid Government workers relieved of their jobs through the economy program. This problem has been imminent for several weeks. Ever since the administration embarked upon a policy of reducing regular governmental activities and expanding emergency functions, it has been apparent that a large number of employees would be left in distress unless provision should be made for their transfer to the new organizations. But apparently no definite action has yet been taken.

In the meantime, the Public Works Administration and the Industrial Recovery Administration are reported to be filling up their staffs with political appointees. The opportunity, of relieving distress among civil service workers trained in the type of work that the new organizations require, and of protecting these agencies from the spoils system, is thus rapidly slipping away. If these jobs are once filled on a patronage basis, it will be difficult for a Cabinet committee or even the President to change the situation.

The effect of this policy concerning personnel on the entire Federal service is worthy of consideration. A few months ago faithful and efficient Federal employees were entitled to regard their positions under the civil service as relatively permanent and secure. Work in some branches of the Government service might terminate, but other work usually was available in other departments, and for the most part employees could expect to be transferred. Now, however, a precedent is being established for discharging experienced employees in bureaus where activity is curtailed and opening new jobs to the spoils system. The effect is to impair the morale of the entire Government personnel.

Study of the situation doubtless is important, but if that study is carried on too long it will defeat its own purpose. Most of the jobs will have been taken by political appointees. The welfare of these men and women who have given their talents and their energy in the service of the Government deserves the highest consideration. An immediate move to check the disintegration of the merit system would also go a long way toward relieving the tension among Federal workers still on the payrolls as well as among those who are seeking re-employment.

Rail-Truck Competition.

The Federal co-ordinator of transportation has appointed a committee to study the railroad freight service "in an effort to modernize it to meet conditions brought about by competition of motor trucks." Three regional committees appointed by the railroads will cooperate with the Federal committee.

The questions to be studied will include the handling of less than carload lots, demountable truck bodies, containers, lighter equipment, store-door pickup, and the use of motor trucks as auxiliaries of rail service.

Freight car loadings are increasing. The heavier railroad freight business seems to extend throughout the country, and is taken as proof of a revival of general business. It is presumed that freighting by truck is also increasing, but figures are not available. Usually it is estimated that motor trucks carry only about 6 per cent of the nation's freight tonnage, but many railroad men now insist that the percentage is higher. In a recent hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission a spokesman of Swift & Co. testified that 25 per cent of that company's traffic is now moved by truck and that the percentage would be increased as soon as more trucks were provided. The representative of the West Coast Lumbermen's Association stated that trucks and waterways were handling more than half of the lumber traffic in the western part of the country.

Co-ordinator Eastman has before him voluminous testimony concerning truck competition with railroads, and also many complaints from railroad men touching upon waterway competition sponsored and even operated by the Government. The railroads suggest that rates be revised, on the ground that inland waterway rates are kept at 20 per cent under rail rates, regardless of the actual cost of water transport.

The growth of motor trucking is apparent on nearly all highways. The tendency is to increase the length of hauls, although long-distance trucking is a small part of the business as yet. Door-to-door delivery by trucks takes lucrative traffic from the railroads.

Presumably the operations of trucks and railroad freight lines will be assimilated in some fashion after thorough study has thrown light upon their proper relationship. Regulation of interstate traffic by trucks seems to be warranted and necessary.

The Motor Industry.

By William Ullman.

When the depression began to gain momentum there were many who held the automobile industry to be an especially horrible example of the industrial technique which blew prosperity from the face of the earth. There was great talk of over-production; of putting earnings into increased productive capacity instead of devoting them to increased consumer income; of high-pressure salesmanship.

Whether the automobile industry was guilty on all counts of the indictment is highly questionable. As to over-production and unneeded productive capacity, there was some truth in the accusations. At any rate, the automobile industry did demonstrate in April, 1929, that it could produce cars at a rate of 8,000,000 units annually. For the year as a whole it did produce more than 5,000,000, of which more than 1,000,000 remained unsold.

Perhaps the industry could have paid higher wages, but it was paying an average of nearly 80 cents an hour to its skilled and unskilled employes, the highest level in its history.

True, or untrue in the past, no such charges validly may be placed against the motor industry today.

When the question of fair practice codes under the terms of the National Industrial Recovery Act first was raised, and the technique for drafting them was enunciated by the Government, it was revealed that the motor industry already was operating in conformity with the principles involved in the law. It had no problem of overproduction because its leaders have pursued for three years a policy of gearing output to actual demand. It had no unfair competitive practices to be placed beyond the pale of operation by stern rules written into a trade code.

As to the most important demands of the industry control measure—those relating to hours of work and pay scales—the motor magnates underwent no period of fear and trembling. Among the major industries their pay scale was one of the highest, although considerably under the 1929 peak. With regard to hours of labor per week, the industry's position was such that it will require virtually no adjustment.

Cutting Cables.

Post Haste.

Everybody hails the abolition of child labor in the new textile code adopted by 73 per cent of the industry, but curiosity centers on what will be done to the hold-out 27 per cent.

It is not a bad sign that mortgage holders think American farms are still a better risk than 50 per cent in bonds at one-third less interest.

If, after barring stabilization, Secretary Hull talks France into considering removal of quotas imposed against instability, apologies will be in order.

Col. Howe's revelation that the famous message of July 3 was written by the Chief in the seclusion of his cabin on the Indianapolis relieves the professors somewhat, but it was the best of all.

Secretary Ickes has been named budget lid-sitter for the giant public works fund and will not permit more than a billion a year to seep out, which will be a great disappointment to the pork barrelers.

The American financial experts are on their way back to Washington to find out why they went to London.

As it becomes clear that general economic agreements can not be made between 66 nations it is urged that bilateral treaties be employed to simplify matters. This is easy, as 66 nations, each making pacts with all the others, would require only 4,230 treaties.

With stocks up twenty billions, wheat up 106 per cent and cotton 77 per cent, the recovery omnibuses should be sure of the brakes before they get going full speed.

While Col. Howe quoted liberally from the conference agenda it may have been the modesty of authorship which caused him to ignore the May conversation communiques from the White House.

Agriculture is urged to raise less and increase income; industry is exhorted to raise wages and increase buying power. Don't get dizzy—adjust the mirrors.

Industrial lament: What a tangled web we weave when we attempt to imitate the textile code.

The Killdeer.

The killdeer, nesting on the ground,
A method to baffle foes has found,
And in a most ingenious way
Oft leads the curious boy astray;
Or with its very plaintive cry
Attracts the heedless passerby
And feigning broken wing, she'll lure
His feet to leave her nest secure.

I've watched her often. As I neared
Her nesting spot has she appeared
Fluttering upon the ground; her wing
Apparently a useless thing,
Enticing me by sham and cry
To catch a bird who can not fly,
And tricking me, unharmed to pass
Her nest deep hidden in the grass.

I'll venture trickery such as that
Has oft outwitted many a cat.
But what I wonder is: Who taught
The wily killdeer such a thought?
How is it that small creature knows
So neat a way to cheat her foes?
Who told her this: where dangers lurk
The broken-wing defense will work?

It Is Better to Go Down Fighting Than to Stand and Wait for the Finish

By Robert Quillen

WHEN a certain kind of motion picture proves a box office success, rival producers hasten to make similar pictures. Every successful thing is imitated.

When one man brings in an oil well or a few men make fortunes in real estate, others appear as if by magic to follow their example. When gold was discovered in California, men from everywhere crossed the continent, daring hardship and privation and death itself to reach the land where wealth could be had for the taking. And the same story was repeated in Alaska.

Men will risk everything to follow the trail of easy money. A few made fortunes in Wall street and millions gambled away their savings. A few made money selling liquor and the land was filled with bootleggers. The risk doesn't matter if the reward is great enough.

The reward of kidnaping is great. And it is easy money. A child or a man, alone and helpless, is seized and carried away. A note is written, threatening death. Frantic relatives make any necessary sacrifice to get the money demanded. All that a man has he will give for his life.

The land is full of desperate men. Thousands of them are criminals. Other thousands will dare much for easy money. Can you doubt that all of them are tempted to take a chance when they read of fortunes paid as ransom?

Human nature hasn't changed. Every success of a kidnaper, swindler or blackmailer prompts another criminal to follow his example. The underworld seethes with plotting. No man who has money is safe.

Isn't it about time to do something?

The Government is devoting all of its energies to the solving of economic problems in the hope that some new arrangement will enable men to make more money. But what does it profit an honest man to make more money when a criminal is waiting to take it?

The first business of any government is to insure the safety of its citizens. And all problems of business and industry are matters of secondary importance while every home and every man of means is threatened by a wolf-pack of bandits.

We can't deliver the country to criminals. Life isn't worth living under such conditions.

Americans of another day, imposed upon and humiliated beyond all bearing, pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to make war on tyranny. Is there no manhood of that kind left among us?

The choice you have is simple: You can spend your money for defense or surrender it as tribute.

Political Comment

Recovery and the Tariff.
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The disparity between costs of production in this country and abroad will be widened greatly if this plan operates as intended. This will render present tariff duties in a large number of instances ineffective to keep out highly competitive products or to allow them to enter on virtually equal terms with products in the home market. One of Mr. Roosevelt's double-barreled promises in last year's campaign that excited much interest related to letting in a lot more imports to help foreign nations pay their debts to us and at the same time assuring ample protection to American labor and industry. Perhaps he had not then visualized the industrial-recovery measure in all its implications.

Forget Politics.
Industry and Labor.

The day is not far distant when the public mind now directed toward things political will again be riveted upon things economic and with this change effected every day will be a bigger, brighter, and in every way a better day.

The future of the Republic rests with those who plan and act for true public economy rather than for the furtherance of political ambitions and ends.

Test of Consumer Protection.
Kansas City Times.

Less than ten days ago it was indicated that in administration of the farm act there might not be the positive stand against price-fixing that already had been adopted for the industrial control program. Now the necessity of the one as of the other has become absolutely clear. Attempts at fixing of unjustified prices for bread have been isolated, and have been reported from only a few points in the country. Yet they show plainly the danger that lies ahead if means of strict control are not promptly used.

Bread Exploiters.
Houston Post.

Secretary Wallace has acted promptly to halt the reported plan of Iowa bakers to hike the price of bread from 5 to 8 cents a loaf, using the prospective processor tax as their excuse for the 3-cent advance.

Wallace wasted no time about letting them know that he was not going to permit such exploitation and added that the act had given him full powers to prevent just such occurrences and that he intended to use them "to the limit," if need be.

The Once Over.

THE SEERSUCKER SUIT.

Scene I—The Home.

Wife—Luther, why don't you get yourself one of these seersucker suits for summer? Look at this advertisement!

Husband (looking at the ad.)—They certainly do look smart, don't they, Jennie?

Wife—They're not only cool, but they make a man look so classy.

Husband—Of course, I'm a little hard to fit, honey.

Scene II—The Store.

Husband—I want to get one of those seersucker suits.

Salesman—Certainly. (He produces one). Try on this coat for size. Husband (climbing into one that fits him like a tent)—It's too big for me.

Salesman—I think not. These summer suits are supposed to be loose and comfortable, you know.

Husband (indicating that the sleeves are about 8 inches too long)—But the sleeves are too long.

Salesman—In these seersucker suits you want a long, loose sleeve, but we'll take those up for you.

Husband—Lemme see a coat a size smaller.

Salesman (producing the smaller suit)—How's that?

Husband (looking in glass and still feeling quite sloppy)—It's pretty baggy, ain't it?

Salesman—You gotta have lots of room in these seersuckers.

Husband (noting that the shoulders do not set right)—How about the shoulders? They're all wrinkled up.

Salesman—In these seersucker suits you gotta expect that. The shoulders don't fit like a regular suit. They ain't supposed to.

Husband (noting that the collar falls back away from the neck)—The collar doesn't fit, does it?

Salesman—That's a perfect collar for a seersucker suit, mister. They all set like that. They're cut that way purposely.

* * * *

Husband (giving in)—Well, lemme try on the pants.

(He goes into a dressing room and presently emerges looking like a midget in a cast-off suit of De Wolf Hopper's. Anybody can see that the pants are at least a foot too long.)

Salesman (looking him over)—Perfect!

Husband (leakly) — Aren't the pants a little too big?

Salesman—Not for these seersuckers. You gotta have plenty of room.

Husband—I think I'd feel better if you took 'em up a little.

Salesman—I'll take 'em up a few inches, if you insist. But a seersucker suit is a seersucker suit.

Husband—Take 'em up and send the suit C. O. D.

Salesman—Okay.

Scene III—The Home. A Few Days Later.

Wife—Luther, that seersucker came today. Go put it on and let me see how you look. Did it fit well?

Husband—They had to take up the pants a little. I'll put it on.

(He goes into the bedroom, puts on the new suit and comes out full of doubts, but trying to conceal them.)

Wife (swooning after one glimpse)—Luther! How could you?

Husband (bending over and trying to revive her)—Lissen, a seersucker is a seersucker. They wear 'em that way!

THE COMEBACK.

We missed our favorite depression period apple vendor the other morning. He was back again today.

U.S. Will Ratify League Soon, Institute Told

Speaker Says We Have Cooperated to Extent of Political Liaison.

University, Va., July 10 (A.P.).—The United States will ratify the League of Nations Covenant, with reservations, in a surprisingly short time, Clark M. Eichelberger, director of the midwest office of the League of Nations Association, said today before the opening sesion of the Virginia Institute of Public Affairs Round Table on "Relations of the United States With the League of Nations."

The same discussion group heard Lewis L. Lorwin, member of the research committee of the Institute of Pacific Relations of the Brookings Institutions, asserted his belief that nationalistic economic self-sufficiency can lead only to another world catastrophe.

In outlining the case for American political cooperation with the league, Mr. Eichelberger began by saying the American people generally have accepted cooperation with the league even to a degree involving political liaison and that even the most irreconcilable politicians hardly would suggest the termination of all such relationships.

Starting With Isolation Policy.

"Starting with the policy of having nothing whatsoever to do with the league, our Government has finally reached the place where it is engaging in political commitments in return for disarmament," he said.

"Our cooperation in the attempt to settle the Far Eastern difficulties is an illustration of the direct method which involved participation of investigation, in determining the aggressor, and the suggestion on our part of the sanction of non-recognition."

Mr. Eichelberger said much of the American cooperation with the league has been in time of crisis.

"Obviously," he added, "the majority of the activities of the league are not in the crisis state, and the greater number of questions that are dealt with in their early states, the fewer crises there will be.

Would Have U. S. Delegate.

"A tacit understanding should be reached with the league whereby a representative of the United States may sit with the council and the assembly when American interests are involved. This consultation, while of great value, will not take the place of ratification of the league covenant, which present developments lead me to believe should come quickly."

Mr. Lorwin, discussing nationalism as opposed to world cooperation, began by asserting that the "problem before the world is to evolve a policy which will reconcile the economic and social needs of individual nations and to build a world society which would recognize and incorporate the legitimate elements of a rational nationalism.

"The more we disentangle ourselves from the economic system of the rest of the world the more we shall expose ourselves to the greed, envy, and legitimate protests of less forward nations against our monopolization of the world's best resources," he said. "Self-sufficiency thus can only be another road to world catastrophe."

Lorton Rebels' Punishment to Be Fixed Today

May Be Transferred to Federal Prison; Work Is Resumed.

The fate of the hundred ringleaders in the Lorton Reformatory riot may be decided today at a conference between Capt. M. M. Barnard, general superintendent of the District penal institutions and members of the District Board of Public Welfare.

Held in solitary confinement, the trouble makers may be removed to a Federal penitentiary. Several of the rebellious prisoners were returned to the regular prison quarters yesterday after they pledged themselves to follow the routine of the institution.

For the first time since last Thursday, the prisoners resumed their regular duties in the industries of the institution. Capt. Barnard stated that the schedule of work was followed without trouble or interruption.

A police guard will continue at the reformatory until the method of dealing with the rebel prisoners is decided upon.

Capt. Barnard stated yesterday that he has definite measures in mind, but that he wants to discuss them with the Board of Public Welfare before he takes any action. He stated that he has not been able to make any decisions or suggestions about a successor to A. C. Tawse, former superintendent of the institution, who resigned after the prisoners became riotous.

The industries at the prison which were resumed yesterday are the knitting mill, the printery, the clothes shop, the broom and brush factory, the foundry, the tag and traffic sign plant and the pattern and woodworking shop.

"Any Cloth, Any Old Clothes?" Is Plea of District Committee

More Material Needed for Relief Organization's Seamstresses.

"Any rags, any cloth, any old clothes today?" is the plea of the clothes conservation committee of the District of Columbia Committee on Employment. The committee is employing an everage of 45 women, five days a week, to sew the material contributed. All of these women are supporting dependents.

But unless more cloth can be supplied, a cut in the committee's activities may be necessary, according to Mrs. Wymond Bradbury, who is in charge of the workroom at the committee headquarters on the second floor of the Ford Building at John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue.

The Red Cross, which has been one of the committee's most reliable sources of material, has sent what it believes will be its last allotment of cloth until September 1. Mrs. Bradbury estimated yesterday that there was only enough material on hand to last about six more days.

Trucks from the District wood yards have been enlisted to call for whatever donations people in and around Washington will make.

Since last November the clothes conservation committee has been giving employment to needy women. The women are paid at the rate of 35 cents an hour, and all work at least two days a week.

The Singer Sewing Machine Co. donated 34 sewing machines, so that the office is equipped to keep all the women busy if only enough cloth can be secured.

Clothes the committee finds satisfactory for further use are turned over to the public welfare agencies, as are those that can be restored to wearable condition. Adult clothes unfit for further use are cut down to children's sizes. Rags and irredeemable clothes are used to make rugs of various types, quilts, linings for coats, underwear, &c.

Capital residents are asked to contribute any clothes or rags they can.

Officers said the safe was empty and an envelope tied to the knob had the combination written on it.

Falls Church's Executive Gets 3 Applications for Dog Catcher.

It seems that the town fathers of Falls Church, Va., will not have to worry much longer about the vacancy in the dog catcher's office. Mayor L. P. However, the anonymous applicant, who addressed his letter to the "Mare," stated he had lived a dog's life, and was friendly to dogs, hence felt himself qualified for the job.

The Falls Church dog catcher gets $1 for catching an unlicensed dog, 25 cents a day for the keep of the dog for five days, and 25 cents for killing the dog—a potential total of $2.50 per dog.

Fear of Funeral Coach Justifies Presentments

Call it superstition, or other names, the presentments of G. W. Brooks, colored, a resident of Northeast Washington, that evil omens haunted the proximity of a funeral procession were fully justified yesterday.

Brooks was fined $5 and costs in the Hyattsville police court on the charge of breaking up a funeral prosession on the Baltimore boulevard. In pleading his case before Judge J. Chew Sheriff, Brooks explained that he was only trying to get out of the way. In his fervor to accomplish this, he said, he didn't notice the first coach turning into a side road at Beltsville. As a consequence a serious crash was but narrowly averted.

Eleanor Holm, Swimming Star, Engaged to Singer Art Jarrett

ELEANOR HOLM AND ART JARRETT.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—Eleanor Holm, 19-year-old swimming star, disclosed today that she and Art Jarrett, singer and screen actor, are engaged and plan to marry in the near future.

They met three months ago in a Los Angeles swimming pool, said Miss Holm, and it was a case of love at first sight.

"I don't know whether he asked me, or whether I asked him, but he has asked me many times since then," she said, interrupting the writing of a letter headed, "Dear Art."

"But wouldn't it be terrible if I changed my mind," she added, "you know I did that once before."

She said no definite date has been set for the wedding, but indicated it would be soon after she returned to California. Miss Holm is here practicing for the National Women's Swimming championship, at Jones Beach, Long Island, July 20 to 24, in which she is entered. After a short personal appearance tour she plans to return to California.

Their home, she said, would be in California "because it is so wonderful there."

District Is Blamed For Forgery Loss

Commercial Bank Cleared of Responsibility for Fraud Upon City.

The Commercial National Bank, now closed, yesterday won a victory in the District Supreme Court when Justice Jennings Bailey held that the District Government and not the bank was responsible for the loss incurred by the District through forged checks several years ago.

Justice Bailey held that inasmuch as the checks, which were ostensibly for tax refunds, were checked over by the District, and were then passed by the bank, the municipal government should stand the loss on the checks, which were afterward proved to be forgeries. His ruling, in substance, was that as the District had "O. K.'d" the checks the bank could not be held liable for the reason that the original error has been made by the District.

The case involved one in which Joseph W. Frenzel, a former employe of the auditor's office, and another man concocted a scheme by which tax refunds from dormant accounts could be made. Frenzel served a prison erm for his part in the plot, but the other man was never apprehended. The amount involved was $3,339, which was the amount for which Assistant United States Attorney William H. Gallagher sued the bank.

Pollard Moves For Insuring of State Bank Cash

Calls Meeting July 26 of Nonmembers of Reserve Institutions.

Richmond, Va., July 10 (A.P.).—Gov. Pollard today took the initial steps in preparation for insurance of bank deposits in Virginia banks, nonmembers of the Federal Reserve System, in pursuance of the provisions of the Glass-Steagall bank act.

The governor called a meeting of State bankers, representatives of the State's nonmember institutions, at the capitol July 26, for a discussion of necessary legislation to carry out the Federal program.

The bankers will meet with State Banking Commissioner M. E. Bristow, and William R. Shands, director of the division of legislative research and drafting.

Gov. Pollard said he will recommend whatever legislative action is necessary to the special session of the General Assembly beginning August 17.

Each of the six banking divisions of the State, as set up by the Virginia Bankers Association will be represented at the meeting by one of their number appointed by the respective district presidents.

The governor pointed out that it will not be necessary for national banks and State banks, which are members of the Federal Reserve, to be represented since provisions are made for deposit insurance by these institutions under the Federal act.

The call to the nonmember bankers in Virginia was issued by Gov. Pollard late today upon receipt of a letter from President Roosevelt urging such action at the earliest moment.

Brunner Here to Learn Home Loan Act Setup

Tuition Payments Not Tax Exempt

Boston, July 10 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Elisha H. Brewster today ruled that tuition payments for the education of children were not "gifts and contributions" and therefore could not be deducted from income under the income tax laws.

Mrs. Katherine Minot Channing, of Sherborn, wife of a Boston attorney, had sought a refund of $128.70 from the United States Government as illegally assessed on the tuition payments of her children in college.

Judge Brewster held that the cost of education was a part of the family expense and not open to deduction. He ruled that Congress never intended to give an interpretation to the Internal Revenue act that would permit deductions of tuition payments as "contributions" when students receive in return educational facilities.

Interest of Church In Life Is Advised

Milwaukee, Wis., July 10 (A.P.).—The church should be more interested in the life about it, Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, of Newark, N. J., declared today in an address at the International Christian Endeavor Convention.

"The church has no right to live for its cemetery," said Dr. Foulkes, who is vice president of the International Christian Endeavor Society. "It should live for its front door."

Dr. Foulkes was one of the leaders who addressed thirty conferences on the subject of the church and youth. More than 5,000 members of the association marched through Milwaukee's downtown business section during the day, smartly attired and singing famous old hymns. The marchers were generously applauded.

Lindsay Calls British Fascist Move Hopeless

Envoy Says Government Is Stronger Now Than in Years.

Will the British Facists ever succeed in setting up a dictatorship?

No! is the emphatic answer of Sir Ronald Lindsay, Ambassador of Great Britain to the United States.

Fascism rises when the functions of a democratic government break down, Sir Ronald pointed out yesterday. The representative government of England is in a stronger position today than in years, he said. Economic conditions, while not equaling the strides made in America recently, have been improving steadily.

The ambassador views the recovery here as somewhat exaggerated, due in part to inflation. He regards the British climb back to prosperity as more substantial.

Although the Fascisti are still supreme in Italy and the Nazis, their German brothers, control the Reich, the movement has declined almost to oblivion in England. In the last election, the party leader, Sir Oswold Mosley, lost his seat in the House of Commons and none of his subordinates entered Parliament.

No trouble with the followers of the Swastika is anticipated even remotely in England, as has been the case in Austria. The "B. F.'s," British Fascists, are dubbed "Bloody Fools" by the English "man on the street." They are allowed to meet and expound their programs via the soap box on London streets, as do other disciples of more or less lost political causes.

Walt Mason, Himself

The World's Most Famous Rhymester

Signs and Tokens.

THERE are some signs that things revive, that commerce is again alive; some industries are showing pep, and others will be keeping step before the robins nest again, and hope is in the hearts of men. They read the daily cheer-up news, and try to shoo away the blues, and to their neighbors say, "At last we may believe the worst is past." The most of us are built that way; it's our ambition to be gay, to see the cheerful side of things, and be as happy as some kings. We only need a half a chance and we'll be prompt to sing and dance, forgetting all the grief and woe that overwhelmed us long ago. Believing always in the best, we built a nation in the West that even in the times of grief the other nations hailed as chief. If we had buckled in the spine whenever we beheld a sign of something evil, something lost, our nation would have been a frost. And in the long dark days of gloom that followed up the latest boom, we said, while taking things to pawn, "We'll soon behold the golden dawn." The delegates who from despair cub out the draperies they wear are always betting on the worst, but we believe that Faith is first, and Hope's a mascot, fine and fat, that should be pasted in the hat.

Cooper Visions 25-Hour Week In Education

Retiring U. S. Head Says Use of Spare Time Will Be Problem.

"The schools of the future will be concerned with training the students in how to spend his spare time," Dr. William John Cooper, delivering his final address as United States Commissioner of Education, yesterday told the State Parent-Teacher Conference in session at the University of Maryland.

"In 1940 and 1950 the schools will be using the 25 or 30 hour week," he declared. "This will present to the instructor the problem of guiding the student properly in the use of this extra recreational time."

Civilization is moving rapidly, he pointed out. The schools are trying to keep up with this movement. As a consequence they are getting out of touch with the minimum essentials of education. In general, it was shown that a revolutionary era in the field of education was scheduled for the near future.

Dr. Cooper, who yesterday ended a term of four years and five months, was appointed Commissioner of Education by former President Calvin Coolidge. At the time of his appointment he was superintendent and director of education in California. Dr. Cooper is a native of Sacramento, Calif.

A man of wide experience in education, he will continue in his field as professor of school and college administration at George Washington University. Dr. Cooper will be succeeded in office today as United States Commissioner by George F. Zook, Ph. D., former president of the University of Akron.

The Parent-Teacher conference is being held under the auspices of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers. The session will continue through Friday.

The other speakers on yesterday's program included Dr. R. A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland; Mrs. Rose Coppage, president of the Maryland Congress; Mrs. Margaret B. Giles, president of the Hagerstown organization; Mrs. A. C. Watkins, education secretary of the National Congress; Mrs. Charles E. Roe, field secretary of the National Congress; E. W. Broome, superintendent of the Montgomery County schools; Mrs. J. L. Sanders, president of the District of Columbia Congress; Miss Ellen Lombard and Mrs. Alfred C. Levis.

Marahrens, Hesse and Meiser.

36 Pursuit Planes Ordered by China

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—Receipt of an order from the Chinese government for 36 pursuit planes, powered with 9 cylinder, 700 horsepower engines, was announced today by the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Co., of Buffalo, N. Y. The planes will cost $1,000,000.

Officials of the company said the planes, equipped with the same type of motor as is being used by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in his flight to Greenland, were capable of a speed of more than 200 miles an hour.

T. P. Wright, vice president and general manager of the company, said one of the biplanes was recently demonstrated to government officials in China by Maj. James H. Doolittle.

Commoners Wed In King's Chapel

London, July 10 (A.P.).—By special permission of King George a professional dancer and a film producer were married today in the Chapel Royal at St. James' palace, where their majesties were married 40 years ago, last week.

The bride was Elaine Howlett, only daughter of Richard Howlett, superintendent of the king's wardrobe, who lives in St. James' palace. The groom was Patrick Brunner.

The wedding of "commoners" in the royal chapel is unrecorded in modern times. Miss Howlett is a goddaughter of Queen Mary.

A Well Bid Slam.

THERE is nothing particularly spectacular or remarkable about today's hand. It merely shows intelligent bidding which allowed the partnership to reach a practically laydown Small Slam. After all, there are only about two or three hands in an evening's play which really provide fireworks, and most of the evening is devoted to contracting for normal games and slams as well as part-scores.

The hand is also an instance of the safeguard afforded by the four no-trump convention, which kept the partners out of a Grand Slam contract which they might very well have bid had they not known that their opponents held an Ace.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ Q ♡ A Q 5 4 3 ◇ K Q 2 ♣ A J 10 8
♠ J 6 3 ♡ 8 ◇ 10 6 4 3 ♣ 9 5 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ A 9 7 5 ♡ 4 3 ♡ J 10 2 ◇ 9 5 ♣ Q 7
	♠ K 10 8 ♡ K 9 7 6 ◇ A J 8 7 ♣ K 6

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1♡	Pass	3♡(1)	Pass
4♣(2)	Pass	4◇(3)	Pass
4NT(4)	Pass	5♡(5)	Pass
Pass (6)	Pass

1—South has a very good three-heart bid and is almost strong enough to bid four. The four trumps and the doubleton club make the heart response superior to any amount of no-trump.

2—Showing another suit on this type of bidding is a definite Slam try. The four-club bid asks partner to take some positive action if he has more than a minimum three-heart bid.

3—South responds to North's Slam try in a positive manner. This showing of a new suit is at the least a mild acceptance of North's Slam try and, of course, is inferentially Forcing.

4—North, holding a very fine fit with the new suit disclosed to him by his partner, including the King of that suit, is now justified in making a four-no-trump bid. This bid shows two Aces and the King of one of the bid suits.

5—South does not hold two Aces and even though he has the Kings of two bid suits he can not possibly bid five notrump. However, since his hand fits almost perfectly with his partner's and has at least a little more strength than he has previously disclosed, he is justified, holding one Ace and both Kings, in immediately contracting for the Small Slam in hearts.

6—North's pass is now obvious. He knows his partner has a very strong hand, but he also knows that the Ace of spades, or possibly the Ace of diamonds instead, is missing. Therefore he can not contract for seven.

There is nothing to the play of the hand. East opened with the Ace of Spades and after drafting trumps, Declarer claimed the rest, actually having more tricks than he needed.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If East responds to West's opening bid of one spade with two no-trump, what should be the next bid of West and what should be the final contract?

West, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ J 5 4 3 2 ♡ J 4 ◇ 6 4 3 ♣ J 8 4

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Pollard Learns Mothers Do Name Daughters "California."

Richmond, Va., July 10 (A.P.).—What Gov. Pollard didn't know about girls named California would—and does—fill a special correspondence file.

The governor told of it today.

His trouble started during last year's governors' conference in Virginia. Gov. Pollard, in the company of Gov. Rolph of California, and Gov. Case of Rhode Island, made a speech for the talkies.

What he said went something like this: "Virginia is a grand old State. She is the mother of States, and the mother of Presidents. Mothers name their daughters Virginia. But, you never heard of a mother naming her daughter Rhode Island or California."

In the following months he heard of plenty of mothers who named their daughters California. He has heard from the daughters themselves. He has heard from them in such great volume that a special correspondence file had to be opened; in such great volume that he ran out of all of the polite Virginia gentleman apologies he ever heard of; in such great volume he finally resorted to a form letter of apology.

Turner Is Here Insisting He Won Air Race

Disqualification on Coast July 4 Goes Before Committee.

By Charles E. Planck.

Col. Roscoe Turner arrived in Washington yesterday for the hearing before the contest committee of the National Aeronautic Association at the headquarters of the association over who won the Thompson Trophy race at Los Angeles July 4.

After winning the Bendix speed race across the continent and the fast straightaway race at the field, Turner entered his Weddell-Williams plane in the speed classic, a dash of 100 miles around a closed course. At the fourth corner of the first lap, Turner failed to round the pylon, according to officials. On the next round, Turner turned this pylon, the "home" marker, just in front of the grandstands, and then went around it again, correcting, as he thought, the failure on the first lap.

He won the race, but after a protest meeting of pilots and committee, he was disqualified and first place given to Jimmy Weddell, designer of the three planes that finished first, second and third.

He said yesterday that he contemplated recommending no changes in the race rules, but that he was interested in the sportsmanship angle of the race.

"I want that trophy," he said. "Of course, I need the money. It seems we never get even on these races, no matter how much prize money we win, but I'm principally interested in the trophy. On that first lap, we were bunched at almost every pylon, and I would have wrecked an airplane or two if I had gone around it then. Like any other racing pilot, I'm fond of my neck, I'd like to see these races kept safe for the pilots."

The contest committee, headed by William McCracken, chariman, will meet Wednesday morning in N. A. A. headquarters to consider Turner's arguments. He arrived yesterday afternoon by Pennsylvania Airlines, after flying across the continent in commercial liners.

First prize money for the Thompson race was $3,375. Without this, Turner's winnings total $6,175.

Johns to Present Arts Club Actors

Comedian Will Be Master of Ceremonies at Show Thursday.

Workmen are converting one end of the Arts Club garden into a stage for the presentation, Thursday night, of a variety show headed by Brooke Johns as master of ceremonies.

Johns, stage and radio comedian who played opposite Ann Pennington in several Ziegfeld shows, is sojourning for a while on a farm near Rockville and is "coming to town" to help the Arts Club.

He will introduce a bill of eight acts, culled from local musical and radio talent. Among those featured are Evalyn Tyner, pianist, who accompanied Johns in much of his broadcasting; Gretchen Hood, soprano, and Estelle Dean, contralto.

Two skits, one by Theodore Tiller, jr., with Romaine Stephens, and the other by the Arts Club Players are scheduled. The Capital Hill Billies, the Dixie Trio, and the Duff Saxophone Quartet are also billed, with Johns and his familiar banjo concluding the program.

Prices Low Here, Says Littlepage

Holds Buying Elsewhere Shows a Lack of Responsibility.

"Ninety-nine per cent of everything and anything that a human being needs for his welfare and comfort can be purchased in Washington just as cheaply as any place else," Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, said last night in a radio address over Station WMAL.

Mr. Littlepage, speaking for the Buy in Washington Council, declared that buying elsewhere is "simply the lack of any individual feeling of responsibility."

He said that more than $20,000,000 a year is spent by Washington citizens outside of Washington for things that can be bought here just as good and just as cheap.

Slovakians Ask To Join Hungary

Geneva, July 10 (A.P.).—Separation from Czechoslovakia and union with Hungary was demanded today by a group of Slovakian emigres in a petition to the League of Nations council.

The petition declared conditions in Slovakia are catastrophic, that thousands of the inhabitants are emigrating to Argentina, Brazil, Canada and Africa, and that the only salvation lies in economic cooperation with Hungary.

A Czechoslovakian spokesman, commenting on the appeal, said the petitioners live in Vienna and do not represent the inhabitants of Slovakia.

Gone Are Toys Of Yesteryear, Shopper Finds

Taking Their Places Are 1933's Own Hot-Cha Machines.

By The Meanderer.

What has become of the old rag doll? Where are the battered tin soldiers? Gone, gone, shopper, into the heaven of all lost toys? But the fun they were and the joys they brought are lingering with us even now . . . In this sentimental strain the Meanderer sought the toy departments. Alas, and alack, she moaned, for the days that are gone forever, for the sweet ecstasies of childhood, for its myriad of simple thrills.

Almost sadly she turned her eyes to the game counter. A little wistfully she fingered a small square box. Precipitately she dropped it. What the Sam Hill! Dum-ti-di-dum-dum came the strains of a lively tune as top flew open and a gay little Parisian dancer leaped into view, tapping merrily to a rhythmic accompaniment. "Hello," said the Meanderer, "who are you?" The dancer paid no heed. "I suppose," said the Meanderer, half apologetically, "you might be a sort of cousin to my old pal, Mr. Jack-in-the-box?" The dancer smiled and nodded assent. "We spring from the same line of boxes," she said. P. S.—Believe it or not.

The sportsmen of tomorrow may find in the stores more than ample means for developing their inclinations. For instance, fond parent, suppose you have a budding baseball genius on your hands. Why not give a thought to the new baseball game which actually provides for hitting a real ball with a sure enough bat. The arrangement is such that the ball is attached to a pliable stalk. When bambinoed, instead of flying off into space, it merely dives to a little recorder which registers the skill of the hit by "base hit," "fly," "foul" or the like. The proxy teams are red and black pegs, which may be moved around a model field according to the indicator. This game is a safe bet, for even if junior doesn't like it, his dad is sure to.

And as for the future fishermen, they're well taken care of, too. A game has been devised for his benefit which includes a cardboard pond, a variety of fish with metal rings through their little noses, and a fishing pole with magnetized bait. In this case the fish are sure to bite.

Hail hunters of 20 years hence! With the new hunting game you have an opportunity you may never again have of shooting all in one day an assortment of birds ranging from parrots to penguins. There's even a canary. P-s-s-h, shopper—if Junior takes these things at all seriously it might be a good idea to buy an armored cage for Aunt Jane's pedigreed pet.

For the future aquatic marvel consider the grotesque water monsters who bear on their backs, or strictly speaking, through their middles, the young disciples of Neptune. Made of galvanized rubber, and having buoyancy enough to support a weighty adult, they are safe for the kiddies, and lotsa fun. Their variety of color and peculiarity of design insures their being ornamental if you should care to use them in your private pool or sunken tub. Just a suggestion, you know.

Something clever for the very young admiral is the floating wharf and boat set. Here's the opportunity of a lifetime for him to learn the solution to what might or might not be considered a real sea problem, e. g., how to dock his vessel at an unanchored wharf. If he wants to sail his wharf alongside his ship, tell him the Meanderer says that's all right, too. Yessir, Admiral, there are unlimited possibilities with a set like this. Price, $1.50.

Have you seen the optical illusion toy? It's a direct outgrowth of the school of sophistry. The old Greek stood around in the market place and propounded seemingly infallible arguments about things that just couldn't be so, whereas we moderns take out our little toy and say, "Now look here, you say it isn't so, and I know it's not, but here it is." To be bought in a popular drug store at a very reasonable price.

For the technical minded lad what could be more appropriate than the light wood block construction sets? Or the sailboat construction set? Or the aviation construction set? Constructive, productive, instructive, toys, boys. Afterthought: destructive. Hail to thee, blithe muse!

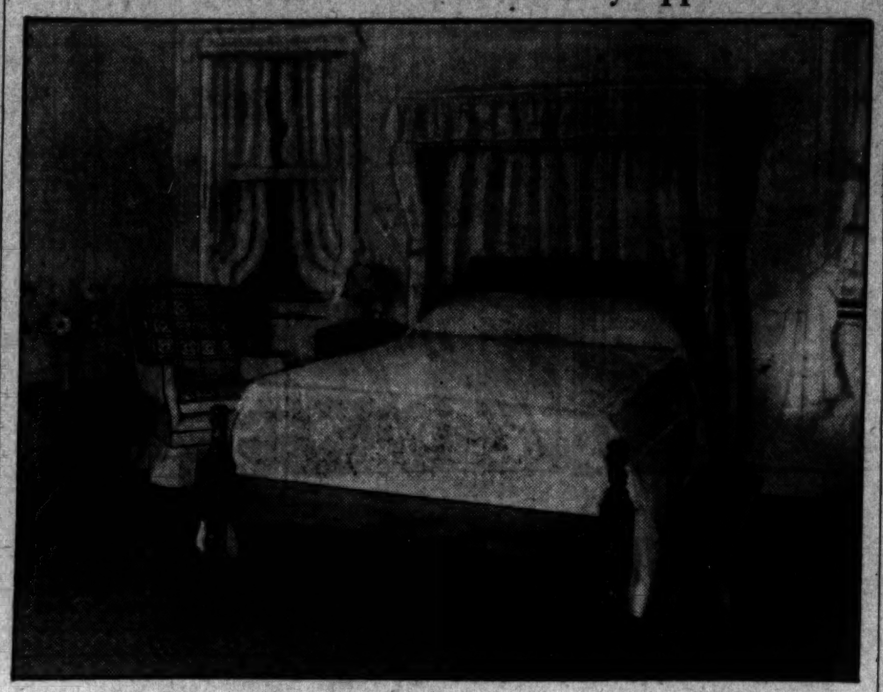

The Meanderer was pleased to note this morning as she made the rounds of the toy departments that adults are not altogether neglected. In one store she found a fascinating pair of two wheeled roller skates designed especially to test the prowess of one of you. Let us add that casualty cushions may be bought separately. Here's a great chance for the brave and the bold.

A little light on the 3.2 per cent problem is the new "Three Point Two" lamp now on display at a certain department store.

Best buys for the day: Canvas beach bags, 54 cents. Tally cards, 10 cents a dozen. Eight-piece dresser set, $2.95. Monogrammed stationery, 59 cents. Electric fans, $1.95. Thirty-piece luncheon set, $1. Brown seal coat, $236. Sheer chiffon hose, tropical shades, 49 cents. Hand-made linen handkerchiefs, 10 cents each.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column in The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 27, or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Model Bedroom Has Cool Summery Appearance

Crisp dotted Swiss at the windows and over the bed canopy in this model bedroom from a local department store give a delightful summery appearance. The candlewick bedspread and candlewick edging on the canopy harmonize pleasingly with the Swiss. The quaint poster bed, the tables and the catechism bench, revived from other days, are of maple. A bedroom of this sort will interest those who liked the maple living room published yesterday on this page. Readers may call the women's department of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 3, to know where to find this model bedroom and to know the prices of the various pieces of furniture shown.

Fashion Says Mouths Must Be Prominent

Joan Crawford Influence Responsible for Full Painted Lips.

Women are trying to make their mouths look larger.

It's a strange statement, but true. Modern make-up calls for scarlet lipstick over the complete area of the lips, and then if the mouth doesn't look prominent enough, stretch the lipstick over the edges to do a bit of enlarging.

So gone are the tiny rosebud mouths of other years. Gone is the make-up technique which decreed a daintily arched cupid's bow on the upper lip, and only a dab of the color on the lower lip, with never an application of red into the corners.

Unlovely as it sounds then, big-mouthed women are fashionable. Who started all this? What is the authority for such a startling decree? Hollywood is the simple answer. Joan Crawford influence, more than likely. Women have seen on the screen how effective are the full red lips of movie stars, and the Joan Crawford mouth is being imitated from coast, to coast.

"We paint the lips fully—even boldly"—a cosmetician representing a well-known line of beauty aids explained. "And our instructions to the customers buying the new lipsticks are to cover all the mouth, even its smallest corner, with color."

The accenting of mouths or their enlargement with the aid of lipstick may call forth catty remarks among the once gentle sex.

"I've heard Jane talk about her small mouth. Wish you'd look at it. Is there anything small about that?" is a sample of what one woman may be saying about another in these big-mouthed days.

Original in Metropolitan Museum Gave Idea for Crane Bed.

The bed shown in the photograph is of hard, fine quality maple. It is known as a crane bed, from the designing of the partial canopy in crane shape. The original of this bed was a folding bed, copied from one in the Metropolitan Museum, but the reproduction is not expected to fold.

The chief color note in the bedroom is the chair, with its upholstery and cushions of rich yellow candlewicked in brown. The coloring is particularly effective with the rich maple tones.

The catechism bench, a reproduction of the benches which helped our ancestors get into their high, old beds. The crane bed is built to give the high colonial effect, so that the little bench actually is a useful piece of furniture.

The sheer Swiss canopy of the bed and the ruffled Swiss curtains give the room a cool atmosphere which may be given due consideration in furnishing bedrooms in the summer in Washington.

What Today Means

By Mary Blake.

"CANCER."

INFLUENCES operating on this date should prove stimulating to conversation; people will tend to talk more than usual, and will speak with greater ease and with authority. Talk will take on a serious tone and matters of moment will be generally discussed. Advice given to the younger generation will seem to "sink in" on this date.

The child born on this July 11 will seldom disobey his parents; he will rely almost entirely on them for guidance in all matters. Take care not to let him become "tied to his mother's apron strings." This little one will experience considerable difficulty in adjusting himself to things when they go against him. Do not fight his battles for him.

If July 11 is the date of your birth, you are too much inclined to let other people make your decisions, you must learn to be more decisive, to be more the master of your own destiny. Do not let yourself be caught in this or that current and tossed here and there on the sea of life; you can accomplish great things in this life if you firmly resolve to do so.

Born on July 11, you are an omnivorous reader and your preference lies in books biographical in nature. You are a profound thinker; the superficialities of life you see right through. You must have many people around you for your happiness and you will do your best work in some field where you can come in contact with many persons of various types. You like to entertain a great deal and you enjoy going out socially. You will be an inspiration to your mate, and if you are wise, you will take an active interest in the affairs, business or scial, of your "better half."

Successful people born on July 11: John Quincy Adams, sixth President of the United States.

Children Need Variety in Food For Summer

Dietician Offers Help on Preparation of Dishes.

Light, simple food for children through the hot months is the only safe diet for them, all mothers know. But the foods that are simple and wholesome may at the same time be monotonous if thought is not given to their preparation.

One dietician who plans many delightful summer meals for children turns a pear half down on a plate, sticks almonds upright in the small end of the pear, two currants below the almonds, and a piece of pimiento below the currants, and presto—the pear assumes a bunny face. A fluff of whipped cream makes the bunny's tail.

When arranging vegetable salads for children, this food expert suggests placing spoonfuls of vegetables of contrasting colors in a ring, thus capturing the children's interest more than customary methods of serving.

Apple butter and cream cheese are mixed to make sandwiches suitable for children. Prune bread, orange bread, and raisin bread will be welcomed with childish relish if mothers include them in the menus for the youngsters.

Record Air Travel This Year Forecast

American Airways Official Says June Best Month In Line's History.

This year will establish a new all-time record in air passenger transportation, according to L. B. Manning, chairman of the board of American Airways, in discussing that line's record-breaking month of June business. The system carried 14,405 passengers during June, 4,000 more than their best previous month. This record is 65 per cent more than all passengers carried by all airlines in 1927.

"Following every major depression," Mr. Manning said, "some new form of transportation has been instrumental in opening up new fields and new markets to help restore business. The speed of the airplane, its flexibility and many other advantages, make it the logical transportation medium to help business go ahead now.

"Consider the growth of 10-year-old air transportation. There were 8,679 passengers in 1927 and nearly 500,000 in 1932. Enormous strides have been made in equipment, operations and management. Planes fly at 170 miles an hour on our New York-Chicago schedule, and before the year is out we will have planes on that line that will have a speed of 226 miles an hour. Compare this with the 75-mile-an-hour plane of three and four years ago."

Undies Grow Briefer But Gain Utility

'Skimps' and 'Smoothies' Replace Grandmother's Elaborate Styles.

By Dare.

ISN'T the modern lingerie simply adorable? There is something irresistibly delicious about it, that's all. One feels a little chuckle bubbling up from one's toes just looking at things like I illustrated for you today—the American style-maker's answer to the modern woman's lingerie problem!

"Skimps" and "smoothies" and names like that adequately describe them, too—these pieces of lingerie which the modern lady puts on 'neath her elegant gown. The less said about them the better—I think—because you could cover one of them with a few written words, you see.

That's because they are so very, very scarce. The short story, then the short, then the short short—in literature, compares to madame's lingerie. Short shorter, im-possibly short—but not so brief or short that the lingerie of today doesn't fulfill all the duties that great-grandmother's frilled knee-length drawers ever did!

Briefer than brief panties, or shorts, are nice. They really should be a cloth or knitted silk which is very stretchable, to be comfortable. And the latest ones have an elastic woven right into the waist, and every possible consideration is given every possible movement of the body—by specialists in research! Then the new brassieres can really fit under a postage stamp, as the story goes—because there is "far less than harf of that behind" and very little in front. As to shoulder straps! They simply don't exist • • • or seemingly don't.

Then the "smoothies." These fill a long-felt want! The figure that prefers a semblance of some support, in the form of a corset or something, likes to wear the all-in-one smooth undergarment with nary a seam or a rosebud to disturb the the contour. Of knitted silk, or of any of the new materials which are not quite knitted and not quite fabric, there are ever so many different styles of this type of lingerie on the well-known horizon.

And lastly, the self-gartered stocking! These have to be seen, absolutely, to be understood. One thinks immediately of a stocking with an elastic somehow woven or sewn to its top—nothing of the sort. The self-gartered stocking is elasticisized at the top, as it were. And the top means, a nice, deep top about 3 inches down. So-o-o-o-o, have you any doubt that these stockings stay put—without aid of garters? They do!

Have you the spare time to make yourself another "dressmaker" bathing suit? Why not—when you can so easily and inexpensively! And this dressmaker bathing suit is going to delight you, too. You can make it out of calico or gingham, silk or crepe, woolen or lahmay. And whatever material you choose, you may be sure that you will be pleased with the results. Pleased with yourself, too, for thinking to send a stamped (3-cent) self-address envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet which tells you how to make this suit!

• • • •

Ship-ahoy! All dressed up in dary navy jersey or brown or gray flannel, and these trousers over shorts of black flannel stripped in blue . . . which are matched by the jacket. One wears a white skirt over the shorts, or the shorts outright—if one wants sun and admiration, and the underpinnings rate the latter! At least, Heim has figured all this out for the nautical lady . . .

Au revoir!

Ham in Many Guises Makes Summer Cooking Easier

Buying the whole ham, you get it at a better price, you know. And when you think of all the wonderful eating, hot and cold, you can get out of a juicy boiled or baked ham, the time spent cooking it is relatively small.

As for variety—the ways you can cook that ham would fill a book. You can boil it whole with spices and fruit juices, as most every one (including that good cook, Marie Dressler) likes it. You can boil it whole first, then bake it with a gorgeous coating of ground peanuts—in a recipe that came to me from the South recently.

Or you can have it cut up into choice center slices, shank end and butt end. The center slices for broiling and frying (with bananas or pineapple). The butt end for baking all studded with cloves and coated with brown sugar. The shank end for cooking in one of those famous boiled dinners with vegetables that Cartoonist Percy Crosby loves to face.

Ins and Outs of Cooking.

The ins and outs of it all are quite simple. The first is to choose your ham carefully. If you buy a reliable brand, you can count on tender, juicy meat—without soaking. If you choose a fair-sized ham—say 10 pounds—you'll have less waste than in a smaller ham.

As for cooking—for a so-called boiled ham, the rule is to scrub it well, put it on in hot water to cover, and simmer (not boil) about 25 minutes to each pound. When it is done, skin it and put it back into the liquor (unless you are serving it hot), to cool. This makes it juicier.

Even if you want to bake your ham, you'll find it juicier when cooked first like this, in water on top of the stove.

In the matter of seasonings, there are practically endless interesting ingredients you can cook with your ham to give it that come-hither taste. Choose any combination you like, from the following (amounts given are for 10-pound ham): 1 carrot, 1 onion, 2 stalks celery with leaves, few sprigs parsley, 1 teaspoon whole cloves, 1 teaspoon whole allspice, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 1 teaspoon whole black pepper, 2 bay leaves, 2-inch stick cinnamon.

For a fine fruity flavor, it's a good trick to add 3 or 4 cups cider or 2 cups grape juice when ham is three-fourts done.

For the elegant baked ham with peanuts that I spoke about in the beginning, here's how: After scrubbing ham thoroughly, put it on in hot water barely to cover it. Add 1 tablespoon celery seed, 2 bay leaves, 1 teaspoon whole cloves. Simmer 2 hours. Then remove skin and cover fat thickly with 2 cups peanuts (ground fine). Put the ham, fat side up, in roaster. Bake in hot oven (425) about 20 minutes. Then reduce heat to 350, add 2 cups hot water and bake slowly till tender (about 3 hours). Then remove ham to hot platter. Thicken the drippings in the pan with 3 tablespoons flour mixed smooth in 3 tablespoons cold water. Stir 2 tablespoons peanut butter into this gravy and serve it hot in a separate dish.

Barbecued Ham.

For a newer version of the popular barbecued-ham idea, this recipe is one of the best I know. You start (for four people) with four thin slices of raw ham, weighing from 8 to 10 ounces each. Soak these in milk to cover for several hours. Then brown them (don't dry them out too fast cooking) nicely on both sides in a hot frying pan. Remove them to a hot platter. To the fat in the pan add 4 tablespoons vinegar. Then stir in ½ teaspoon dry mustard mixed with ¼ teaspoon paprika and 2 tablespoons sugar. Let this boil up, then pour it over ham slices. Serve with corn relish, home-fried potatoes and buttered spinich or scalloped tomatles. That will be eating! And all to the good on the cooking side, too, because it doesn't take much time.

Send for More Recipes.

What else to do with ham? I have a whole new bulletin of ideas for you. Including all the favorite finishes to give baked ham—such as brown sugar and mustard, clove and cider, crumb-crust finish. And favorite sauces to serve with ham—such as currant, mustard and cider sauce. And four ways to bake luscious thick slices of ham. One of them with green apples, which ought to be in market soon. All this besides directions for cooking smoked pork tenderlons and picnic hams.

Today's Mode Adds New Fillip to Nature

It took just a decade for women's clothes to develop from the ungraceful straightline fashions that were popular following the war to the natural line feminine silhouette that everyone is wearing today. Amos Parrish, noted fashion authority, whose daily articles will appear on the Woman's Page of The Washington Post, beginning Monday, July 18, believes that the natural feminine styles of 1933 are the most attractive and artistic women have worn for years.

"Our research," says Mr. Parrish, "shows that present-day costume fashions are the result of a long, gradual development. The basic trends go back to shortly after the war, when a reaction began against the boyish, unfeminine styles.

"In 1923 the silhouette began to change from the straight line—the perfectly pencil-straight silhouette. There was a slightly molded effect at the waistline, something just slightly suggestive of the present mode.

"In 1924 and 1925 more of a reaction took place. Pleats were introduced in the skirt, breaking the perfectly straight lines.

"The trend toward more femininity and more formality became greater each season. More attention was given to dressmaker details, to intricate seaming, to fitting the body and to being more decorative. Until last year, 1932, we found the silhouette lines following almost exactly the antural body lines.

"And it's still a natural feminine silhouette—with shoulder width slightly exaggerated, with easy fitted natural waist line and slim skirt. Certainly the best-to-look-at silhouette there's been for years."

Submerged Peak Found Off Coast of California

San Francisco, July 10 (A.P.).—Discovery of a submerged mountain lying about 52 miles southwest of Point Sur, Monterey County, was announced today by Capt. R. S. Patton, director of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey.

The mountain, he said, rising 7,500 feet from the depths of more than 2 miles, is 10 miles long and runs north and south.

British Chambers Urge Pound Be Decimalized

London, July 10 (A.P.).—A resoluton urging the pound sterling be "decimalized without delay" was passed unanimously tonight by the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire.

The resolution suggested the pound be valued at 200 pence (at present it is 240 pennies) and that a nickel coin worth two pence be substituted for the present three-penny coin.

Child Forgets None of Happy Days at Home

Care Should Be Taken That Early Impressions Are Good.

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne.

Six-year-old Peter living gloriously the year round in the sun and surf of a California beach utters time and again the wistful plaint to be "Back in my home, in Brooklyn, N. Y., where my sled is."

The memory of a sled and grimy ends of snow in a city street dim for him the charms of the really far more satisfactory immediate present.

Three-year-old Dan, welcoming his father back from a visit to their summer cottage asks eagerly for each well-known detail of the spot where he spent the previous summer. Is his tricycle with the ribbons that Daddy tied on the handle bars still standing where he put it in the garage?

Is the picture with the dog and the rabbit still hanging in his room over his bed? Is Peggy (the summer's playmate) living in her house? Did Daddy see her. Did Daddy see the big pile of stones that he and Peggy made in the brook? Did the brook have lots and lots of water in it as it did the day when there was the big thunderstorm?

And as his father reassured him about each separate thing in turn, Dan laughed aloud with the sheer joy of remembering so much happiness.

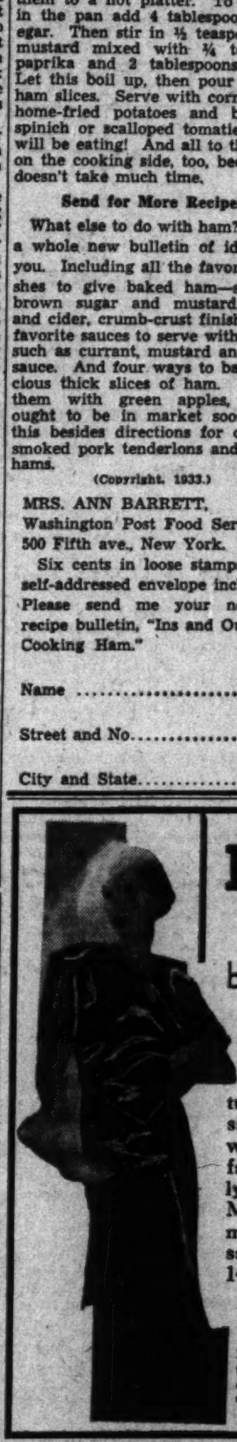

Children forget nothing of those places where they have been happy. Each smallest detail is precious to them. They long to return to the distant past of a year ago as the world traveler of decades longs for home.

The fact should make us consider how important are these impressions in shaping the child's appreciations and values. We should see to it that the right things make him happy, in order that his remembered joys may include the best sort of play and companionship as well as beauty in terms which are real to him.

Mary Pickford Loses Point in $25,000 Suit

Los Angeles, July 10 (A.P.).—Mary Pickford, film actress, lost today the first round of her suit to recover $25,000 she invested in a beneficiary trust.

Superior Judge L. W. Roth sustained a demurrer brought by the defendants, Bayly Brothers, Inc., the California Bank and others. She has 15 days in which to amend her complaint. The actress asserted the investment was misrepresented to her.

Little Folks

By Mary Brook Lucas

(All rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service. Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

Big folks build castles in the air, but Little Brother has a more material idea! He builds his in the sand pile. They don't last, but it's fun building! Especially when one can wear a cool white poplin suit with red and blue trimmings. In a suit like this one can be a skipper or a bridge builder!

Clothes with imagination! That' what the children love. The "Little Miss Muffet" frock of checked lawn is adorable with its white organdy apron. Sister follows in Jeanne's and Judy's footsteps and at a very young age is quite clothes conscious. Her frock of pastel pink dimity is bound with navy blue braid.

The new boy who is visiting across the street watches the fun going on in the Stylefinder yard. Very spic and span, his mother has sent him out to play in a natural linen crash Eton suit. Perhaps Little Brother will see him and invite him to join the play group!

Count on a coquette to spot the handsome young man across the way! She wears a lacy knit sweater and cotton skirt. Her delightful companion is dressed in a very Parisian frock of pale pink zephyr. The square neckline, high waist, little puffed sleeves and tiny beret are easily copied in other colors.

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

BECAUSE broadcasting stations are already licensed by a responsible governmental body, the Federal Radio Comission, broadcasters are somewhat in doubt as to procedure in formulating a code of fair practice to present to the National Industrial Recovery Administration. They are, of course, anxious to comply with the law and to work in the fullest cooperation with Gen. Hugh Johnson, but desire to avoid a possible conflict of authority.

Broadcasters feel that they are almost in the same category with the railroads operating under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The question is being given careful consideration, but thus far has proved pretty much of a problem, according to Phil Loucks, of the National Association of Broadcasters.

No such question arises with the manufacturers, but it was the opinion of Bond Geddes, executive vice president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association, that the task of formulating a code of fair prices for the radio industry and its separate divisions for presentation to the National Industrial Recovery Administration will take at least three weeks. An outline of the code was considered yesterday at Buffalo at a meeting of the board of directors of the association.

Just how it will be brought to the attention of the entire membership has not as yet been decided, but there may be a meeting of the association to which all members will be invited.

The progress being made in administering the Industrial Control section of the National recovery act will be outlined by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper in the National Radio Forum tonight, over WRC at 9:30 o'clock.

"If you really want to do a thing, nothing in the world can stop you." That's the philosophy that has guided to success Mrs. Gertrude Berg, creator of the Goldberg family. The truism was put to a severe test before Mrs. Berg was able to convince radio executives that her stories had popular appeal.

IT'S apt to be pretty tough sledding for those who will follow Ed Wynn tonight. (WRC—8:30 p. m.). A realization of his popularity came to us one spring night walking through Park road toward Fourteenth street. Windows were up and it seemed as if everyone from one end of the block to the other, on both sides of the street, were tuned in on Ed Wynn.

Nevertheless everyone must have a change occasionally, audience as well as performers, so it may be a good thing all around. Here's hoping, however, that Wynn gets back in time to attend the National Firemen's parade in Washington. He is, of course, a commercial fireman; nevertheless his presence here at that time would add much to the gayety of the occasion.

So we trust that Eddie Gilmore, who thus far hasn't overlooked any good bets in connection with the event, will see to it that he receives an invitation.

When the curtain goes up tonight, with Ed Wynn absent, Taylor Holmes, veteran of the stage, will play the role of the chief's uncle when the siren rings across the countryside on Tuesday night. The "uncle," often the subject of Wynn's jokes, will be given an opportunity to defend himself. He is expected to appear in the New Amsterdam roof studio attired in the garb of the gay 90's.

He will be accompanied by Olaf, the Swedish custodian of the chief's horse and pets. Larry, juvenile mascot of the firehouse, will be there, too. Gustave (Wamp) Carlson, Swedish dialect comedian, will be Olaf. Larry Butler, 9-year-old performer, will be assigned the mascot's lines. Graham McNamee will be the foil for Holme's banter and the Voorhees Orchestra will continue to dispense the harmonies.

CARDINAL HAYES, of New York, will be heard from Syracuse over WJSV at 11:30 o'clock this morning, celebrating the Pontifical High Mass at the installation of the Rev. John A. Duffy as Catholic Bishop of Syracuse. Cardinal Hayes will speak in the Immaculate Conception Cathedral in that city.

It was just before the B. A. Rolfe Saturday night broadcast. The studio was rapidly filling. The rotund director of the orchestra was fumbling through the outspread music on his conductor's stand.

Rolfe tapped for quiet. Suddenly he cried, "How're you, Duchess!"

Two women visitors on the front row looked up startled, then began to laugh.

Rolfe was giving his orchestra the order of the evening's program.

Wagnerian music comprises most of the New York Philharmonic Symphony program under the direction of Willem van Hoogstraten over WMAL at 8 o'clock tonight. There will be a five-minute break in the orchestral broadcast at 8:30 o'clock to make way for an announcement, but the concert will be resumed at 8:35 and continue until 9 o'clock.

The program follows:

Symphony No. 3 in E flat (Eroica), Beethoven.

Prelude to Act III, "Die Meistersinger," Wagner.

Prize Song, "Die Meistersinger," Wagner.

Bacchanale, "Tannhaeuser," Wagner.

Ride of the Valkyries, "Die Walkuere," Wagner.

"RELIEF for Home Owners" is the subject of an interview with Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, broadcast over WMAL, at 10:15 p. m. The senator will be queried by D. E. McEvoy, secretary of the Home Mortgage Advisory Board.

Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit will join in a musical tribute to the Windy City when they sing "Chicago" during the Plantation program over WRC, 7:00 p. m.

For the first time since the feature, Memories' Garden, has been on the air, Emanuel Rosenberg, tenor, will sing the poetic signature which opens the broadcast, at 3:45 p. m., over WJSV.

Entitled "Memories," the signature is an original composition with words and music by Vincent Percy, organist of the presentation which originates in the studios of WHK, Cleveland.

Channon Collinge, conductor, who received his light opera training under Sir Arthur Sullivan, will present the second act of "The Pirates of Penzance," tonight at 9 o'clock, over WJSV.

MAYOR HOAN of Milwaukee who is credited with keeping his city out of debt, will tell how he did it. (WMAL at 6:15 p. m.).

Query: If the Socialist mayor could keep Milwaukee out of debt during the depression what will he be able to do now that beer is back?

It seems to us interest in the broadcast of the forthcoming stratosphere flight at Chicago is being killed off instead of stimulated by the over press-agenting of the event. Too much ballyhoo will kill anything.

Ben Bernie will feature on his program tonight from the Century of Progress grounds, Chicago, a number which will end forever all undramatic songs. The title of this song is, "If I'd of Knew What I'd Ought to Know I'd Never Have Did What I Done."

Another tune will be a new novelty tune called "Moonlight and Pretzels." The old maestro also promises a new version of his outstanding success of this season, "Let's Sing Like the Birdies Sing." (WRC, 8 o'clock).

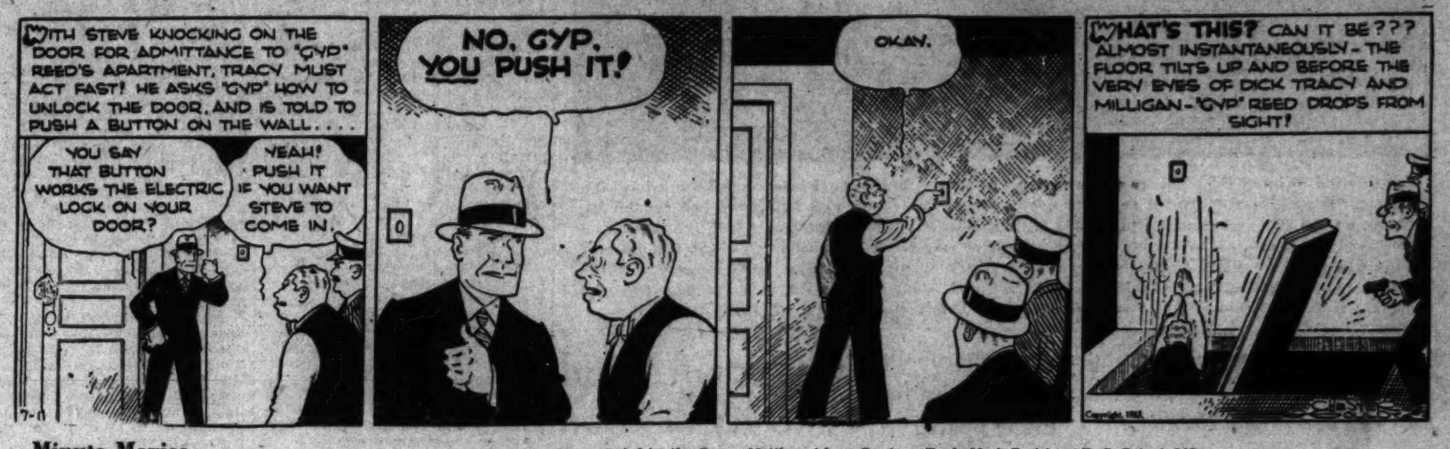

FOR the first time on the air, the story of the conviction of Al Capone, Chicago's public enemy number one, will be dramatically reproduced by a cast of actors, representing actual characters, in the regular weekly "Lives at Stake" program on WRC at 9 o'clock tonight.

The life at stake was that of District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson who defied Capone's powerful underworld gang to send the country's most notorious gangster to the Atlanta Penitentiary.

Bank Clearings Of Nation Now Near 5 Billions

By Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

New York, July 10.—Bank clearings are heavier again, some additional leading centers now showing important gains. The total this week at all larger cities in the United States, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., of $4,987,320,000 was 8.6 per cent higher than that of a year ago. At New York City, clearings were $3,635,776,000, an increase of 13.8 per cent, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,351,444,000 was 3.6 per cent lower.

Chicago clearings are in excess of those of last year for the first time in many months. Increases also appear at Boston, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Dallas, Louisville and San Francisco. The report this week is for five business days only. There was an increase of $228,821,000 over the total clearings for the full week preceding; a year ago the increase over the preceding week was $838,141,000. In some measure clearings at this time cover the larger settlements incident to the close of the half year; the half-yearly settlements a year ago were apparently heavier than they were this year.

Curb Leaders Higher as Wet Shares Climb

Mines Turn Quiet, With Oils Easy; Sales Drop to 774,000 Units.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—Despite irregularity the majority of curb market leaders closed higher today. Distillery issues assumed the spotlight in the late dealings after the utilities had relinquished it, following a forenoon flourish.

Advances of 4 and 5 points respectively were recorded by Distillers Seagrams and Hiram Walker, while Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" rose 2.

Mining shares were generally quiet. Bunker Hill & Sullivan advanced 4 in a small turnover.

Early advances of more than 2 points were reduced to fractions at close in Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric. Other utilities closing around a point higher included American Light & Traction and Columbia Gas & Electric Preferred.

Oils were slightly reactionary, losses of fractions to more than a point were recorded in Gulf, Humble and Standard of Nebraska.

A few industrials issues were soggy at the close, including Aluminum Co. of America, National Sugar, and Pan-American Airways. Swift & Co., improved slightly while Parker Rustproof gained 5½ points to establish a new high. Transfers totaled 774,000 shares compared to 1,023,000 for last Friday.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the stock exchange started the week steadily with strength being registered in gilt-edged securities and shipping shares. However, other sections drooped, especially industrials and recent speculative favorites, due to realizing. Transatlantic issues eased in sympathy with Wall street reports. The closing was irregular.

Berlin—Quotations on the boerse were weaker today.

Paris—The hesitation in the Wall street market was reflected in the irregular losses on the bourse. International issues were the chief sufferers. French stocks were steadier and rentes strong as a consequence of the creation of the gold bloc and governmental promises of a financial overhauling in the autumn. The market closed heavy.

Stocks Record Loss After Spotty Trading

Market Turns Soggy in Spite of Strength of Wet and Baking Issues; Drop Averages Nine-Tenths; Sales Total 4,841,065 Shares.

New York, July 10 (A.P.)—New highs in the grain and cotton markets and a new low for dollar exchange failed to inspire much sympathetic enthusiasm on the stock exchange today.

Shares displayed spotty strength, confined largely to amusement, baking and wet shares. Rails were soggy and leading industrials acted a bit weary. Utilities had a flare during the forenoon, but quiet later. The average net change, as measured by the averages, was a small loss. Trading was active before noon, then simmered down. Volume totaled 4,841,065 shares.

The market's indifference to exchange fluctuations—sterling lifted to around $4.83 and the dollar dipped under 70 cents as figured against gold—or to strength in commodities contrasted with its willingness to rally under similar circumstances last week. Many brokerage houses, however, have been counseling caution and traders seemed willing to pocket further profits under cover of the boost for selected groups.

While alcohol favorites soared 3 to 7 points and motion picture shares from fractions to nearly 3, such issues as Westinghouse, General Electric, Kennecott, Anaconda, American Tobacco "B", Woolworth, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, U. S. Steel preferred, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Chrysler, and American Telephone were losing ½ to more than 2 points net. Consolidated Gas, North American and several other utilities improved moderately, but as a whole the market was again in a selective mood. "Bread" issues were up fractions to about 2.

Visible Supply of Grain.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat increased 947,000; corn increased 3,247,000; oats increased 734,000; rye increased 161,000; barley increased 38,000.

Dollar's Decline Is Blamed for Recall of Foreign Gold

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—The depreciation of the American dollar to around 70 per cent of its gold standard parity is the major reason, bankers state, for the decision of foreign countries to call home what remains of their earmarked gold now in the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

When the United States left gold and put an embargo on export shipments, an exception was made in the case of the yellow metal held here for foreign account.

Gold holdings for this account totaled some $400,000,000 at the time of the national bank holiday. Since then approximately 25 per cent has been taken home.

According to international custom, earmarked gold is regarded as a trust fund, and it is considered unlikely there there will be any interference if foreign banks desire their metal. There is no free market for gold in this country, banking quarters explain, and as a result central banks can not sell America their holdings except at a loss.

The only free market for gold now in existence is located in London. The rate quoted there is a substantial premium over the $20.67 per ounce set by law in the United States.

Many bankers believe the administration envisages the establishment here of a free market for gold in the near future, in which case foreign earmarked metal could be purchased advantageously by the United States.

Bonds Manage One-Tenth Rise On Lighter Sale

Irregular Trading Appears as Turnover Drops to $17,108,000.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—Strength of foreign obligations, coincident with another sharp decline of the American dollar in European exchange centers, was the feature today of a rather irregular bond market.

With most corporation maturities displaying a hesitant attitude, trading lost some of its recent feverish speed. Sales totaled $17,108,000, par value, compared with $25,522,000 last Friday. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues, however, managed to edge up one-tenth of a point to another new high for the year at 81.3.

Purchasing of foreign loans, as a sort of refuge for the wavering dollar, put Dutch East Indies bonds up 2¾ to 10½ points; French issues, up around 2 to 4, and those of Great Canada, Italy, Japan up 1 to more than 2. Loans of German were somewhat mixed.

Most of the utilities, industrials and rails moved uncertainly, although they absorbed profit taking without too much difficulty and managed to finish the day with losses and gains about evenly divided.

A few of the carriers got up a point or more. Among these were some mortgages of Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation, Denver & Rio Grande, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville, Southern Pacific and Pere Marquette.

Amusement company bonds responded to reports of a pickup in business. Warner Bros., 6s advanced 3 points and Paramount loans were up 1 to 2. Gains of 1 to around 3 were held by issues of Armour & Co. Hudson Coal, Postal Telegraph and Western Union.

United States Government securities, although still rather quiet were a trifle easier.

The American dollar dropped 7½ cents on the London market today, closing at $4.80½, within striking distance of the old parity with the British pound, $4.86.

In an uncertain market marked by erratic movements, the dollar opened at $4.73, weakened to $4.84½ and then moved under covering orders to the final price.

Irregular movements also prevailed in the gold currencies. After touching 85.03 francs to the pound, the French currency recovered to 84.96 under controlled support, while the Dutch guilder closed unchanged at 8.24 to the pound after loss of an earlier improvement.

Paris, July 10 (A.P.).—The American dollar lost 61 centimes in the Paris market today, closing officially at 17.57 francs to the dollar (5.7 cents to the franc). British sterling was steadier.

Berlin, July 10 (A.P.).—The dollar closed here today at 2.92 marks to the dollar (34.25 cents to the mark).

Wall Street Briefs.

New York July 10 (A.P.).—L. M. Williams, jr., president of Freeport, Texas Co., estimates that the company earned approximately $1.30 a common share in the first six months of 1933, compared with $1.45 in the first half of last year. Shipments already scheduled for July represent an increase of about 80 per cent over July, 1932.

Ethel Corporation has ordered twelve tank cars from General American Transportation Co.

Approximately 90 per cent of the holders of seven Wabash Railway Equipment trust certificates and notes have assented to the receivers' plan for extending the maturities three years from the 1933-34 due dates. Agreements covering another issue, the notes of 1920 maturing 1934 and 1935, are now ready for circulation.

Dow, Jones & Co., said today that Chesapeake Corporation Holding Co., controlling Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, had sold slightly more than 200,000 shares of C. & O. common stock, realizing about $9,000,000 which was applied to reducing the corporation's bank loans.

The cotton belt, particularly the Western section, experienced one of the driest Junes on record, the New York Cotton Exchange Service reported today. This condition, says the service, makes generous rains necessary in July and August if satisfactory yields of cotton per acre are to be produced.

The total suger melt of 13 United States refiners from January 1 to July 1 was 1,950,000 long tons against 1,885,000 in the same period last year, the Sugar Institute, Inc., reports. Deliveries for the period amounted to 1,745,000 long tons compared with 1,705,000 last year.

Common stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation numbered 189,569 on June 1, a decrease of 3,299 from March 18, the record date for the annual meeting. The total of preferred stockholders in May entitled to the dividend was 63,517 against 63,549 on March 18.

The New York Central Railroad had May net income of $105,708 as contrasted with net loss of $3,963,796 in the same month of 1932. For the first five months of this year the road's net loss was $7,970,509 after taxes and charges against loss of $7,983,124 for the corresponding period of 1932.

Goods Market.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—With presidential approval of the cotton industry code, finished goods prices were being brought to parity with gray cloths today. Sheets and pillow cases are up 7 cents to 42 cents a yard based on 10-4 bleached goods. Rayon prices are very firm. Wool dress goods are in active call, but agents restrict sales until the recovery act affects the industry as a whole. Burlap opened firm. Silk traders await action on the code recently submitted at Washington.

Fertilizer Code Near Adoption, Brand Reports

Committee of 29 at Work on Pact; All Groups Invited to Aid.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Definite progress toward adoption of a code of fair competition for the fertilizer industry is being made by the National Fertilizer Association, according to Charles J. Brand, executive secretary and treasurer of the association.

A recovery committee of 29 members is now engaged in formulating the code and provisions have been made for enlarging this committee in case related groups desire to participate.

Mr. Brand has announced that in taking the lead in alignment under the provisions of the national industrial recovery act, the association desires to invite all companies and individual operators to become members of the representative trade association of the fertilizer industry.

Scope of Invitation.

This invitation includes all fertilizer manufacturers and producers, whether of complete fertilizer or of fertilizer materials. It also includes producers and importers of chemicals used in fertilizer manufacture, such as sulphur, pyrites and sulphuric acid; importers, brokers, distributors, sales agents, commission merchants and dealers.

In accordance with a recent change in the by-laws of the association, any eligible company may now become a member by merely filing with the executive secretary and treasurer a proper application showing such eligibility. Formerly the by-laws required that applications for membership be approved by the board of directors.

This restriction was removed in order to meet fully the requirements of the national industrial recovery act.

Consumer Buying Needed.

Increase of consumer purchases is necessary for business recovery, so members of the Washington Association of Credit Men have been informed by Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men.

He tells them that during the past 30 days there has been a continuation of the generally favorable prospects for business recovery. Coupled with this there has also been a continuation of the spirit of confidence. This confidence is of a more sane type than it has been in some of our periods of hopefulness during the past few years.

It is based upon some tangible evidences of betterment with a recognition that there are still barriers which must be surmounted if the recovery is to be sound.

Increase in Production.

"While the increase in production is highly encouraging," he states, "it will be necessary that consumer purchases continue to increase if the productive activity is to be continuous in nature. It stands to reason that production advances can not be carried on for a very long period of time without commodity purchasing.

"Thus, we see the importance of the spirit of confidence which is necessary to advances in consumer purchasing and also the importance of the efforts being made to bring about remedies for the unemployment situation as rapidly as possible."

At the last regular meeting of the board of directors of Washington Loan & Trust Co., a dividend of 2 per cent was declared on stock of the company payable August 1. Books will be closed for the transfer of stock from July 24 to August 1, both dates inclusive.

Rye Price Rise Pushes Wheat To New Highs

Tax-Free Grain Quotations Jump 7⅞ Cents; Oats and Corn Up.

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—Like a meteor, the rye market flamed across the speculative horizon today, and gained 9 cents a bushel, smashing high-price records right and left.

Excited buying that accompanied the upward flight of rye resulted from relief which spread among many traders that as a consequence of new 30-cents-a-bushel taxes on wheat converted into flour, the use of rye bread might largely displace the Nation's white loaf.

It was figured that the new wheat tax, together with the market discount on rye as compared with wheat, gave buyers of rye an advantage of 50 cents a bushel.

Rye Has No Tax.

Under the new agricultural measures recently enacted by Congress, rye has no tax such as that enforced on wheat, beginning today, and furthermore, the present domestic stock of rye is subnormal, with the 1933 rye crop promising less than usual requirements.

Paradoxically, the sensational action of rye whirled all deliveries of wheat to beyond recent peak prices. Rye closed flurried at not far from the day's top, 7⅜ to 7⅞ cents above Saturday's finish; wheat, ¾ to 1¾ cents up; corn, 1⅜ to 1⅞ cents advanced; oats, with ½ to 1¼ gain, and provisions showing a rise of 27 to 55 cents.

Stampedes to purchase rye came suddenly in the late dealings. Heavy buying for Eastern account developed, and the general speculative public soon joined the rush.

Wheat Flour Prices.

The fact that wheat flour prices had skyrocketed $1.50 a barrel received particular notice, and for the moment little else was talked of by grain traders except the relative cheapness of rye and the possibilities of substitution of that grain for wheat.

It was in vain leading trade authorities asserted the United States had always been a white bread country, that the position of wheat and rye was like that between tea and coffee, and that consumer choice rather than price difference would confine increased use of rye bread to whatever gain might follow traditional alliance with beer.

Notwithstanding that some selling of wheat was done against purchases of rye, the wheat market quickly responded to rye strength. Unfavorable crop reports from Canada contributed also to upward movement of wheat values.

Canada's Wheat Yield.

Some dispatches indicated many million acres of wheat in Saskatchewan and Alberta would yield only 8 bushels an acre. In addition, the majority of traders correctly anticipated that the United States Government crop report, due after the close, would make a bullish exhibit.

Corn and oats owed much of their advance to fears of a new heat wave and dearth of rain, leading to further curtailment of feed crops.

Provisions advanced on account of enlarged speculative demand, associated with general expectance that the Washington administration would succeed in hoisting prices of hogs.

Wheat Curb Promised.

London, July 10 (A.P.).—Cooperation of a large part of continental Europe in efforts to adapt wheat production to consumption was promised this afternoon to the big four wheat producing nations, the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia.

Prospects for an eventful agreement which will make it possible to restrict wheat acreage in the four countries with a view to reducing the surplus and raising prices was regarded by the Americans as better as the result of the promise than at any time since negotiations began.

After a meeting today of the four big wheat countries delegations it was said that Poland and four Danubian countries—Hungary, Roumania, Bulgaria and Jugoslavia—had agreed in principles to limit their exports of wheat, probably for a period of two years.

Limit of Exports.

The figure at which exports will be limited will be dsicussed at a further meeting tomorrow with indications that agreement will be possible.

Once the maximum figure for export has been settled, the big four committee composed of Frederick E. Murphy, of Minneapolis; Stanley M. Bruce, of Australia, and Thomas LeBreton, of Argentina, expect to approach the European consuming countries, principally France, Germany, Belgium and Italy.

Henry Morgenthau, the American wheat delegate, said tonight that Italian cooperation had already been promised but the position with regard to the three other countries has not been ascertained.

It was said privately in American quarters that France may offer some difficulties when efforts are made to reach agreement with the consuming states.

The road's loadings on its own lines dipped 1.4 per cent from 1932, but receipts from connections were larger.

Department Store Sales 1 Point Less

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board yesterday placed the value of department store sales in June at one point less than in May and April. On the basis of the 1923-25 average as 100, the June sales amounted to 66. The figures were compiled from 384 stores in 201 cities.

The sales were 4 per cent smaller than in June a year ago. The aggregate for the first six months of this year was 15 per cent below that of the same period a year ago.

Two districts showed increases in department sales, the St. Louis territory, 1 per cent, and the Dallas territory, 3 per cent.

New Network of Highways to Open Jobs for Multitude

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—A vast network of highway construction that will criss-cross the nation has been made possible by a $600,000,000 State and Federal program that has for one of its principal purposes the furnishing of employment to thousands of workers.

Of the huge cash outlay required to push it to completion, $400,000,000 is being provided by the National Government, while the States are making up the balance.

Six States, South Carolina, Louisiana, North Dakota, Alabama, Wisconsin and Oklahoma, have allotted no funds for the purpose. Illinois is to be one of the big spenders, appropriating $88,000,000 in addition to $17,500,000 to be received from Washington.

A few of the larger amounts to be spent in other States, including Federal funds, are: Washington, $18,565,000; Indiana, $15,000,000; Virginia, $21,000,000; Michigan, $16,000,000; Maine, $10,700,000; Georgia, $18,500,000; Ohio, $26,000,000; Florida, $12,000,000; and New Jersey, about $15,000,000.

U. S. Steel Orders Gain 176,856 Tons

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation increased 176,856 tons in June to a total of 2,106,671 tons, the corporation announced today.

The gain was the largest since the termination of the long-continued down trend in April. May tonnage rose 65,241 tons.

The rise carried the backlog above the 2,000,000-ton level for the first time since June, 1932. Basing its opinion on reports of a substantial acceleration of demand for steel during the month, Wall street had estimated the tonnage gain at from 80,000 to 100,000 tons. It was figured that the volume of orders would add a liberal margin to backlog in spite of the sharp increase in mill schedules.

Since 1929 June has shown a decrease in the corporation's tonnage. Last year the drop in June was about 150,000 tons against 141,000 in 1931, 91,000 in 1930 and 47,000 in 1929.

Arkansas Road Bond Act Held Constitutional

Little Rock, Ark., July 10 (A.P.). The State highway bond refunding act of 1933, under which the State seeks to refund all forms of its road indebtedness, amounting to approximately $146,000,000, was declared constitutional and "a valid enactment" by the State Supreme Court today.

Cotton Advance Of $2.50 Staged On Buying Rise

October Sells at 10.89 and General Market Gains 49 to 52 Points.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—Advances of approximately $2.50 a bale in cotton today were attributed to active general buying influenced by the reported progress of the acreage curtailment campaign, further weakness in the dollar and the firmness of the grain market.

All positions made new high records for the movement, with October contracts closing at 10.89. The general market closed firm at net advances of 49 to 52 points.

Following opening advances of 2 to 30 points the market encountered a good deal of realizing and some Southern selling, but the offerings were absorbed on reactions of some 13 to 15 points and the market firmed up again.

December at 11.05.

December contracts closed at 11.05. Last prices were 2 to 5 points off from the best under realizing.

Washington advices indicating that incomplete returns received up to last Friday showed a total of 5,566,169 acres offered by farmers for lease to the Government under the terms of the agricultural adjustment act, offset the bearish effect of Saturday's figures on acreage planted which were larger than anticipated.

Exports today, 24,780, making 8,070,649 so far this season. Port receipts, 11,136. United States port stocks, 3,340,054.

While an opening advance in Liverpool was followed by reactions with continental and Indian buying supplied by realizing and some selling through houses with American connections, the market there was higher than due on the New York close of Saturday.

Houses with both foreign and domestic interests were among the buyers during the day and there was a good deal of covering or rebuying by recent sellers.

Drop of Dollars May Halt After Pound Hits Par

Spokesmen of Dominion See Sterling Leaving Franc for U. S. Money.

London, July 10 (A.P.).—In British Dominion quarters today the belief was expressed that the fall of the American dollar is likely to be halted when it reaches $4.86, the old parity with the pound.

It was said the price level between America and Great Britain would then nearly balance.

The dollar reached $4.82 at midday, a slide of $1.32 from the $3.50 rate maintained over a long period before the United States abandoned gold.

Pound and Franc.

Dominion spokesmen said they expected if the dollar slid below $4.86 that Great Britain would unhook sterling from the French franc and let the pound follow the dollar.

Further strong British support for the Roosevelt program was voiced today by Hubert Meredith, financial editor of the Daily Mail, while British financial quarters and the World Economic Conference delegates waited for speeches in the House of Commons by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Robert Horne, former chancellor.

"President Roosevelt should be assisted by the rest of the world to the utmost degreee consistent with safety," the Mail's financial expert declared.

Pound and Dollar.

"I welcome indications that this country (Great Britain), as a result of the strong line taken by the Dominions, appears likely to follow cautiously in the steps of the United States.

"I am hopeful that this may lead the gold countries cautiously to follow us and so greatly reduce the dangers of the President's experiment, partly by assisting to make the improvement in dollar prices one of world prices and partly by supplying a definite brake to over-inflation.

"I am further hopeful that we shall see controlled and synchronized inflation in all countries, as I believe that this admittedly dangerous experiment is needed to regain world prosperity."

Dollar Stumbles Again.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—The American dollar stumbled again in foreign exchange markets today and European gold currencies, as well as the British pound, soared to new high levels for the past several years or longer.

Further pressure against the dollar was attributed partly to speculation abroad, based on the administration's apparent intention to reduce the value of money here, and to growing indications that "capital flight" from the United States is progressing at a rather rapid rate. Buying of foreign dollar bonds, as well as the refusal of exporters to reconvert proceeds of sales abroad, have aided this movement. The market here was also described as unusually thin.

The dollar, in terms of the French gold franc, which closed up .12 of a cent at 5.68 cents, was at a value of approximately 69.02 cents. The pound reached $4.83½—its former gold parity was $4.8662—but dropped back to $4.79¾ cents on the day. Dutch guilders closed at their peak of 58½ cents, an advance of 1⅛ cents; Swiss francs were up .68 of a cent at 28.15 and Belgian belgas gained .43 of a cent at 20¼ cents.

Canadian dollars moved forward ¾ of a cent to 95¾ cents in sympathy with the pound, while German marks, the Scandinavians and Japanese yen were up about ½ a cent each.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Floor Covering—Reports in the trade say that the scheduled advance in carpet and rug prices, expected this week will be somewhat larger than the rise of 2 to 7 per cent announced last month.

Burlap—Prices are quoted around the recent highs after a lapse in which traders were unwilling to quote because of the rapidly rising sterling exchange.

Paint Materials—Dealers are placing orders in larger volume, according to trade reports. Prices are firm.

Wool—Receipts of domestic wool at Boston last week were 9,052,900 pounds compared with 11,645,600 in the previous week. Total receipts this year to date were 108,392,800 pounds, against 67,688,400 for the corresponding period last year.

Paper—Demand for pulp and paper is reported less active, partly as a result of the seasonal lull. Demand for kraft writing paper and fine papers is holding at good levels.

New Factors Bar Cotton Predictions

Markets Cautious After Rises During Week; Action Awaited.

(Associated Press.)

A series of complex factors have combined to mystify observers, Government and otherwise, who have charted the course of the cotton market for years.

The markets, cautious yesterday in anticipation of the Government's acreage estimate, closed before the experts predicted that the acreage in the ground was 40,798,000.

Ordinarily, the increase might start a slide downward, especially in view of the sustained price rise which has put middling around 10 cents.

Cut Not Included.

But the estimate did not take into account the expected acreage reduction in the current campaign. A temporary drop in values might be welcomed by Secretary Wallace and his assistants as assuring the success of their endeavor, although officials have expressed certainty it will be a success anyhow. The administration's goal is to take at least 3,000,000 bales off this year's crop.

This is one thing that makes bears cautious. Another principal factor in their doubt was the apparently firm determination of President Roosevelt to raise the commodity price level.

Viewed in retrospect, almost all the legislation passed by the last session of Congress might be employed to that end. Acreage reduction is only one of the many powers that might be employed under the farm bill.

Federal Price Outlook.

Government officials have said privately they expected no pronounced and continuous decline in any commodity price so long as the general upward movement goes on.

Meantime, a heavy surplus of cotton remains from depression years. The New York Cotton Exchange, however, reports that world consumption of cotton during May was the largest of any month since January, 1930. The increase in world consumption from April to May was attributed almost entirely to increased use of American cotton.

For the first ten months of this season, world consumption was estimated at 20,400,000 bales as compared to 19,500,000 in the comparative period last season and 18,600,000 the year before.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, July 19.—Announcement is made today that G. E. Hendee, for many years a prominent figure in municipal bond circles in Wall street and formerly with Kidder, Peabody & Co., is now associated with Madison & Co., Inc., of New York City, as manager of their municipal bond department. The organization was formed on June 1 by James B. Madison, former member of the Federal Farm Board, Washington, D. C., and former president of the Virginian Joint Stock Land Bank, Charleston, W. Va. The firm specializes in Joint Stock Land Banks and tax-exempt securities.

It was also announced that William Snow, former examiner with the Federal Farm Loan Board at Washington, is also now associated with the organization.

United States Still Unwilling to Allow Free Gold Market

(Associated Press.)

Belief held by some bankers in New York that a free gold market might be established in the United States within a short time finds no substantiation in official quarters here.

Efforts of mine operators to have the Government relax restrictions against export of gold so that American mined gold might be shipped to foreign markets, where it commands higher prices, have not met official approval.

The question has been under consideration at the Treasury for weeks and the department has been bombarded by suggestions and offers of plans whereby American mining might be encouraged by being permitted to take advantage of higher prices abroad.

In this country the price of gold is governed by the gold content of the dollar, which contains 25.08 grains of gold 0.900 fine. This makes gold worth $20.67 an ounce, whereas it brings around $24 or more in the foreign markets.

After suggestions were received by the Treasury it drew up an amendment to President Roosevelt's executive order of last April, which would have permitted the desired export. The order was submitted to the President before he departed for his vacation without recommendation, but he is understood to have taken the attitude at that time that he would not authorize any relaxation.

Gold can now be exported only under Treasury permit for foreign governments, foreign central banks, to complete contracts entered into before the President's executive order was issued, and for business transactions the President believes to be for the benefit of the Nation. The earmarked gold held by foreign governments and central banks in this country already has been credited to them and has never been included in the United States stock of gold, so that export of the amount would not affect the holdings of this country.

Birmingham, Ala., July 10 (A.P.). The blast of the big whistle over the Ensley works of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., this morning called 1,500 men to work in the rail mill, which has sufficient orders for a three-week run.

The operation in the rail mill followed by one week production of steel ingots in the Ensley blast furnaces, and this afternoon the Woodward Iron Co. will blow in its No. 2 blast furnace.

A conservative estimate of the number of men employed in steel and iron production, including those in the coal and ore mines, fixed the number at 20,000, or about 60 per cent of normal.

Blowing in of the Woodward No. 2 will bring to nine the number of blast furnaces in operation in the district, with the Republic Steel Corporation expected to add another to the list soon.

Eighteen open-hearth furnaces were in operation producing steel ingots today, keeping the production of the district at 75 per cent of capacity.

Former Navy Man Author of Coming Screen Play—a New Star's Debut

Kin of Admiral Evans Devised Next Keith Hit

Raul Roulien in His First Stellar Role in a Fox Musical Fantasy.

By Nelson B. Bell.

In naval circles, at least, added zest will be lent the presentation of "Double Harness," on the screen at RKO-Keith's next week, beginning Friday, by the knowledge that it was written by Edward Poor Montgomery, grandson-in-law of the late Admiral "Fighting Bob" Evans, of the U. S. Navy.

Mr. Montgomery, a former navy man, himself, and the son of a navy man, married a Miss Sewall, granddaughter of Admiral Evans, and is now resident in England.

It was in England, after having retired from the navy, that Mr. Montgomery wrote, and saw successfully presented, his stage play of "Double Harness," a London hit of such substantial fiber that two additional companies were organized to present the play in the Provinces and Australia.

It was this wave of success that carried news of "Double Harness" to Hollywood, where it was purchased by RKO-Radio as a joint starring vehicle for Ann Harding and William Powell.

The screen adaptation of the play was made by Jane Murfin, coauthor with Jane Cowl of "Smilin' Through," and numerous other sugary romantic dramas. The picture was directed by John Cromwell and, coming so soon after her success in the film version of Rachel Crothers' "When Ladies Meet," is expected to do much toward effecting the complete rehabilitation of Miss Harding as a cinema star of the first rank.

Word filters through from the West Coast, by the way, that, in contradiction of all the recent rumors that Miss Harding's career in pictures was about to be brought voluntarily to an end in favor of a resumption of her stage activities, she has just been signed to a new long-term contract by RKO-Radio, who long have held first call upon her screen services.

To some there is a subtle touch of irony in the title, "Double Harness," as a vehicle for the joint enterprise of Miss Harding and Mr. Powell. She could not make a go of it in "double harness" with Harry Bannister, and "Bill" Powell and Carole Lombard are about to be divorced after a brief whirl at trying to drive double under a matrimonial yoke!

The twelve national organizations whose voluntary local committees in Hollywood, or New York, or both, regularly preview photoplays and short subjects and make their selections known through the Will H. Hays office, have nominated their screen leaders for the month of July.

The four best pictures of the month they believe to be "The Rebel," a foreign production released through Universal, in which Luis Trenker, Vilma Banky and Victor Varconi have the leading roles; "Thunder Over Mexico," a Principal Pictures production; "Voltaire," the last George Arliss vehicle directed by the late John Adolfi for Warner Bros., in which the star is supported by Doris Kenyon and Reginald Owen, and "When Ladies Meet," the Rachel Crothers play as pictured by M-G-M, with Ann Harding, Myrna Loy, Alice Brady, Robert Montgomery and Frank Morgan in the leads.

Of this list only the last-named has been seen in the Capital.

A trifle better Washington score is compiled in the list of the committees' choices of "social dramas." These include "Ann Carver's Profession," "Best of Enemies," "Cocktail Hour," "Heroes for Sale," "Hold Me Tight," "I Loved You Wednesday," "Jennie Gerhardt," "No Marriage Ties," "What Price Innocence."

Of this group Washington has seen seven and approved six—a fair average in any man's league.

Lest it escape mention, today is the day when the University of Illinois Men's Glee Club and Orchestra begin a special three-day engagement at Loew's Fox Theater as an added attraction on the stage portion of the week's bill.

This touring organization boasts a personnel of 30 students. The vocalists are under the conductorship of Raymond F. Dvorak, a grandnephew of the famous Bohemian composer, Antonin Dvorak, who has served the University of Illinois in this capacity for the past 15 years.

Speaking of orchestras, it is one of the minor bafflements afforded by the action of "It's Great to Be Alive," in which Paul Roulien is making his stellar debut at the Columbia, that when he is languishing, solitary and alone, on the uninhabited island where his plane has crashed, there miraculously spring up from nowhere the strains of full modern orchestra to accompany him when he feels moved by his dire predicament to burst into song!

This is an anomaly I had supposed had passed into the limbo of negation back about the time of "Broadway Melody," when a full symphony suddenly burst into unseen bloom in the bath of a modest hotel room occupied by two poverty stricken and hungry chorus girls!

Incidentally, one of the scientists trying to evolve some successful method of combatting the spread of "masculitis," the dread disease that was rapidly killing off all the males in "It's Great to Be Alive," is the bewhiskered and silvering Paul McAllister, a former Washington stock actor who, as a member of the Columbia Players, back in the days of Julia Dean, for many weeks trod the boards of the theater where he now appears as a shadow on a sheet.

These seem to be guest days in the local picture palaces.

Yesterday afternoon the disabled veterans from Walter Reed Hospital were guests of The Post and the Metropolitan Theater to see "Forgotten Men"; today the veterans from the Naval Hospital will be similarly entertained; tonight, three units of the various boys' clubs in the city will be entertained by the same picture in the same theater as guests of the management; Thursday the Mount Alto shut-ins will view the war scenes, and last night at Loew's Fox, both the Washington and Cleveland ball clubs turned out en masse at the invitation of Carter Barron to enjoy "Hold Me Tight," on the screen, and Nan Halperin and the other stars on the stage.

As nearly as can be gathered in the remaining moments prior to a midnight preview of "Double Harness," at RKO-Keith's, where this typewriter is supposed to be a guest, a pleasant time was had by all!

Reverting once again—and that very briefly—to "It's Great to Be Alive," it should not be left unsaid that for the first time on the screen Gloria Stuart sings in this picture—or seems to. There are occasional flashes in all of the musical numbers when I wouldn't be too sure that the sound has not been dubbed in since the action was shot.

And, if you must know, Raul Roulien, the handsome young Argentinian, bears a resemblance to Leon Brusiloff, the Capital's well-known musical director, the good-looking so-and-so!

Fox's big news of the week is the announcement by S. R. Kent, president of Fox Films, of the appointment of Charles B. Cochran, one of England's foremost theatrical producers, and Archibald Selwyn, well-known American impresario, as associate producers.

Both Mr. Cochran and Mr. Selwyn will continue their activities in the theater here and abroad.

Mr. Cochran has been a producer for 40 years, having staged everything from wrestling matches to famous plays. Mr. Selwyn put on such famous productions as "Smilin' Thru," "Fair and Warmer," "Twin Beds," and many others.

The two new associates will work in conjunction with D. A. Doran, Fox story head, in searching out new talent and plays, here and abroad.

Okay, Mr. Meakin, trot out your people in "Double Harness"—and if you're sending out for anything, I'll take dark!"

Columbia.

"IT'S GREAT TO BE ALIVE." Fox picturization of a story by John D. Swain, starring Raul Roulien, with Gloria Stuart, Edna May Oliver, Herbert Mundin, Joan Marsh and Dorothy Burgess. Music and lyrics by William Kernell. Directed by Alfred Werker. Reviewed Monday afternoon.

This musical extravaganza is not quite the scintillantly satirical gem it ought to be to do full justice to the possibilities of the idea upon which it is based.

About the experiences of the last surviving male in a universe of beautiful women it ought to be possible to weave a fantasy of surpassing pith and romantic substance; something with a bit of sweep and universality about it, and a wealth of humor.

Only occasionally does "It's Great to Be Alive" attain such heights of imaginative and enlivening novelty, and then only to trail off again into commonplaces that leave a final impression that, as was the case with "Just Imagine," three or four seasons ago, Fox was content to give a lick and a promise to a dramatic idea that should have proved an abundant outlet for the cinema's most inventive and resourceful creative genius.

As it stands, "It's Great to Be Alive" is a breezy musical comedy in which a solitary young man, who happens to have been wrecked on a desert island during the ravages of the plague, is the only survival of his sex to be spared the fatal scourge of a world epidemic of masculitis. His presence in the living world discovered, he becomes the fought-for prize of a horde of lovely ladies, finally falling into the hands of a tough lady bootlegger who is about to auction him off to the highest bidder when his former sweetheart manages by a ruse to gain possession of this rare and highly-prized young animal.

Disposition of the case is finally intrusted to an international tribunal of women, before which the representatives of various nations plead their cases in song and dance. This is perhaps the high spot of the picture in rhythmic drama and subtle satire.

The introductory sequences are merely hackneyed repetition of outworn comedy devices, having to do with inebriety, drunken intrusion into the wrong girl's boudoir late at night and the other familiar sources of prewedding jealousies.

Scattered throughout the action are tuneful songs, one or two of which may prove not to be entirely innocent of contagious and widespread popularity.

Raul Roulien, the young South American who is the central figure in this fantastic musicalized farce, is a handsome youth with just a shade of engaging accent and a singing voice that is pleasant. He is not as yet a Chevalier, but he ought to take a quick place alongside the Ben Lyonses, Richard Arlens and Dick Powells. His youthful spontaneity at times needs the guidance and restraint of a Lubitsch's skillful touch. It is no doubt significant of his future as a star that the Columbia had begun to fill up with eager and gushing young women by the end of yesterday's first performance. Senor Roulien seems to have an abundance of what it takes to make a matinee idol.

Gloria Stuart, as his petulant but persistent betrothed; Joan Marsh, as her major cause for worry; Edna May Oliver, as Dr. Prodwell; Dorothy Burgess, the tough gal; Herbert Mundin, Emma Dunn, Edward Van Sloan and Robert Greig all contribute valuable moments to the gayety of a picture that ought to be still gayer.

The Paramount Sound News, a Mack Sennett comedy, "See You Tonight," rather better cast than usual, and "Do You Remember?" a reel of shots of a bygone day, complete a bill that comprises one of the Columbia's most pretentious recent bids for interested attention.

New Yorker Day by Day

By Mark Barron

New York—A summer idyll in New York must include varied scenes as these 7,000,000 persons seeks to escape the heat which comes down in huge waves as if from a gigantic oven.

Thousands flee from the closeness of East Side tenements to the overcrowded sands of Coney Island, while a few miles away wealthy playboys and girls loll in front of colorful cabanas at private beach clubs.

Firemen set up impromptu showers at corner hydrants for the laughing, seminude neighborhood youngsters, and only a block away a bearded, old man is felled to the sidewalk with a mild sunstroke.

Anything to Keep Cool.

In Union Square ragged, unemployed men doze in the sun, not even bothering to move with the tree shade. Atop roofs and penthouses in the Fifties and Sixties, gay young debutantes take their sun baths or play at deck tennis. Fire escape balconies on the rear of Second avenue tenements are fitted out as makeshift terraces, with an occasional 25 cent pot of geraniums giving a touch of nature.

The warm nights, too, change the atmosphere of the town. No longer is it a ruthless, speeding, hurly-burly metropolis. The pace of the city slows down, neighbors loll on front stoops or at street corners, and greet each other in a friendly manner. Broadway takes on the aspect of a village main street.

Pity the Chorus Girl.

As the rialto hurtles toward a new season, let us weep for a moment for the chorus girl. A preliminary review indicates that the fall will see little more than half the musical shows there usually were before 1931. Also each show employs only about half the girls that was the case in the days when each attraction boasted a line each of ponies, mediums and show girls.

Today they hire only one line of show girls, and they must be talented enough to combine the dancing and singing tasks formerly relegated to the ponies (pint sized chorus girls) and mediums (of a slightly more buxom type). The theater is bowing to the merger age, and chorus girls are the chief ones to suffer.

A chorus call today will bring out more than a thousand applicants, and an average of 20 are selected from this group. What becomes of that rejected 980? Some of them get jobs in other shows, some go into vaudeville and night clubs.

The less talented and fortunate go back home and marry that schoolboy sweetheart they were planning to give up in favor of a career.

Lorretto Shea, Minneapolis' pretty contribution to Broadway, is planning a bicycle tour through Italy—but, not over the Alps.

Civic League to Hear Braden.

Arlington County Manager Roy S. Braden will speak at the meeting of the Rosslyn Precinct Civic League this evening. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Woodrow Wilson School, Fort Myer Heights, at 8 o'clock.

The Years Roll Back to '18 as Veterans View Film

The first group of World War veterans from Walter Reed Hospital, photographed in front of the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater yesterday afternoon, where they viewed the official war film, "Forgotten Men," as guests of The Washington Post and the theater management. This afternoon disabled veterans from the Naval Hospital will be similarly entertained, and on Thursday the boys from Mount Alto.

Ickes to Speed Plans Giving Millions Jobs

Prudent State Spending Will Govern Loans by Administrator.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Ickes took command of the administration's $3,300,000,000 public works program yesterday and immediately ordered a speeding up of the operations by which it is planned to give jobs to millions of the unemployed.

As he assumed the office of public works administrator, the Secretary announced in a formal statement that the administration would push forward with the full program and would not curtail it until "recent gratifying gains in industry and employment" have been "secured and consolidated."

At the same time, he served notice that the Government expected its loans to be repaid and would not make advances to local governmental units "where ordinary current expenditures are not being brought within prudently estimated revenues."

While Ickes was outlining the broad general principles on which the public works administration will operate, he was applying pressure on his still incomplete organization to get the construction fund flowing into the channels of trade.

A subcommittee was endeavoring to complete in time for approval by the Cabinet Board today recommendations for the first batch of public works projects under the $400,000,000 Federal program.

Although the Public Works Administration was concentrating yesterday on this, the first phase of the general construction plan, President Roosevelt was expected soon to name regional directors to aid in allocating funds to States and local Government units.

Ickes was rapidly completing plans for rounding out his staff and was expected to name H. M. Waite, now assistant administrator, as his chief executive in charge of the program.

The public works administrator, in his first formal statement as such, announced that his objective would be "swift translation of the administration plan into action, giving millions jobs."

"Recent gratifying gains in industry and employment," he added, "do not justify curtailment of slowing up of the employment until those gains are secured and consolidated. When conditions justify, expenditure for public works will be ended promptly."

Ickes announced that one of the qualifications for Federal funds will be "lasting social usefulness" of the projects and said there would be no aid for public works "which are mere work makers, giving no lasting benefits."

Two Await Trial As Meade Rallies

Drivers Facing Reckless Charges in Prince Georges County.

While a Prince Georges County Police Court continued the cases of two auto drivers, charged with reckless driving, DeVoe Meade, 18, injured in the accident that resulted in the charges, was reported rallying slightly from "an extremely critical condition."

Meade, son of Dr. DeVoe Meade, professor of animal husbandry at the University of Maryland and a resident of University Park, Md., was riding with his father at the time of the accident on July 4. The car, collided with by another car on the Baltimore boulevard, near the Meade home, was driven, police said, by Paul S. Black, 35, 1523 Twenty-second street northwest.

Young Meade was rushed to the Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, Md., suffering from internal injuries. Black and Francis M. Newman, Cumberland, Md., were held under bond. The trial has been set for July 24.

Shriners Play At Seashore as Elections Near

Washington Delegation of 145 Arrives With 40-Piece Band.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 10 (A. P.).—The National Shriners Convention made merry today to the tune of numerous band concerts and impromptu parades. The work of the conclave got under way with the election of officers in two of the orders within the organization.

The Recorders' Association, composed of the secretaries of the 159 Shrine temples in North America, chose as its president William H. Abbott, of London, Ont., and the National Court of the Order of Jesters, Shrine's fun-making unit, reelected Lou B. Winsor, of Grand Rapids, Mich., royal director.

The recorders' and jesters' meeting supplied the only business note in a day given over generally to amusement. Shrine nobles and their guests had their attention fixed on tomorrow, when the fifty-ninth annual session of the Imperial Council will convene, heralded by the first of the convention's two gala parades.

Great convention interest centers on the topic of who will be elected imperial outer guard. Earl C. Mills, of Des Moines, the present imperial potentate of the order, will retire at Thursday's session and all other officers, excepting treasurer and recorder, who will be reelected, will be moved up a step, with John N. Sebrell, of Norfolk, Va., becoming the new imperial potentate.

Dr. Whivomb was one of the jester officers chosen during the day, being elected to the post of royal serio-comic. Other jesters officers were Esten A. Fletcher, Rochester, N. Y., royal leading man; Dr. O. W. Burdats, Wheeling, West Va., royal tragedian; Fred E. Pierce, Elizabeth, N. J., royal impresario; Albert E. P. Kerr, Pittsburgh, royal treasurer; Richings J. Shand, Springfield, Ill., royal stage manager; George Filmer, San Francisco, royal leading lady; Andrew A. D. Rahn, Minneapolis, royal heavy man; James H. Rowland, Shreveport, La., royal light comedian; Edward B. King, Tacoma, Wash.; royal soubrette; Dr. Harry E. Sharrer, Hammond, Ind., royal character man, and Leo E. Walton, Springfield, Mo., royal property man.

The 145 members of the Almas Temple delegation of Washington arrived tonight at 10:10 p. m. An impromptu parade along the boardwalk from the station to the Madison Hotel, headquarters for the Capital visitors, was held. About 120 nobles and 25 ladies marched with martial pace behind their band of 40 pieces. The music attracted other Shriners who formed a long line of red fezzed trailers.

Potentate Warren W. Grimes came earlier in the day. He was on hand with an escort from Crescent Temple, of Trenton, N. J., host organization to the 25,000 nobles, and an equal horde of guests.

Almas' five representatives are here to join in the legislative deliberations of the imperial council which get under way tomorrow.

Nats Lose to Tribe, 3-2, in 12th as McAfee Fails in Relief Role

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

CLARK GRIFFITH, with an ear to the ground for rumblings in New York where the Yankees are blasting away again, blames the New York Club's sudden awakening on Babe Ruth and the All-Star game at Chicago's World Fair.

"It was too bad Ruth had to go out there and bust a home run before all those people," said Griffith. "It was an inspiration to the Yankees. They come back East, start hitting again and win three out of five from the Tigers.

"Never disturb a sleeping lion. Ruth was in a long slump before he went to Chicago for the All-Star game. That woke him up, and makes the Yankees dangerous again. I wish it hadn't happened. 'Course I'm glad the American Leaguers won out there, but I wish it hadn't happened."

Yanks Only Three Back.

The American League vital statistics this morning show the Yanks now only three games behind the Nats, representing a gain of a game and a half within the last two days. Perhaps that Washington pennant bee was a bit premature.

But there can be no complaint about the way the Nats have been playing ball. They have won 23 of their last 27 starts and have gained 11 full games on the Yankees within 30 days. That's pennant baseball and the burden is now on the Yanks.

The Nats' last two games, however, have been conspicuous by the absence of their blistering batting attack. The thumping that carried them through the West triumphantly has been missing for the past two days, during which they were held to 19 hits in 21 innings. Their averages were due to come down a bit, though.

Fonseca's Tenure Doubtful.

Lou Fonseca leads his socking White Sox into town today for a four-game series and if you will believe the reports around the league, he is skating on thin ice as manager of the Chicago club.

Three individuals in particular have designs on the 1934 management of the White Sox, according to what is being said in baseball circles. Chief among these is Rogers Hornsby, now doing pinch-hitting duty for the Cardinals. Hornsby already has rejected an offer to pilot the Browns in '34. There are still thousands of Chicago fans who thought he got a raw deal with the Cubs.

Chicago is believed to be the most fertile spot for the transplanting of Babe Ruth whenever the Bambino is at the end of his string with the Yankees, and the Babe has long been recognized as managerial timber. The White Sox have the money to buy the Babe.

The third of the individuals mentioned for Fonseca's job is Jimmy Dykes, his third baseman, who has managerial ambitions. Dykes declares that he is content to remain a player, but anything can happen in baseball, including Fonseca's reappointment.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

When Bolton pinch-hit yesterday, it was the third time in a month that the Nats have been forced to call in a pinch-hitter . . . which explains a lot . . . Moe Berg is the only catcher in captivity who can blow his nose with his mask on . . . the Nats weren't looking for Spencer's bunt that squeezed the Indians' second run home . . . but Bluege turned it into a nice put-out at second . . .". Bad News Hale was promoted by Johnson to the clean-up position yesterday . . . and took it seriously . . . hitting a home run on his first appearance . . . the Nats got all the close decisions on the bases . . . but deserved 'em . . . Cronin had his nerve with him when he elected to retire the Indians on a double play in the ninth instead of cutting off the run at the plate . . . Cleveland asked for waivers on Bill Cissell a few days ago . . . and Washington was the only club to claim him . . . but Cleveland wouldn't do business with a first-division team.

Godwin Beats Reds Barry Easily

Subbing for Galento, He Fells Foe Once for Count of Nine.

Knowles Is Winner Over Lucas; Lowry Stops Kelly O'Neil.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

TONY GALENTO ran out on his fight with Reds Barry last night, scheduled 10-round feature of the weekly boxing show at Twin City Arena. It not only placed the management in a very embarrassing position, but Barry also, for Bob Godwin, who substituted for the absent Galento, gave the Redhead one of the worst lacings he ever took in the ring.

Galento was to have received 35 per cent of the gross receipts, and it would have been the easiest dough he ever earned. Announcer Jimmy Lake announced the change in program just before the start of the first preliminary. He read a telegram from Galento's manager which read as follows:

"Galento at last minute refuses to fight. Manager Pete Dodd has done everything to make him go through. Letter will follow. Signed Pete Dodd, per Phillip Lewis."

Will Seek Suspension.

The message was received at 5:45 p. m., and Promoter Charley Cornell immediately took steps to obtain a substitute. Efforts were made to secure Bob Tow. He was willing but tardy, so Godwin volunteered to take the fight. Joseph Kelly, secretary of the Maryland State Boxing Commission, announced he would take steps to have Galento suspended by the commission, which move would be effective in 27 States.

Godwin vainly attempted to make a fight of it, but failed dismally when Barry refused to meet him halfway. The first round was even, but the remaining nine were all Godwin's, and by the widest of margins.

Barry slipped in the first round and was up without a count, but he went down for a count of nine when the Southerner planted a left-hook in his mid-section in the fifth. Godwin chased his back-pedaling opponent from the first round to the last, hitting him as he pleased.

First Blow in Eighth.

Ribaldry of all descriptions filled the air. A quartet in the ringside section struck up the Merry Widow waltz, someone whistled "Hearts and Flowers;" still another fan yelled, "Kiss 'im Redsy." A wild outburst of cheering greeted the first blow struck by Reds. That came in the eighth stanza.

The preliminaries were little better. Chief Perry Knowles took the decision from Sammy Lucas in the eight-round semifinal after being on the verge of a knockout in the first. Lucas tired badly from the third round on and the Indian belted him with left hooks and rights.

Towel Rescues O'Neil.

A towel came sailing to the rescue of Benny Ladis' pride and joy, Kelly O'Neil, between the fourth and fifth rounds of his engagement with Bob Lowry. With a motion that resembled the breast stroke, O'Neil proved to be an easy foil for the hard-hitting Lowry. Ladis later explained that since it was O'Neil's first pro fight, his brother, Mushky Jackson, thought it best not to extend him. Mushky was in Kelly's corner. The Irishman wasn't extended, he was all in, just beckoning for Lowry to walk in and flatten him.

Referee Buck Alexander ordered Tommy Horn out of the ring after he had been plastered with every punch known to Sammy Romano. George Harmon won a well-earned decision over Roma (Carbona) La Bona in a six-round bout that resembled a cross between a rodeo and wrestling match.

Browns Score 8 in 2d And Defeat Red Sox, 9-5

Boston, July 10 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Browns put on an eight-run rally in the second inning today to beat the Red Sox, 9 to 5, in the final game of their four-game series. The visitors took three of the four games.

Stiles went the distance for St. Louis after a wobbly start. He allowed the Sox only seven hits, but three of them came in the first inning, together with an error by Burns, to give the Sox three runs.

Andrews and Kline were the victims in the big second, which was featured by a line drive home run off Storti's bat with one man on base. Later in the rally Campbell doubled to drive in two runs, while an error by Johnny Hodapp let in two more.

Portrait Study of Walter Johnson at Home

Louis Johrden, Post Staff.

When the cows come home, it's milking time for Walter Johnson. That is, when Johnson's not occupied with managing the Cleveland Indians. The immortal idol of Washington fans is pictured at his Bethesda farm attending to husbandry duties while his son Bobby II holds Bossy still. He goes back to nature every time the Indians are in town.

13th for Grove as Chisox and A's Split

Macks Win First in 11th on Coleman's Homer, 3-2; Drop Second, 7-1.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10 (A.P.).—Two well pitched games, one by Bob Grove and the other by Milton Gaston, gave the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago White Sox and even break in today's double-header.

With Grove turning in his thirteenth victory of the season in a hurling duel with Sam Jones and Ted Lyons, the Athletics won the first contest, 3 to 2, in eleven innings, when Ed Coleman cracked out a home run. Gaston held the A's to three hits, all in the sixth inning, as the Sox accounted for the nightcap, 7 to 1.

The Sox came from behind to send the first game into extra innings. Hal Rhyne and Ralph Kress cracked out singles and with the aid of Mule Haas' sacrifice tied the score in the ninth. Coleman's circuit blow was hit off the delivery of Ted Lyons, who had relieved Jones in the tenth.

Keeps Hits Scattered

Grove was reached for 12 hits, all singles, but he kept them well scattered. The A's drove out 10 safe blows off Jones and Lyons.

Dick Oliver, the Athletics' sand lot star, started the second game for the Mackmen and gave a good

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—Mrs. Melvin Jones, six times Chicago district champion, took the lead in the women's Western 72-hole golf Derby today by shooting the Sunset Ridge course in 42—40—82, four over par.

Mrs. Elaine Rosenthal Reinhart, of Chicago and Dallas, the defending title holder, was close up with 43—42—85.

Indian Manager's Spare Time Put to Good Use Around His Home.

TO get near Walter Johnson in public one must usually shoulder through a throng of adulatory persons. To reach his side at home it is necessary to wade through an assorted aggregation of animals and fowl. That's the way The Post cameraman got to him in what might be called the infield of his farm near Washington.

Barney, attired in an old brown shirt, open at the neck; corduroy trousers with dangling belt, and well-worn shoes, greeted him from the center of a group of quacking ducks.

"Wild mallards," explained the strike-out king, after the photographer had been properly introduced to a large police dog that was hanging suspiciously close to his heels.

The cameraman, eyeing the police dog, which had backed away to a respectful distance upon seeing that the boss was so friendly to this individual with the funny little black box under his arm, was reminded to ask Johnson if he still had his pack of hounds. It developed that they had been sent to a friend in the country until the job of managing the Indians was finished for the season.

Fox Is Kept Chained.

The hounds were used for running down foxes, which were held at bay but never killed. One fox that Barney and his pack were trying to corner was injured. That fox, dubbed Anne by the children, is now a member of the "Johnson Feathered and Furred Friends Society." It is the only member of the organization kept chained.

"We just can't seem to cure a fox of the chicken-killing habit," explained Johnson.

Little Barbara Johnson, the Big Train's six-year-old daughter, appeared on the scene with a bucket of grain, which she handed to daddy. He grabbed a handful and started scattering it. A French-horn effect "honk-honk" and xylophonic "gobble-gobble" heralded the approach of the Johnson geese and turkeys for their share of the dinner. They were joined by two gorgeously colored pheasants.

Has More of 'Em.

"Got some more of 'em over there," offered Walter, indicating a row of eight coops, all filled with tiny balls of brown fuzz being mothered by clucking hens.

A commotion was heard in a field below. Little eleven-year-old Bobby Johnson was tugging vainly at the horns of "Boss," the senior Johnson cow. Behind Boss stood the subordinate Johnson cows—or, to be exact, one cow and two calves—waiting stolidly for her to decide to lead the way into the milking inclosure

"Got to milk the cows before I go out to the ball park," explained Johnson.

The cows were finally herded into the inclosure and the photographer got his shot while Barney milked. Prince, the Johnson horse, looked on inquisitively and the Johnson cat purred contentedly at his feet.

Chisox Invade; Weaver Due to Pitch

Nats Hope to Pick Up Today Where They Left Off in Chicago.

By Frank H. Young.

MONTE WEAVER, the most precocious rookie pitcher in the majors last year, but "not so hot" in the current race, due to injuries, likely will get the call against the Chicago White Sox when they make their second 1933 visit here this afternoon. Weaver has not drawn a starting assignment in many moons, but claims that his pitching machinery is functioning well now, and Cronin is expected to give him another chance today. If it is not Weaver, it will be Bob Burke or Jack Russell. Bull Durham is expected to do the chucking for the visitors.

With their streak broken after seven wins in a row, the Nats have hopes of starting another today They downed the Chisox four times in succession in the Windy City last month and, although the great Al Simmons is in the Chisox lineup, are confident they can do it again.

While yesterday's loss was disappointing, Nat fans have no kick coming, for a record of 23 triumphs in their last 27 starts is nothing to be sneezed at.

Buck Poss, a young giant who used to catch for the University of Virginia, is getting a tryout with the Nationals. In practice yesterday, he showed a good arm and quite a punch at the tee.

The veteran, Sam Rice, reports himself in top shape. Not being able to get as much work as he needed on the last Westren trip, he slowed up a little, but he is showing his old-time speed these days.

Manager Walter Johnson, of the Tribe, is up against it for pitchers. Both Harder, who sarted yesterday, and Hildebrand have sore arms, while Hudlin is limping around on crutches as a result of a badly spiked leg received several days ago.

Yankees Beat Detroit and Gain Game

Score 9 Runs in Eighth for 10-6 Victory as Fischer Weakens.

Lazzeri's Home Run With 2 On Is Climax to Winning Rally.

NEW YORK, July 10 (A.P.).—Taking advantage of two costly errors by Bill Rogell and Charley Gehringer, the New York Yankees today drove through the Detroit Tigers' shattered defense for nine runs in the eighth inning and a 10-to-6 victory in the fifth and deciding game of the series. This cut the losing Nats' lead to three games.

Starting the eighth inning with a four-run lead, Carl Fischer apparently had the Yanks well in hand until a mixture of bases on balls, a timely single by Babe Ruth and the two errors put the champions out in front. Tony Lazzeri climaxed the onslaught with a home run that also scored Earl Combs and Lou Gehrig.

Tigers Off to Early Lead.

The Tigers tallied five times in the first three innings on Walter Brown. Three of the runs were helped along by errors by Eddie Farrell and Joe Sewell. After that, however, they were helpless until Wilcy Moore came in the ninth and let one more run across the plate.

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., July 10.—Bobby Goldstein, University of Virginia's boxing champion, decisively outpointed Charley Hoffer, Marine lightweight titleholder, tonight in the rain at the Richmond Stadium in a 3-round feature match of an amateur boxing show.

A record crowd of 2,500 saw the Washington boy floor the rugged Marine in the second round with a smashing two-fisted attack. During the course of the bout Goldstein injured his left hand. An X-ray will be taken, it was stated.

Washington Comes Back to Lead After Hale's Homer in Second.

Snappy Double Play in 9th Halts Potential Rally of Indians.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

THE reports of Mel Harder's sore arm were slightly exaggerated, it seems. And as far as Earl Averill's weak hitting is concerned, you can't prove that by the Nats, either. The truth came out yesterday at Griffith Stadium along about twilight, coincident with the Nats' defeat by the Indians, 3 to 2, in the twelfth inning of a swell ball game.

This Harder fellow had been excused from duty by Manager Walter Johnson for several days in deference to an ailing arm, but if his arm was sore yesterday the way to the pennant is easy for Johnson. All he has to do is to break the arms of his entire pitching staff, and let the Indian walk in.

All that Harder did with his sore arm was to tack nine scoreless innings onto the first three frames and stop the Washington winning streak of seven games deader than the guy who leaped from the Monument.

Triples in Pinch.

And then there was the Averill item. The Indians came to Washington with Averill on the bench because he hadn't been hitting. But they took a chance on his batting ability in the twelfth inning yesterday and he weakly lifted a three-base wallop against the left-center wall to deliver the ball game unto Cleveland. It was no bunt.

So the upshot of the matter was that the Nats lost a full game to the Yankees, whose nine runs in the eighth against the Tigers had been chalked up on the scoreboard amid the 8,000 ladies' day guests, who had left the dishes in the sink. Washington's lead thereby shrunk to three games.

Relieved by McAfee.

Walter Stewart battled Harder and his sore arm valiantly for 11 innings, yielding only six hits, in pairs, before he was relieved by Bill McAfee in what proved to be the last inning. McAfee was an immediate failure. Willie Kamm greeted him affectionately with his third straight hit, a single to center, and then Averill came through.

The ball game went out of the Nats' possession on the wings of the three-bagger that Averill bounced against the wall. The Indians' advantage was limited to one run when he tried to score on Spencer's short fly to Manush, whose throw-in bounced off Cronin's back into the mitt of Berg, who made the put-out at the plate.

The Nats went down fighting in the twelfth. Heinie Manush lashed a single to right to open the inning and took second on Goslin's sacrifice, but Joe Cronin and Fred Schulte left the tying run to perish there with a short infield fly and a roller to third base, respectively.

Joe Cronin had gambled with the ball game, back in the ninth inning, and apparently had won. The

Pomponius and Pomposity, Stablemates, Run One-Two in Arlington Feature

Boilermaker Overtaken Near End

Penncote Scores Her Second Win of Season at Latonia.

The Heathen, at 8 to 5, Outruns Instigator at Empire City.

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—Pomponius and his stable mate, Pomposity, racing for W. R. Coe, of New York, ran one-two in the Rio Grande purse at 1 mile, the feature at Arlington Park today.

Pomponius, piloted by Jockey C. Kurtsinger, had two lengths advantage over his stable companion. Boilermaker, which set the pace, was overtaken in the final half furlong. Pomponius trailed the field and then came with a rush down the stretch.

Pomponius ran the distance in 1:38 1-5, paying off $7.10 in the $2 straight mutuels.

Penncote is Victorious.

Latonia, Ky., July 10 (A.P.).—Young Brothers' consistent 2-year old filly, Penncote, scored her second victory of the meeting in the Green Castle Purse, an allowance affair for juveniles which featured today's program.

The 5½ furlong spin proved little more than a gallop for the daughter of Pennant and Cherrycote. Shaking off Cherry Time in the first half mile, Penncote came on to win as her rider pleased, enjoyed a five length advantage at the finish over F. L. B. Stable's Ding Bin. The latter closed strongly and easily outstayed C. V. Whitney's Leaflet.

Penncote's victory was a popular one, the good Monday crowd backing her into 6 to 5 favoritism or $4.46 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

She covered the distance in 1:06 3-5.

C. E. Hamilton's Edith A. captured the sixth race, which event attracted as much if not more interest than the feature, in a driving finish with C. V. Whitney's Contraband. Laffoon & Yeiser's Flying Cadet, the favorite, was third.

The Heathen Wins.

Empire City Racetrack, New York, July 10 (A.P.).—The Heathen, 9-year-old sprinter, showed here today that he still is capable of administering a licking to platers of his kind. Flying the silks of the B. B. Stable, which won half of the inaugural card Saturday, the elderly son of Donna Cona lasted to score by a length in the Prospect Purse, feature of the program. The Heathen was an 8-to-5 favorite and completed the short 6 furlongs trip in 1:11. P. H. Faulconer's Instigator earned the place, a head before Maxwell Howard's Miss Snow.

Howard Cruz, the apprentice jockey who has been displaying fine form of late, broke the Heathen with the first flight. The veteran dashed to the front after Fashion Show had exhausted her brief show of early foot. Instigator forced the pace and was wearing the winner down in the final sixteenth, but Cruz kept his mount going. Miss Snow, the third horse from her stable to be in the money during the day, closed very fast after racing close up from the start.

TOM McNAMARA became the first golfer to break 70 in the national open championship when, in the tournament of 1909 at Englewood, he played the second round in 69. He did not win the title, however, but was second—losing to George Sargent in the finals. In 1912, and again in 1915 he got to the finals only to lose.

William Upward, Los Angeles aviation enthusiast, took up flying after he had passed his seventy-first birthday. Today, at 76, he is an expert pilot—the oldest licensed pilot in the business. Strange as it seems, Mr Upward does not have to use glasses—and much of the time he flies about in an open cockpit, without even wearing goggles.

Strange to the landsman, less so to the sailor, are the sails on the Britannia, King George's 40-year-old racing yacht. The spinnaker, a large triangular sail, has a row of holes in it so that spent wind may pass through. The holes are called "Tom Ratsey's peepholes."

The Britannia was built in 1893 at a cost of about $40,000. She is still a trim racing craft and has, in her 40 years, won 326 prizes.

DEAR AL: ARLINGTON PARK, JULY 10.

I didn't like the show here today a little bit. But what can a fellow expect who plays his own selections? Mike claims I put the jinx on them. However, I've also gone broke betting against the great Bennings. Tomorrow, I will have only rootin' interest and I'll give every one a chance. While I was in the books tonight, Mike did a little long-distance handicapping at the other tracks. He likes Spotpot, Kakapo, Bright Beauty, Imelda, Manya. BILL.

FIRST RACE—ALCORAH is asked to carry top weight in this field and seems capable of the assignment. Looks like the No. 1 chasing will have to come from DURGA. TRANSCALL might be close in a field of this caliber.

SECOND RACE—WHITE LEGS ran a very promising race the last out, and I see no reason why the stable would miss the long end of this purse. However, this is no set-up. DARK SEA and ED LARK will have to be beaten.

THIRD RACE—I'm going to take my chances with ESKIMO. The veteran is a fairly sharp article at present. BATTLING ON and OATEN to complete the money picture.

FOURTH RACE—LOUIE DEAR shapes up well among this group, and although he is not of the reliable sort, I'm going to him. A pair of surprise packages may figure in the money. I mean PORTCODINE and ALL ROWES. Both have been waiting for the right spot.

FIFTH RACE — The Calumet Farm entry of PRINCE POMPEY and HADAGAL holds a strong hand in this sprint. These youngsters have been working impressively. EARNINGS and VICAR for the rest.

SIXTH RACE—BRIGHT SHADOW is one I remember from last season at Laurel. Was shut off at turns in two stake races. Since that time, the Audley filly has shown her true form. SABULA and AT TOP for the other awards.

SEVENTH RACE—And I'm going to try to make it an Audley Stable parlay with ROYAL BLUNDER in this. Has plenty of speed and may provide the talent a shock. FINGAL and EBONY LADY have the edge on the others.

EIGHTH RACE—Here's my old friend SANDWRACK, neatly tucked into the final and ready to slide home at $30 mutuel—his favorite pay-off. CRAPSHOOTER and YONKEL for the rest.

Primo to Keep Title 5 Years, Prediction

McAuliffe, Who Forecast Victory, Says Carnera Outclasses Foes.

By Jack McAuliffe
(Retired Undefeated Lightweight Champion.)

NEW YORK, July 10 (U.P.).—I predict Primo Carnera will hold the world's heavyweight championship for a long, long time—five years any way. I am willing to go on record as saying he will be able to take any man in the world for that period.

Of course I don't class the big Italian with the John L. Sullivan of the past generation, nor the Jack Dempsey of this, but Carnera is surely a shade betted than the sad lot of heavyweights we have at present.

I'll admit I've changed my mind about Carnera from what it was when he first came to this country. Friends who saw him in Europe said he was a big windbag. But when it came to the Sharkey fight I went out flatly with a prediction Carnera would win. At that time I said "It is with his right hand uppercut that I think he should beat Sharkey." It was. I based my Sharkey prediction on the showing Carnera made against poor Ernie Schaaf. And it wasn't because of the tragic outcome of that fight. It was because the speed the big mountain of a man displayed.

Carnera's Speed Surprise.

There is always some weakness in a big, big man, so it was a real surprise to see the huge Primo moving those big dogs around with the grace of a professional dancer, and to see how expert he was at holding off his rival with that tremendous left arm. His poise, standing and delivery of that one hand were remarkable. It was the instinct of a fighter who knew what he was about. In that Schaff fight he showed flashes of a right uppercut that I thought then, if only developed, would lick any heavyweight. For although Carnera is somewhat musclebound, from his upright stance he can deliver that uppercut better than a man with more lithe muscles, and it is more jarring and telling.

Carnera will be champion as long as his legs hold out, and it will be five years before they give way.

As for Max Baer, he would be the clown of the two, for his swish-swash back and forth with his right hand in the Schmeling fight was amateurish. There was no one instance, in the Schmeling fight, as I saw it, where Baer showed the instincts of a boxer. He has a lot to learn. He has youth and proper handling will make him a better man, but never, in my opinion, will he be good enough for Carena—not for three years, anyway.

Steinke Faces Londos if He Beats Steele

Much Depends, Therefore, on Battle Thursday at Stadium.

WHILE no Jim Londoses are on Thursday night's rassle card at Griffith Stadium Promoter Joe Turner has done the next best thing. He has matched Ray Steele crown prince to the champ, with burly Hans Steinke the reformed movie strong man who has hopes of succeeding Steele or Londos, or both, in his profession.

Steinke has had few cracks at Londos' crown, none this season and he has been promised one if he clears this Steele hurdle. Steinke the German Oak, promised to be poison oak to Steele in the coming go and fans need not be surprised if he makes good his threat. Lacking in color and dash, but smart in scientific wrestling and as strong as they make 'em, he is a tough foe for the best of them. Twice recently Steinke has battled Steele to draws in short bouts and the two-hour limit set for Thursday should give him plenty of time to wear down his man, unless, of course his man gets him first. In any event, it should be quite a bout.

Good Preliminary.

But, as good as the scheduled feature promises to be, there is a preliminary listed which very easily could steal the show. It is the listed 30-minute go between Sol Slagel and Lou Plummer. Slagel recently showed that he has solved the Notre Dame system by tossing "Jumping Joe" Savoldi three times in 20 minutes and he will be bucking it again when he takes on Plummer, who, like Savoldi, is a former Notre Dame grid star. Plummer has shown here several times and evidently can "take it," but there is a question whether he can take as much as Slagel doles out in view of the way Savoldi wilted under Slagel's massages.

The remainder of the card pits Frank Speers and Jim McMillan, both former college grid stars, in the semifinal, and Cliff (Swede) Olsen vs. George Hill and Karl Davis vs. "Little Beaver" in the other preliminaries. If Red Men are built like their white brothers, "Little Beaver" will discover that he has nerves that he never dreamed of before Davis gets through with him, for Karl out-Wilsons Doc Wilson himself when it comes to operating on nerve centers.

Four Records Are Broken and One Equaled in District A. A. U. Title Swim

Four Retain Titles Won Last Year

Miss Bates Again Wins Two Events; Sets Mark in Backstroke 100.

Misses Augusterfer and Howard Repeat; Record for Wilcox.

SIX new champions were crowned, four records were broken, one equaled and two established as the boys and girls churned through the McKinley pool before some 400 spectators in the A. A. U. District Outdoor Swimming championship meet last night. Only four of last year's individual champions defended their titles and all four retained them with honors. In the swimming events, two of the three retaining title holders broke their own records for the distance.

Diminutive little Lois Bates, the 17-year-old diving queen of the District, not only retained her low-board diving title, but after loosening up in that event, defended her 100-yard backstroke crown. And swam the distance in 1:29 4-5, breaking her own record of 1:30 1-5, established in winning the event last year.

Miss Augusterfer Repeats.

Rita Augusterfer, winner of the 100-yard free style for women last year, repated last night, swimming the course in 1:13 1-5, as against her previous record time of 1:14 3-5. Elizabeth Howard retained her grasp on the 100-yard breast stroke diadem, but failed to equal her 1932 mark of 1:38 2-5. Carolyn Cox equaled the record established by Rita Augusterfer, by swimming the 50-yard free style in 0:33 1-5.

Leonora Taub established a record of 2:26 4-5 in winning the 150-yard medley for women, a new event. Another new race, the 1,100-yard free style for men, was won by Charles Bateson, who established a record of 1:01 1-5.

There were no defending champions in the men's events. Arnold Wilcox won the 200-yard breast stroke in the record-breaking time of 2:55 1-5. William Marmion also broke the record in swimming the 150-yard back stroke in 1:56 2-5.

Relay Champs Beaten.

The 200-yard relay, the only event in which a last year's winner met defeat, saw the Shoreham team annex the title from the four boys representing the Ambassador pool, which finished second. The Shoreham team was comprised of Alex McMillan, J. La Salle, Thornton Burns and George Groff.

Lieut. R. P. McCandlish Gets 35 at Army-Navy

Lieut. Robert P. McCandlish turned in his best nine-hole score yesterday at Army and Navy while touring the outgoing side with Arthur Skarry. He shot a 35, one below par. Two 6s, one on the second, another on the fourth, both par 5 holes, ruined him of an even more brilliant nine.

A. Tipton was second with 8 winners in 58 times at the post; S. Coucci was third with 11 winners in 59 races; R. Jones, fourth, 6 winners in 46 races, and M. Parke, fifth with 2 winners in 41 races.

"Champ Catfisherman" Alabaman's New Title

Tuscaloosa, Ala. (A.P.).—To Louis (Flap) Weatherford local followers of Izaak Walton generously and unanimously have tendered the crown of champion spoon bill catfisherman.

Louis doesn't go in for fancy flies, bamboo rods or singing reels—he prefers a plain trot line and his own secret lure.

The record on which Louis was enthroned as ruler of the catfishermen, properly attested, includes a catch of approximately 10,000 pounds in five months. This includes 730 spoon bills, ranging from 5 to 50 pounds each.

The spoon bills, a scaleless species, with a long snout or bill, usually isn't caught by hook and line and has never been known to rise to artificial lure, but Louis has found a way to snare them on trot lines or "set hooks."

Nats Defeated by Indians in 12th, 3-2

score was tied at 2-2, and the Indians had men on first and third by dint of singles by Vosmik and Kamm. Then Wes Ferrell, pinch-hitting for Boss, sent a sharp grounder to the Nats' manager. He could have cut off the run at the plate, but elected instead to try for a double play. He shot the ball to Myer, who pivoted and threw to Kuhel to nip Ferrell by a whisker on the conclusive end of the twin killing.

But Harder was an enigma in those late innings, and when Stewart went out in the twelfth, the ball game went with him.

Hale Slams Home Run.

The Injuns were off to a one-run lead when Hale whacked a homer far into the seats in left-center in the second inning, but the Nats got the run back immediately on singles by Kuhel and Bluege, Sewell's sacrifice and Stewart's infield out. And they took their 2-to-1 lead in the third when Cronin walked with two out and scored easily on Schulte's long double to left.

After four hitless innings, the Indians tied the score on singles by Kamm and Boss and a squeeze bunt by Spencer.

And after the second inning the Nats threatened seriously to score against Harder only once. That was in the seventh, when Buddy Myer's second double and Manush's sacrifice put Myer on third with one out. Goslin walked, but Cronin could only dump a bouncer into the box and Harder tagged Myer out en route to the plate.

In the ninth, tenth and eleventh Harder hurled hitless ball with his sore arm.

Washingtonian Leads College Chess Play

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—Martin C. Stark, of Washington, representing Harvard, was leading with a score of 3-0 at the close of play tonight in the third round of the intercollegiate chess tournament at the World's Fair.

Nathan Beckhardt, of New York City, the C. C. N. Y., captain and Vladimir Grigorieff, of the University of Chicago, with an adjourned game each, had scores of 2-0. There was a tie for fourth place between Harold Cutler, of New York University, and Willis E. Lamb, jr., of California.

Herrera Beats Raymond, Winning Every Round

Pittsburgh, July 10 (A.P.).—Tony Herrera, of Chicago, fast Mexican lightweight, hammered Lew Raymond, of Baltimore, from one side of the ring to the other tonight, easily capturing the 10-round bout.

Raymond who did not win a round, was an easy target for Tony's lightning lefts to the head and body. Herrera was content gradually to wear down his opponent throughout the fight, but in the tenth he opened a slaughtering attack which for a time seemed destined to send the Baltimore boy out for the count.

He weighed 138 3-4; Raymond 140.

Weaver to Face Chisox in Opener

Stewart's fast opening the second and it was bad news for the Nats, for the ball landed well up in the stands in left center, putting the Tribe in the lead for the first time during the entire series here. In the fourth, after Stewart had thrown three successive balls to him, he followed with as many strikes in a row, the third being called—and that was bad news to Hale.

Averill's consecutive-game playing streak was prolonged to 528 when he went to center in the ninth as the result of the use of a Cleveland pinch-hitter for Boss, Galatzer was shifted from center to first.

Boss made a great one-hand stop of Stewart's burning grass-cutter and turned it into an out in the second. The play cost the Nats at least one run even though one scored while the play was being made. Harder hustled over to the sack to take the throw.

Schulte did some tall fielding to hot-foot it over toward right and turn Galatzer's liner into an out in Round 3.

Harder was kept busy fielding as well as pitching. He had three putouts at first and as many assists in the first five frames. All told, the Tribe pitcher had 11 chances.

And maybe there wasn't a buzz in the stands when the score board showed the Yankees had scored nine runs in the eighth of their game with the Tigers. The Nats were coming to bat in their sixth at the time. It must have knocked the wind out of their sails, for they went down in one-two-three order, this being the first frame in which they went hitless.

Goslin did not have a fielding chance until he camped under Cissell's looper opening the tenth. Kamm went even longer without any work on defense, not having a chance until the twelfth and then he had two.

Helen Wills Moody May Defend Crown

States She Would Regret Not Returning in '34 to Wimbledon.

London, July 10 (U.P.).—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, who on Saturday won her sixth all-England tennis title at Wimbledon, may return to defend the crown next year, she said today.

"I can not say certainly that I shall come," she said. "I may come and I may not. I never make up my mind until the last moment. I love Wimbledon and I'd certainly regret it if I did not come."

Frederick Moody, her husband, a San Francisco broker, added that it is "quite untrue Mrs. Moody has decided not to play again. We can not say defintely a year ahead, but it's quite likely that she will be here in 1934."

National Capital League

Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone nine, winner of the first half pennant in the National Capital League, suffered its first defeat of the season in the circuit yesterday, bowing to Pepco, 11 to 5. George Beach hurled for the winners, limiting the opposition to nine hits. The losers failed to make a hit until the seventh inning. Walters and Ault led Pepco's attack.

Jeby Outpoints Young Terry; Fans Jeer

Disputed Middle Champ Rings Up Lead in Early Rounds of Contest.

By B. Gregory Hewlett.

NEWARK, N. J., July 10 (A.P.). Ben Jeby, the East Side New Yorker who holds a part of the world middleweight boxing championship, staged one of the best fights of his career tonight to win a decision over Young Terry, of Trenton, and keep his disputed crown.

Piling up a big lead in the first half of the fifteen-round struggle at Dreamland Park, Jeby, cool and confident, took all the rushing challenger could give and coasted into the triumph despite Terry's late rally.

Referee Whitey Healey gave Jeby, recognized as world titlist in his home State, nine rounds to four for Terry and called two even. The fans, however, booed the decision.

12,000 Fans See Fight.

Twelve thousand spectators saw Jeby weather Terry's most terrific attack in the fifth round but give back a little more than he received. Waiting back, he met Terry's rushes with a right uppercut, mixed in left jabs and kept command.

Jeby reached his peak in the seventh and had Terry staggering in that session. Terry started it by his forcing-in tactics—but the New Yorker kept clear of the knockout blows, jarred Terry with a left, slung both hands into the body and left his foe noticeably tired and hurt at the bell.

Jeby was much improved over the battler who lost a decision to Terry two years ago.

Apparently coasting whenever he had the chance, he gave Terry a chance to regain his strength and the challenger came back with a furious body attack in the fourteenth and fifteenth rounds. Terry worked on Jeby's badly bruised body, disregarding his own cut-up face, and slung so many punches the crowd was in an uproar.

Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion, spoke to his countryman at the start of the final round and that seemed to give Terry more spirit. Head down, he charged in, weaving, and made such an impression the crowd booed the decision.

Jeby weighed 158¼ to Terry's 157.

Houghton's 70 Is Record for Belle Haven

Kenwood Pro's Par Tops Field-in Sweepstakes on Virginia Course.

MATCHING par for 18 holes, and thereby establishing a new course record, Al Houghton, the Kenwood wizard, shot a snappy 70 yesterday at the Belle Haven layout in Alexandria to capture first prize in an informal sweepstakes.

Red hot on the first nine which he traversed in 33, two shots below par, Houghton finished the last two holes in 5—4, one over par on each hole, to take a 37. Houghton had birdies on the fourth, fifth, and thirteenth.

His 70 was one shot better than the record formerly owned by the home pro, Tommy Ryan.

Houghton furnished the most spectacular coup of the day on the seventh hole, a 150-yarder. His spade shot became submerged in water in a ditch 20 yards in front of the green. Standing in the water, Houghton blasted out with his wedge. The ball rimmed the cup and danced out. Houghton got his par 3.

Second honors went to Mel Shorey, of East Potomac, who shot 34—38—72. George Diffenbaugh, of Indian Spring, was third with 36—37—73; Frank Cunningham, Burning Tree, fourth, with 37—38—75, in a tie with Al Tredor, of Manor, who had 38—37—75. Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree, had 36—40—76; Tommy Ryan, Belle Haven, 37—39—76, and Leo Walper, unattached, 39—38—77.

Driving, putting and approaching contests will feature the "Ladies Day" golf program at Woodmont today. Mrs. Theodore Peyser, women's golf chairman, will be in charge.

Add to the list of those who shot eagles on Sunday the name of A. L. Alderman, of Manor, who shot the 470-yard first hole in three strokes after running down a 30-footer. His wife and Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Beavers were in the foursome.

Junior Polo Play Draws 10 Teams

Tommy Hitchcock to Lead One of Groups; Contests to Start July 16.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—The draw today for the national junior polo championships showed a record entry of ten teams, including one led by Tommy Hitchcock, the world's only 10-goal star. Play begins July 16 at the Sands Point Club, Port Washington, Long Island, and continues through July 30.

Until two years ago, no player whose individual handicap exceeded 6 goals was permitted to play in the junior tournament, but this restriction was lifted in 1931 with the result many of the top-ranking players participated. The only restriction now is that no team total more than 20 goals on handicap.

Hitchcock will direct the Sands Point Team, including Robert Lehman, Cornelius V. Whitney and a back, to be named later.

Indorse Track At Martinsburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 10.—Indorsement of a proposed mile race track here, to be operated under recently enacted West Virginia law and with use of pari-mutuels, was given yesterday afternoon by Martinsburg Chamber of Commerce after an explanation of the project by former Mayor Cleveland M. Seibert and former Mayor H. G. Tonkin, both of whom are active in having a track built here.

Difficulty in getting option on land desired possibly for the track at a reasonable price was reported and it was thought the Chamber of Commerce might be able to relieve the situation. A committee was authorized to assist in the matter.

The spokesmen told the group they expected the track, which is sponsored by Baltimore and New York track owners, would attract 2,000 followers from a distance daily, 6,000 from this section with more than that at the peak of the two-week season.

They said plans called for spending $100,000 on the project this fall, in time for a December meet, with provisions for 400 horses.

The track is the first proposed in West Virginia since the recent Legislature enacted the law permitting horse racing.

Miller Defends Title Against Idrael Tonight

Seattle, July 10 (A.P.).—Freddy Miller, of Cincinnati, National Boxing Association featherweight champion, and Abie Idrael, Seattle, today wound up training activities for their 15-round bout here tomorrow night.

Both boys will keep a watchful eye on their weights until they step on the scales tomorrow afternoon. Each boxer has put up $500 to guarantee 126-pounds or less.

It will be Miller's first defense of his title since he took it away from Tommy Paul, winner of the national association's elimination tournament a year ago.

Braves and Red Sox Fight Over Title to Bill Walters

National Leaguers Claim They Hold Option on Infielder Bought by Sox From Missions Club; Commissioner Landis to Rule on Case.

BOSTON, July 10 (A.P.).—Bill ("Buck") Walters, hard-hitting young infielder whom the Boston Red Sox recently purchased from the Missions Club, of the Pacific League, has arrived in the right city, but may be played on the wrong team.

It became known today that the Boston Braves have entered a defensive claim for Walters' services with the baseball commissioner, K. M. Landis. That official has informed the Red Sox they may use Walters while he puzzles over the obscure agreement the Braves have with the Missions regarding the youngster's service.

Went to Missions in Trade.

Walters went to the Missions from the Braves last winter in the trade for Dick Gyselman and Al Wright, who has since been returned. The Braves' management claims it kept a string on Walters, but the Missions allege the contrary, for they sold him outright to General Manager Eddie Collins, of the Red Sox.

Collins was greatly impressed by the .346 batting average Walters piled up for the Missions, but when this heavy slugging was called to the attention of Manager Bill McKechnie of the Braves, he refused to change his opinion that Walters was a good fielder but a weak hitter.

"You know," explained McKechnie, "the boys out in the Coast League make a lot of money selling players to the majors. To make them look good at the plate, they use a ball that is as lively as a golf pill and from all accounts, Walters has been murdering it. He couldn't hit past the infield for us."

Up Twice for Red Sox.

Since joining the Red Sox, Walters has been in twice as a pinch hitter. He got a single in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns but was only able to foul out this afternoon.

Pirates Defeat Phils to Gain 3d Place

Lindstrom's Third Hit of Game Wins for Bucs, 3-2, in Ninth.

PITTSBURGH, July 10 (A.P.).—Freddy Lindstrom's big bat, silent for weeks, boomed into action today to give Pittsburgh's Pirates a ninth-inning 3 to 2 triumph over Philadelphia.

With two out and three on base, the big outfielder stepped to the plate in the final frame and banged out a single to send Gus Suhr home with the winning run.

Lindstrom emphasized his return to hitting power by combing Ed Holley for three hits, one a double in the eighth that developed into the tying run as Fred came home on Arky Vaughan's single.

Pirates Gain Third Place.

The victory boosted the Pirates into third place ahead of idle Chicago Cubs.

Holley and Larry French put on a spirited mound duel, each allowing only seven hits, but Holley's inability to bear down on Lindstrom gave the Buccaneer pitcher the edge.

Boys Hurt Celebrating Victory of Pirates

Pittsburgh, July 10 (A.P.).—Wildly enthusiastic at the Pittsburgh Pirates' 3 to 2 victory over Philadelphia today, hundreds of boys, guests of the management, stampeded the gate and seven were knocked down and trampled.

The victims were rushed to a hospital where they were discharged after receiving first aid.

Approximately 5,000 youths were attending the "boy's day" game at Forbes Field. Their cheers from the bleachers rolled across the field all afternoon. Freddy Lindstrom decided the contest, after the teams were tied at 2 to 2 in the eighth, with a clean hit that scored the winning run.

The lads, highly elated, swept down on the field after the game. Then there was a rush for the bleacher exit and the seven, ranging in age from 7 to 11 years, were injured in the crush.

C. U. Loses Two Star Grid Players

Ray Howe and Abe Zoss Not to Return This Fall; Loss Great.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S hopes for a winning 1933 gridiron were dealt a stunning blow yesterday with the announcement that Ray Howe and Abe Zoss would not return to school this fall. Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman has received word to that effect from Howe that he will not return, while Zoss withdrew from school last spring.

Howe was an outstanding member of the 1931 Cardinal team. He played end, where he distinguished himself as an all-around performer. Returning to this city in the spring of 1932 after the Easter vacation period, he was injured in an automobile accident, and subsequently had to undergo an operation upon his knee.

Coming Back in 1934.

The injured member responded to treatment but not soon enough to permit him to play last year. He played basket ball throughout the winter and suffered a recurrence of the old injury in a game, necessitating another operation. Physicians have advised him against playing this season. He will return to Catholic University in 1934, however.

Although not a regular, Zoss was a dependable lineman and saw much service throughout the 1932 season. However, Berman believes his loss will not affect the team as greatly as that of Howe.

"Red" Fleming and Johnny Ball, both lettermen, will be on deck when the initial call for practice is sounded. Both are experienced wingmen and will have the inside track on regular positions.

Dog Race Bets Vetoed By Illinois Governor

Springfield, Ill., July 10 (A.P.).—Asserting dog racing "was not demanded by any considerable portion of our citizenship," Gov. Henry Horner today vetoed a measure legalizing pari-mutuel betting at such races.

The governor declared "it might be said the bill had been prepared for the dog track operators with a maximum of license for them and a minimum of regulation or advantage to the State and the people."

"A multitude of fine citizens," the veto message said, "have urged that this bill be vetoed because it is demoralizing and harmful as a form of alleged sport."

Indian Spring's Tourney to Mrs. Blair

Chevy Chase Player Wins Duffer Event; Other Golf Results.

By Dave Herman.

MRS MONTGOMERY BLAIR, Jr., of the Chevy Chase Club, had to be coaxed to enter her first golf tournament.

She made her debut yesterday at Indian Spring. The occasion was the duffers' tournament sponsored by Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, president of the District of Columbia Women's Golf Association.

Miss Harris donated a beautiful trophy.

Last night this trophy was in the custody of Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr.

A 29-handicap player, Mrs. Blair turned in the lowest gross score of her golf career, which happens to be exactly one year old. She carded a 104. Her winning net was 75.

Mrs. Blair, according to her friends, usually shoots anywhere from 20 to 30 strokes above the century mark. Until she crashed the championship class yesterday with her 104—29—75, the Chevy Chase golfer had never scored better than 107.

A field of more than 120 women golfers competed.

Mrs. Brundage Second.

Mrs. W. H. Brundage, of Columbia, won the runner-up prize with a 78 net. Mrs. J. J. McCarthy, of Congressional, was third, with 79. Mrs. E. B. Wagner, of Indian Spring, who won fourth prize with her 80 net, shot the lowest gross among the high handicappers—a 48—48—96.

Some 30 women with club ratings better than 16 also vied for prizes. It remained for Mrs. C. P. Medley, of the host club, to win both the low gross and low net prize in this class with her 91—14—77. She was awarded a tin cup. Mrs. H. King Cornwell was second, with an 81 net.

Among the low medal scorers, Mrs. H. R. Quinter, of Columbia, shot a 92, and Mrs. Don Scott, of Indian Spring, 93. Mrs. Harrison Brand, who needed a par 3 for a 91, was on the green with her drive, then 5-putted for a 6 and a 94.

The prize winners:

High Handicap Class.

Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., Chevy Chase, 75; Mrs. W. H. Brundage, Columbia, 78; Mrs. J. J. McCarthy, Congressional, 79; Mrs. E. B. Wagner, Indian Spring, 80; Mrs. F. W. Bradbury, Washington, won in draw after being tied at 82 with Mrs. J. H. Pence, Indian Spring; Mrs. R. C. Miller, Kenwood, won in draw after being tied at 82 with Mrs. H. J. Cooper, Kenwood; Mrs. C. B. Amorous, Congressional, won in draw after being tied at 83 with Miss Nellie Mae Neff, Manor, and Mrs. W. A. Tucker, Beaver Dam; Mrs. E. R. Levy, Army and Navy, 84; Mrs. E. Amick, Columbia, Mrs. W. M. Smith, Indian Spring, Mrs. Ralph Kelly, Beaver Dam, Mrs. T. N. Beavers, Manor, Mrs. W. A. Romer, Indian Spring, and Mrs. W. Beasley, Beaver Dam, tied with 85 nets, each.

Low Handicap Class.

Mrs. C. P. Medley, Indian Spring, 91—14—77; Mrs. H. King Cornwell, Columbia, 81; Mrs. J. P. Gross, Indian Spring, 82; Mrs. H. R. Quinter, Columbia, and Miss Helen Dettweiler, Manor, tied at 83; Mrs. Ora Emge, Beaver Dam, Mrs. Harrison Brand, Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Don Scott, Indian Spring, and Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, Washington, tied with 85, each.

How to Get Well

Can Water Be Made Safe?

TYPHOID fever has become a disease of minor importance and public water supplies rarely spread that disease. Such typhoid as remains is spread in the main by carriers, although an occasional outbreak is charged to milk. The accusations against water are even more infrequent.

The same peans of praise can not be applied to public water supplies where they are under charges of spreading epidemics of diarrhea. The evidence is convincing that waves of this minor disorder, due to the use of public water supplies, not infrequently sweep over communities.

Few communities have access to first-class sources of water. There are too many factories and too many people for that. Nearly every city is now under the need of using second hand water. Cities are forced to take muddy water, sewage-polluted water, or water into which factories have poured all kinds of waste, and purify it as well as that can be done. The waterworks plant of every city at present is an old clothes shop where a worn-out article is taken in hand, brushed, de-greased, denearly everything else, taken to pieces, and made into a bright, brand new suit of clothes.

The United States Public Health Service has been watching the performance of water purification works for about nine years. Most of the plants studied were located up and down the Ohio River, the reasons for the selection being the degree and variety of pollution of that stream, the large amount of sewage going into it, and the great number of people using the purified product. Some while after starting along the Ohio they extended their studies to the water plants located in the Great Lakes region.

Some of the earlier reports were quite pessimistic. It was said that several places were in danger in spite of the fact that their water purification methods were up to the minute. The warning given at that time had a favorable effect. The water engineers, chemists, and bacteriologists got down on their marrowbones. New methods were devised and old ones were improved.

Progress has outstripped pollution. The present position of the water scientists of the service is one of greater confidence in the methods and of brighter hopes. They report favorably on storing water. If London can make Thames water into a good, potable product by the simple expedient of storing it in reservoirs, the cities of the Ohio Basin need not feel their problem impossible of solution. Many cities located in hilly country should find it rather easy and inexpensive to create large lakes and impound water for time enough for automatic purification. Methods of filtration have been improved and the progress in chlorination has been even greater.

A difficult problem still remaining is that caused by trade wastes. Some of these problems have been found hard to solve. In others the solution is known, but there is difficulty in getting it applied. The reports of this long continued governmental survey will be valuable to mayors, commissioners of public works, health departments, as well as to the consumer, and also to those industries that pour their wastes into the sewers.

Testing Vision.

R. L. writes: Where can one obtain a Snellen test card, used to test vision?

Reply.

From business houses selling glasses and other optical apparatus, and from medical and surgical instrument and supply houses.

Watch Your Diet.

M. M. G. writes: I am a woman 57 years of age and have a gall bladder condition. I take care of my diet and seldom had any trouble until lately. I have been eating eggs about every day? Would they affect my in any way? I drink a lot of buttermilk. My friends tell me it is not good in my condition. Will you please advise?

Reply.

I assume you mean you have a gall bladder infection and not gall stones. People with that trouble do not digest eggs well, nor other fat foods. They must eat meat sparingly. Buttermilk in moderation should not harm. The diet should consist of simple, plain foods, principally breads, cereals, vegetables and fruits. Supper should be a very light meal.

"Reducing Teas."

J. J. writes: Would you think it advisable to use any of these reducing teas? Are they harmless?

Reply.

All of them are ineffective. Some of them are harmless.

Probe Reveals Dairy's Profit Of 40 Per Cent

Senate's Investigator Says Books Reveal Huge Return on High Price.

The first definite evidence that Washington dairies are making tremendous profits while holding the price of milk up to the highest scale in the country was revealed yesterday by Elwood H. Seal, special counsel of the Senate investigating committee.

While withholding the name for the present, Mr. Seal stated a preliminary report from accountants now engaged in checking the books showed that one prominent Washington dairy has made net profits ranging from 8 to 40 per cent during the last five years. This company handles about 12 per cent of the city's milk business.

During 1928 the dairy made a profit of 8 per cent on $300,000 capital. The following year the capitalization jumped $60,000, and the rate of return reached 12 per cent. In 1930 the company earned 33 per cent on $387,000; in 1931 it was 34 per cent on $453,000.

Within the first five months of 1932 the dairy's profit jumped to 40 per cent on a capitalization of $525,000.

Mr. Seal also started an investigation of the story of price-cutting published in yesterday's Post. He plans to interview the householder who found that some of her neighbors were getting milk for 11 cents a quart because they complained, while she, with the majority of milk users was paying 13 cents.

Smoke From Trash Fire Leads to False Alarm

Smoke from trash being burned in an ash can in the basement of the Berret School, Fourteenth and Q streets northwest, yesterday filled the closed building. A passerby turned in an alarm.

Thus another unnecessary run for the firemen, but a big surprise to the janitor, unaware of the volume of his smoke.

Glass Will Have Hospital Check-Up

Senator Looks So Well He Gets No Sympathy, He 'Complains.'

Complaining that he looked so healthy that he didn't get any sympathy, Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, yesterday went to Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore for a physical examination after the strain of the special session.

Before leaving Washington, Senator Glass visited the White House, where he discussed banking matters with the President. On leaving, he told reporters of his trip to Baltimore.

"Well, you're looking well," some one commented.

"That's the trouble," Senator Glass said cheerfully. "I'm looking so well that nobody gives me any sympathy."

Dr. Butts to Attend Convention Abroad

McKinley High Teacher Departs Tonight for England.

Dr. Frances Moon Butts, a teacher in the commercial department of McKinley High School, will sail from New York tonight to represent Washington teachers at conferences of educators to be held in England and Ireland the latter part of this month.

At Oxford, Dr. Butts will address a conference of British commercial teachers, July 22.

Following a brief tour of Scotland, Dr. Butts will represent the Washington High School Teachers' Association and the National Education Association at the conference of the World Federation of Education Associations in Dublin. She is to give an address at one of the conference sessions and to preside at an international economic luncheon in conjunction with the meeting. Dr. Butts will visit the lake country in Ireland before returning to Washington in August.

Motorcyclist Is Hurt In Crash With Auto

Charles Keefe, 40, Capital Heights, Md., received a possible fracture of the skull yesterday when the motorcycle of Charles Holt, 21, 2300 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, and the automobile of Miss Gladys A. Buck, 22, 2210 Twenty-third street northeast, collided at Pennsylvania and Branch avenues southeast.

Boy, 10, Who Disregarded Warning, Drowns at Wharf

Six Companions of Child Sought by Police After Tragedy.

Ignoring the warnings and spankings of his parents, Walter Owens, 10, of 920 G street southwest, went again to the Occoquan dock at the foot of Water and I streets, yesterday morning. In the course of his playing there he fell into the water and was drowned.

The boy had been playing at the dock with several friends despite instructions from his parents to stay away from the water. Earlier in the morning he had been punished for frequenting the waterfront by his father, Raymond Owens, employe of the Marine Railway, Inc. The policeman on the beat had also warned the boy to play somewhere else.

The boy's companions left the scene when he disappeared in the river and Dikran V. Kavaljian, clerk at the wharf, investigated their sudden disappearance. He could see nothing in the water.

Later, however, bubbles were noticed in the water and W. A. Stein, superintendent at the wharf, notified the harbor police. The body was recovered in a few minutes, but efforts at resuscitation failed.

The other boys in the group, four colored and two white, are being sought by police who are trying to determine how the lad came to his fate.

The boy has two brothers, John, 15, and Raymond, 13, and two sisters, Bernetta, 8, and Shirley, 5.

Home Owners' District Office To Open Soon

Washington Unit Expected to Be Busiest Cog in Organization.

A local set-up for handling applications of distressed Washington home owners, similar in all respects to those already established in 29 States, will be announced within the week, Chairman William Stevenson, of the Home Loan Bank Board, said yesterday.

He said the local agency will be one of the most important units of the new Home Owners Loan Corporation. He said that from present indications "there will be more business in Washington than in many of the States."

In addition to the Washington manager, six more State managers are about to be named, Chairman Stevenson said. He said the organization is rapidly being perfected and is about ready to function in refinancing mortgages and advancing money on mortgages to forestall foreclosure.

The Virginia office began receiving applications for loans yesterday, he said. In other States, such as Pennsylvania, where the number of home owners in trouble is highest, the board is proceeding deliberately in selecting those to carry forward its program.

$735 Clothes Stolen From 7th Street Store

Twenty suits, 14 pairs of white flannel trousers and 24 dresses, valued at $735.24, were stolen from the Fitwell clothing store at 735 Seventh street northwest Sunday night. The burglars forced open a rear door.

Smoke From Dump Causes Protest

Attempt at Curtailment Is Promised by District Commissioner.

The closing of the northeast incinerator in accordance with the edict of Congress and the subsequent establishment of a burning dump on the east side of the Anacostia River has created a new District problem.

Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals revealed yesterday that he had received a vigorous complaint from an official of the Benning race track, protesting that smoke from the dump is bothering horses at the track.

The Commissioner said an effort would be made to control the spread of the smoke.

$20 Is Grocery Loot.

Cigarettes and tobaccos, valued at $20, were stolen from the grocery of Joseph H. Watkins at 1613 M street northwest Sunday night. The thieves forced open a rear door.

Boatmen Hunt Body of Victim In 'Joke Death'

Foreman Drowns Trying to Save Man Ordered to Jump in Water.

Motor launches of the Harbor Precinct in the vicinity of Lincoln Memorial Bridge last night continued a search they started early yesterday to recover the body of Charles Conway, 40-year-old construction foreman, drowned during a river boating party.

Conway lost his life shortly before dawn yesterday, supposedly as a result of his own practical joke. He dived into the deep water to rescue one of his employes, whom he "ordered" to "jump overboard or lose your job." In a jesting manner Conway is said to have commanded Herbert J. Spain, of 2701 P street northwest, to plunge into the river. Taking the joke to heart, Spain leaped. Alarmed at his sudden action, Conway climbed into a dinghy to go to Spain's rescue.

The small boat capsized, throwing Conway into the water. He sank, failing to reappear. Spain was saved by other members of the party.

The group was aboard a power boat owned by John M. Moss. Miss Nannie Worley, 25, of the 5900 block of Sixteenth street northwest, completed the party.

When Conway failed to come to the surface his friends searched several minutes, finally calling harbor police. At a late hour last night he had not been found.

Conway came here from Philadelphia, Pa. He was employed on the new Government central heating plant.

Professors to Pass On Budget Fixing

Yale and Cornell Men May Suggest Types of New Securities.

The "Brain Trust" recruited a brace of new college professors yesterday, charging them with the duty of reviewing and commenting on the present attempts to balance the budget.

The newcomers, who will serve without pay, are Prof. James H. Rogers, of Yale, and Prof. George Warren, of Cornell. They may recommend types of Government securities to be issued to finance the $3,300,000,000 public works program after completing their study.

The need of expert advice on present financing plans was suggested to the President by Secretary of Commerce Roper and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace last week. The Executive agreed and the two professors were nominated by the Cabinet officers. Their study is expected to be finished before they return to their classrooms in the fall.

Children Attacked By Swarm of Bees

A swarm of bees zoomed out of nowhere yesterday afternoon and now two children who were playin the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Zimmerman, of 3018 Q street northwest, are all bandaged up.

The victims, Barbara Zimmerman, 10, and her friend, William Doyle, 11, of Hartford Conn., said they heard a strange buzzing. They looked up and the swarm of bees swooped down on them, stinging them about the face, arms and legs. The children fled to the house where they were treated by a doctor.

The unwelcome visitors were driven from the yard by a smoke barrage laid down by the fire rescue squad. But they were not evacuated until the squad smoked out the queen bee.

Keech Favors Five-Cent Fare Trolley Loop

Utilities Board May Consider Line Serving U. S. Departments.

A 5-cent fare loop trolley serving the several governmental departments in the southwest may be considered by the Public Utilities commission when it settles the row between the nearby Virginia bus lines and the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, yesterday said he would favor such a service, providing the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Rapid Transit and the Arlington & Fairfax Motor Transport Companies are permitted a similar privilege in accordance with their applications to do intra-District business.

The commission itself prepared for such an eventuality through evidence offered by William A. Roberts, special assistant counsel, at the hearing last Friday. While not suggesting the 5-cent fare, he brought out that the loop lines, which now operate only during peak periods, might be made to operate regularly.

The loop trolley now runs from Fourteenth and Water streets southwest up Fourteenth to Pennsylvania avenue, thence east on E street to Eleventh, north to G street, west to Fourteenth, and back to Water street. It consists now of only six cars.

This line covers most of the governmental bureaus in the Southwest and at the same time crosses or connects with the city's entire transit system somewhere along its route.

Should the 5-cent fare be ordered, however, it would not include transfer privileges, but would serve merely to carry the Government employes back and forth to the downtown district, as did the Virginia buses before they were stopped by the commission.

Riley E. Elgen, vice chairman of the commission, as well as Mr. Keech, already has gone on record as favoring the trial of a 5-cent zone fare by the street railways. The commission, it is believed, will consider the possibility of experimenting with the low fare on this loop.

Tax Rush Is Made By Beer Dealers

$7,000 Paid by 633, But Nearly That Number Face License Loss.

Beer dealers beat a pathway to the door of the District tax assessor yesterday and deposited close to $7,000 in taxes for beer sold in June.

Faced with a threat of license revocation, 633 filed returns yesterday, bringing the total June tax receipts to $14,771.66 at $1 a barrel from 1,450 permit holders. This is an average of about 10.19 barrels per licensee.

Nearly 600 more licensees will be without authority to sell beer today unless they have placed their tax returns in the mail, as the ten-day period for tax payments expired last midnight.

"I will recommend that the licenses of all beer dealers who have not filed returns by today be revoked," Tax Assessor William P. Richards said.

Supplies Needed In Canning Classes

Unemployed and Needy Women of City Get Free Instructions.

The domestic arts of sewing and of "putting up" fruits and vegetables is offered in courses sponsored by the Council of Social Agencies. The pupils are unemployed and needy women of the city.

Teachers are members of the public schools home economics department. They are volunteering their services. The courses are given Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at Gordon and Eliot Junior High Schools, the Birney School, and, for colored, at the Deanwood School.

The project is being accomplished with the coopertaion of the Community Center Department. There is a need for fruit jars and for fruits and vegetables as suitable for canning. The council will collect donations.

Man Is Released In Fire Inquiry

Uriah Hobbs, 46, colored, yesterday was released from custody at the Second Precinct where he had been held in connection with the blaze at the Sigma Chi Fraternity House, 1312 N street northwest, Sunday morning.

Believed to be of incendiary origin, the fire swept the first floor of the house, endangering the lives of 23 young men living there. Three of the men suffered severe burns.

An empty 5-gallon can found on the premises and a 2-gallon spray-bucket containing a small quantity of gasoline led police to believe that the building had been set afire.

District Credit Union Meets to Form League

Thirty-three officers of District credit unions met last night at 710 Fourteenth street to discuss formation of a central league.

In excess of $100,000 credit union capital was represented, although only eight months have passed since legislation authorizing these quasi-private banking concerns was passed by Congress. Officers elected and the organization they represent were: Edgar Graham, chairman, Internal Revenue; Dr. Frank O'Hara, St. Anthony's Parish; Jerome K. Eldridge, Western Union; Mrs. Winifred G. Beers, Navy Yard, and Franklin H. Smith, Veterans' Administration.

Dog Martyr

Boston Terrier Suffocated in Locked Car Topic of Advice to Public.

The little Boston terrier was locked in a closed car while his master went swimming—and the heat was terrific. The dog was frothing at the mouth and barking vociferously, as if begging some one to take pity on him and release him from his prison, or at least lower the windows so he could breathe.

The car was locked and no relief could be given the animal without breaking the window, which, of course, no one would do. It was an hour before the owner of the car and the dog could be found. When he reached the car the little dog was dead.

Postmaster W. M. Mooney witnessed the tragedy, and as a result he feels that man's most devoted friends are often made to suffer unduly during hot weather through the thoughtlessness, carelessness or ignorance of the owners.

Dogs can not adjust themselves to changes in temperature as quickly as people can, he says. Hence, provision should be made for the dog's comfort during the hot weather, as well as the cold. Plenty of cool drinking water should be provided for the dog; also his feeding pan or plate should be washed in hot water and thoroughly cleansed after each meal, otherwise the food becomes sour and tainted.

Above all, Mr. Mooney warns against the practice of calling a policeman to kill every dog seen frothing at the mouth.

Owners who leave dogs locked in their cars, he warns, should not fail to let down the windows several inches, because a dog suffers intensely on a hot day.

Arrest of Galtry In Attack Upon 6 Boys Ordered

Victims Tell Prosecutor Park Policeman Beat Them for No Reason.

Capt. D. O. Hickey, of the Park Police, was directed yesterday by Assistant United States Attorney Michael Keough to arrest Vernon O. Galtry, park policeman, accused of brutally attacking six boys on the Anacostia Flats Friday night.

Galtry, who is under observation at Gallinger Hospital, will be arraigned in Police Court on a charge of assault, if and when he is released by the hospital.

The story of how the policeman, apparently laboring under a delusion that a fellow officer had been murdered, beat the boys, without provocation, with the butt of his revolver, which he fired promiscuously, shooting one boy in the foot, was told to Keough yesterday by the victims.

The boys in the group were John Ellis, 15, 1221 V street southeast; Charles Knott, 16, 1515 W street southeast; Cyril Hammond, 16, 1637 V street southeast; Alfred Stoll, 19, 1515 W street southeast; Michael DeMarco, 16, 1200 O street southeast, and Stanley Cox, 15, 1347 W street southeast.

Lerch Denies He Led Lobby Funds Drive

Suspended G. P. O. Assistant Foreman Asks Delay in Judgment.

A plea that judgment be withheld in the case of two Government Printing Office employes accused of soliciting "lobby" funds was laid before the Central Labor Union last night by Frank S. Lerch, 517 Second street northeast.

Lerch, assistant foreman at the G. P. O., and James E. Rennie, a proofreader, were suspended Thursday by George H. Carter, Public Printer. They are charged with having campaigned for money to fight the economy provision which deprived employes of $954,000 in earned leave. A third worker suspended with them was restored to work yesterday.

Mr. Carter said last night that the next step in the case must come from Lerch and Rennie. Neither has answered his superior's accusations. They are expected to do so by tomorrow.

Frank J. Gardner, of 3500 Fourteenth street northwest, yesterday filed a statement in the district attorney's office which said he received $920 for services in the drive Mr. Carter asserts was conducted secretly and improperly.

Mr. Lerch denied yesterday that he was one of the organizers, adding that he simply contributed his assessment of $21.60. He did not employ Mr. Gardner nor did he collect any funds, the suspended assistant foreman declared.

Sleeping Man's Pocket Yields $120 to Thief

While Dominick Anastasi was asleep Sunday night a thief stole $120 and his keys from his trousers' pocket. But in leaving the thief advertently or carelessly dropped the key to the cash register in Anastasi's grocery store.

He had entered the home by removing the screen from a window on the first floor.

Apartment Owner Beaten and Robbed

Brass Knuckles Used Upon Victim by Youth Who Gets $1,000 Cash.

Assaulted by a young man using brass knuckles, Robert P. White, 58, of 1138 Twelfth street northwest, was thrown to the floor of an apartment, next door to his home yesterday, and robbed of about $1,000 in bills and several large checks.

White, the owner of several apartment houses in the vicinity of his home, reported to police that he was showing his assailant a vacant apartment. The young man, he said, had approached him and asked to be shown one of the flats.

After a conversation of more than an hour, Mr. White said, the young man suddenly struck him in the jaw and went through his pockets. He stated he had taken the large sum of money from a hiding place in his home to transact some business.

The robbery took place at 1138 Twelfth street northwest. Police broadcast a lookout for the robber.

Gas Valuation Inquiry Stayed Another Month

Clayton Gains Respite to Notify All Stockholders of Hearing.

The much-delayed gas valuation hearing was postponed another 30 days by the Public Utilities Commission yesterday after William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, injected the moot outside ownership issue.

Granting a motion made by Mr. Clayton, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, adjourned the hearing in order to allow time to notify the Washington & Suburban Companies, owner of 84 per cent of the stock of the Washington Gas Light Co., and the minority stockholders that they have been made parties to the valuation inquiry.

The stage had been set for a prolonged hearing, scheduled to continue for three weeks or longer, when Mr. Clayton launched into an attack on the outside interests which control the local gas companies. Counsel and engineering and accounting experts, representing the commission and the gas companies, were on hand with volumes of evidence.

Suggesting that the gas companies were not appearing "with clean hands," Mr. Clayton said that the "people of Washington have a right to know whose property we are valuing here." Any sales of stock by the foreign interests at a lower figure than was paid for them might indicate a shrinkage in value, he said.

Inclusion of the owners of the gas companies was opposed by Stoddard M. Stevens, jr., of the New York firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, and Wilton J. Lambert, counsel for the utility, on the grounds that it was irregular and would serve to delay the valuation hearing unnecessarily.

Price of Bread Will Rise Here, Bakers Agree

Department of Justice to Prosecute Attempts as Undue Increase.

Rumors of rising bakers' prices circulated following levy of processing tax on wheat last Saturday, were confirmed in part last night, when it was learned that Washington bread charges probably will increase within two weeks or a month.

For the present, however, retail prices are expected to remain the same. Officials of local baking concerns, interviewed last night by The Post, were at odds as to just when or whether prices will rise.

Barton S. Embry, vice president and secretary of Barker Bakeries, 616 Ninth street northwest, predicted a boost in bread charges as "virtually certain."

Increase "Inevitable."

"Bread prices here are bound to go up in the future," he said. "Perhaps two weeks or a month will see a price raise, but for the present I have heard nothing of increased prices."

On the other hand, James Luttes, general manager of the Continental Baking Co., 2301 Georgia avenue northwest, said the District would not be affected by the new rates.

"Surrounding States," he declared, "have raised the price of bread 1 cent on a 1-pound loaf. Prices may soar here, but not in the immediate future."

Meanwhile, a warning came from the Department of Justice that it would stand between the consumer and profiteers who take advantage of the recovery drive for personal gains.

Prosecutions Promised.

Prosecutions under the anti-trust laws will be instituted whereever an organized attempt to increase bread prices unduly is shown. It was announced by Attorney General Cummings. Agents are watching increases exceeding the fair amount the new processing tax is estimated to cause.

The processing tax on wheat of 30 cents a bushel is not expected to raise the price of bread more than 1¼ cents a loaf, it was declared.

Louis A. Spiess, attorney for the Employing Bakers' Association of the District, declared he had heard of no plan to raise the price of bread here. He pointed, however, to the new tax and said, "Figure it out yourself."

Complaints of price increases considered "much too high," from various sections of the country have been turned over to the Department of Justice for investigation.

It was announced at Emergency Hospital last night that it probably will be necessary to amputate the left leg of Blanche Israel, who was seriously injured in a leap from a fifth-story window of the Ambassador Hotel a week ago yesterday.
